Today

Amazing Old England.
Excelsior, in Reverse.
A Real Railroad Train.
Not Just Now, Says France.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THERE ARE MANY ways of doing the same thing, and sometimes the simplest are best. England, having "muddled along" according to the old rules, reports growing prosperity, a surplus of two hundred millions, income taxes reduced, reduced salaries of civilian and military employes restored fifty per cent. Nothing to spare for Uncle Sam's debt, of course, but you hardly expected that.

Here we try many experiments from A. B. C. to X. Y. Z., and still we haven't a surplus, and we have more idle men than any two countries in Europe.

But, at least we are trying and some of the new ideas are intensely interesting. Such as slaughtering "farrow" sows, with little pigs inside them, throwing the corpses in the river, to help the farmer (if only one farrow sow, with a good vocabulary, could write what she thinks of the plan).

NEW YORK state rejects the constitutional amendment that would forbid child labor, giving children a decent chance in life. At the same time the state is giving official recognition to race track gambling, thus helping many a young man to start on his way to the penitentiary, for stealing money to bet on races.

FOLLOWING THE example of Averell Harriman, who has built a streamline high speed train for the Union Pacific, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad shows a magnificent train of light metal, with a Diesel engine, manufacturing en route electricity to run the train, and making easily 100 miles an hour, with seventy passengers.

President Budd of the C., B. and Q.; Gerard Swope, head of General Electric; Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors; W. A. Irvin, president of United States Steel, and President Gadsden, of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, all made speeches of congratulations, and they well might.

IT WAS TIME for railroads to do something, instead of merely moaning about automobile competition, and crying for relief, as stage coach owners did when the locomotive arrived.

Railroad rights of way, making any desired speed possible, with elimination of grade crossings, plus modern lightweight 150-mile-an-hour speed, will make motor omnibus competition impossible in speed and in cost of travel. "To California in 24 hours for 24 dollars" may come, without waiting for the airplane.

IF YOU WERE full of joy because France, England, Italy planned to disarm, be good, peaceful and save money, you may now return to our former state of uncertainty.

France says it is not time to talk of disarmament with Germany increasing her armaments, preparing for war in defiance of the Versailles treaty.

NEW YORK state plans to "liberalize" the parole law, making it possible to release hundreds of criminals. Mercy is beautiful, but the general desire was to get the criminal gentry into prison, rather than to plan for letting it out.

IN PHILADELPHIA fifty prominent women, led by Mrs. Babcock, are working on a "code" for domestic servants, cooks and maids It would limit work to sixty hours a week, pay $10 a week for servants "living in," $16 and $17 for those living out. There would be regular rest hours and two half days or one whole day off each week. Employers would stop stealing or "bootlegging" cooks from each other

Such wages would have seemed high in General Grant's time, when $12 a month was good pay. They will seem small to competent cooks and housemaids now.

DR. A. S. SMAHL sued the telephone company for calls he "never made" and did recover $5.40. To do it cost him $109. In England, where justice is managed differently, the doctor could have made a profit on his $5.40 recovery. We ought to find out how that is done.

The telephone company does not purposely make inaccurate charges, of course and perhaps wonders how much Dr. Smahl would willingly pay to get his telephone back if the service suddenly ceased. To doctors telephone service means more, for convenience and profit, than to any other profession. "Well, how is the little man today? That's nice keep him warm and continue the medicine." That and five cents for the call takes the place often of a five-mile round trip

IN THE SOUTH three hundred leaders of industry organize the "Southern Industrial Council," declaring that they cannot "go along" with NRA, if it tries to deprive them of their "differential," which means the right to pay wages in the south lower than those paid in the north.

"Secession" was mentioned by Theodore Swann, chemical manufacturer of Birmingham, who was applauded when he said:

"Sherman's march to the sea was no more destructive than the NRA is going to be to the south. Before it is over, we may have secession."

There will be no secession, for NRA is not important

The Mayor Using 'Whisky Speech' Illustration

MAYOR M'NAIR . , HIS ILLUSTRATION: A BOTTLE OF WHISKY

Mayor McNair pictured before the regional meeting of the W. C. T. U. in Pittsburgh today as he held forth a bottle of cheap whisky with this admonishment: "Don't open it unless you have a doctor handy. . . .you'll get a headache." This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

M'NAIR SNIFFS, HAS 'HANGOVER'

Mayor McNair had a headache today. He said he got the headache from sniffing, not drinking, a bottle of cheap whisky.

His Honor made this revelation at a luncheon of 300 delegates to a regional conference of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Hotel Schenley. His Honor spoke on one of his pet subjects, the state liquor stores. He waved a pint of stuff which he said he had confiscated at a Police Court hearing and went into his speech:

"I won't open it here. You'll get a headache. Everyone in the room would get a headache. If you want to take it home, don't open it unless you have a doctor handy. It's up to the women to fight and get the state out of this liquor business.

"Any of you women who will write to me volunteering to go with me, I'll go with them into restaurants and confiscate this stuff right off the shelves."

His Honor didn't stay for lunch. He strolled in and out alone. Strolling in he met Mrs. Ella A. Boole, international president of the union, and Mrs. Ella B. Black, state president, to whom he made this speech:

"I've been wanting to see you. I want you to look at this stuff. Do you want to get a headache? You want to smell it? (They didn't) . . . I smelled it this morning and I have a headache . . . This is what Pinchot is selling."

M'Nair Curbs Police Invasion of Homes

Because of complaints received, Mayor McNair today ordered the Police Department not to enter private dwellings without search warrants. The Mayor's order to Public Saftey Director Ralph E. Smith read:

"I hereby direct that an order be issued that no private dwellings be entered by police officers for a misdemeanor without first procuring a search warrant based upon affidavits sworn to by the complainants."

GIRL BATTLES WATCH THIEF

Agnes Brown, 25, of 1230 Monterey street, was preparing to leave for work today when she happened to return to her bedroom.

There stood a thin, undersized young man with Agnes' $60 wrist watch in his hand—the same young man, it appears who had rented a room there last night.

He dashed for the stairway. Agnes dashed for him. For 10 minutes, she said, she grappled with him, finally pushing him back into the bedroom and locking the door after she had recovered the watch.

She called North Side police.

McLeod Bill Supporters Gain by Foes' Tactics

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 20. — Efforts of leaders of the House of Representatives to prevent a vote on the McLeod bill providing for the payoff of depositors in closed banks today resulted in a boomerang which brought increased support to the proponents of the bill.

Congressmen are hearing from their constituents back home. Daily they receive hundreds of letters and telegraph messages demanding the legislation be enacted before Congress adjourns.

Representative Clarence J. McLeod (Rep.), author of the bill, today made the following statement:

"The obligation of the government to protect the interest of its citizens who were duped by patriotic appeals and left their money in tissue paper banks cannot be met by half way measures.

"The proposal for the re-appraisement of the aset of the closed banks is such a measure. It savors strongly of the efforts being made by House leaders to prevent the representatives of the American people from voting on a bill which has been before the House for more than two months and which, if enacted, would provide the impetus to push the recovery program to complete success.

"The closed banks' incubus cannot be removed from the backs of the American people until Congress meets the issue fairly and squarely, and demonstrates that this government is ready to keep faith with those who kept faith with it in the anti-hoarding campaign."

AUDIT SNAG CHARGED TO SCHNADER

Ex-Aide Reveals Row Following State's Insurance Suit

W. Clyde Grubbs, former State Assistant Attorney General, today revealed that he had resigned his post in 1931 because the Attorney General's department had blocked an independent audit of the affairs of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation.

Grubbs' charge as one repercussion following the filing of a suit to recover $5,000,000 from former directors of the surety company.

The suit, filed by the State Insurance Department in Common Pleas Court here, accused the directors of negligent and reckless administration of the corporation's affairs.

The bill of complaint declares that the defendants, many of them well-known businessmen:

AUDIT BLOCKED

Speaking of his demand for an independent audit of the corporation's affairs in 1931, Grubbs said today:

"Attorney General William A. Schnader wouldn't permit it. He said the department didn't have enough money at that time."

Grubbs declared that he resigned when his demand was turned down.

One allegation in the complaint against the former directors of the corporation charges that April 28, 1928, the defendants "wrongfully and recklessly" authorized or permitted the corporation to issue a financial statement purporting to show a paid in capital and surplus of $2,000,000. The complaint said:

"Said statement was in fact false, untrue and misleading."

OTHER CHARGES

BANK HEAD LINKED IN SHORTAGE

Ortale Faces Arrest As State Charges $107,000 Loss

The arrest of W. P. Ortale, president of the Bank of America Trust Company, on a charge of embezzlement was ordered this afternoon.

Ortale was charged with embezzling $106,700. The charge kas filed by W. E. Palmer, Jr., deputy state bank examiner.

The charge against Ortale was filed after directors of the bank, in the Chamber of Commerce Building, had announced the discovery of alleged irregularities involving more than $50,000.

Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, said:

"All deposits under $2,500 are guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the directors have agreed to gunarantee all deposits in excess of that amount."

WARRANT ISSUED

Information against the bank president was filed before Alderman A. M. Maloney. Immediately James P. McGinley, assistant chief of the county detectives, and Constable P. V. Lee, left to arrest Ortale, who was said to be in a relative's home in Mt. Lebanon.

Assistant District Attorney Harry R. Phillips said that he would ask bail of not less than $50,000 and possibly more. He said also that supplemental informations against Ortale would be filed after examiners have time to scrutinize more fully the bank's records.

BANK RESTRICTED

The bank was placed on a restricted basis under the provisions of the Sordoni act, which permits the institution to continue restricted operations pending the possibilities of a re-organization, Dr. Gordon said.

At the close of business last night, the bank had deposit liabilities of $1,157,000, of which amount $687,500 was United States

Kermit Roosevelt, Astor Accused of Lobbying

Black to Call Two Hosts of President On Recent Cruise

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 20. — Vincent Astor and Kermit Roosevelt, hosts to President Roosevelt aboard the Astor yacht Nourmahal, will be called before the Black Air Mail Committee to be examined about affairs of the International Mercantile Marine, Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, assured the Senate this afternoon. Young Roosevelt is a cousin of the President.

Black made the statement in answer to an inquiry from Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, who read a newspaper story charging Astor and young Roosevelt with lobbying with the President on I. M. M. matters during the recent cruise. The story stated I. M. M. officials sent radio messages to Kermit Roosevelt, telling him what to impress upon the President.

IGNORES QPESTION

Robinson first asked Black whether his committee had secured any of the message. Black ignored this question but agreed to call both Astor and Kermit Roosevelt and to let Robinson question them "on any subject."

Black said he realized efforts were being made to divert the in-

Britain Shows the Way

DISCONCERTING and ominous, the misdealers at Washington will find the British budget and the speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, made on its submission Tuesday to the House of Commons.

He announced, amid cheering and shouts of exultation, A SURPLUS of national revenue over expenditure; A REDUCTION OF THE INCOME TAX, and, notwithstanding such reduction and the lowering of other taxes, A RESTORATION of pay-cuts and unemployment insurance benefits to the pre-depression levels.

He furthermore declared—what everybody in the world knows except of course our American PLAY-BOYS of government at Washington—that "THE RELIEF, OF MOST DIRECT BENEFIT TO THE COUNTRY, WITH THE GREATEST PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT, AND IMPARTING THE MOST IMMEDIATE STIMULUS TO TRADE AND EMPLOYMENT, IS A REDUCTION IN THE STANDARD RATE OF THE INCOME TAX."

PLEASE REREAD this statement of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, made officially before Parliament.

Please reread it, oppressed and plundered citizens of the United States.

Please reread it, gentlemen of the brain-fag trust in Washington.

Not only in words such as these does the wise and experienced government of England recognize THE REPRESSIVE EFFECT UPON BUSINESS OF EXCESSIVE TAXES, but it puts its wisdom into action.

THE BUDGET IS STREWN WITH TAX REDUCTIONS dictated by the frank recognition that only by cutting down taxes can England stimulate production and promote the development of her export trade.

The REAL SURPLUS for the year the chancellor estimates at THIRTY-NINE MILLION POUNDS, which is now turned back to the people in the form of tax reductions.

ONE LONDON correspondent describes "budget day" as a FESTIVE OCCASION and speaks of the OVATION which the Chancellor of the Exchequer received.

WELL MAY ENGLAND REJOICE.

Marshal Insists Fake Bill Passer Knows About 'Snatch'

BOSTON, April 20.—(AP.)—Federal officials disclosed they were seeking an attractive blonde woman, who early this year accompanied William Lardner, Leavenworth inmate, to Boston when he attempted to pass a bogus $100 bill.

The woman was last seen outside a Boston hotel on the night of January 24 when Secret Service Agent John J. McGrath captured Lardner for passing the spurious currency.

Meanwhile, United States Marshal John J. Murphy reiterated his statement of yesterday that he believed Lardner knows a great deal about the Lindbergh kidnaping.

When he was arrested here Lardner demanded a hurried trial, but his case first was checked up and, as a result, it was discovered, authorities said, he had jumped $15,000 bail in Chicago while a charge of larceny of bonds was pending against him several years ago.

He finally was tried here in March, retracted a plea of not guilty, pleaded guilty and was given a three-year sentence.

Records of Lardner's arrests showed he was in or near New York at the time Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, Bronx educator, passed $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money to the purported kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 20. — (AP.) — William Lardner, Lindbergh kidnap suspect, is in solitary confinement at the federal penitentiary here.

Church Bells Ring On Hitler's Birthday

BERLIN, April 20. — (INS.) — Announcement of the gift of a month's vacation to all Nazi storm troopers, the ringing of church bells throughout the country, and an absence of all ostentatious celebration marked Germany's observance of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's 45th birthday today.

The church bells tolled at noon. At Hitler's own request, there were no parades, no pompous demonstrations.

MELLON WINS PENNSY POST

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Richard K. Mellon, president of the Mellon National Bank, of Pittsburgh, may serve as a director on the Pennsylvania Railroad without authorization of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission dimissed Mellon's application for such authorization when he amended his application to serve as a Pennsylvania Railroad director by restricting his service solely to the line and resigning from other railroad boards. Mellon will resign from the Norfolk and Western and the Ligonier Valley boards.

Youths to Face Pin Boy In Theft Blinding Boss

A pin boy in the Oakland bowling alley where George Stratigos, the proprietor, was blinded by three bandits in a $15 holdup, was to attempt to identify two suspected youths today.

The suspects were held over on vagrancy charges by Magistrate J. W. McGowan in Central Police Court on request of Detective Lieut. Edward O'Rourke. They were arrested last night, one on the North Side, the other in a lower Penn avenue rooming house.

O'Rourke said if the two were identified by the boy they would be taken to the Montefiore Hospital for "voice" identification by Stratigos.

Physicians said more time would be necessary to determine whether the sight of one eye could be saved for Stratigos, father of four children. The other eye is believed permanently blinded by slivers of glass which the bandits jabbed into his eyes when they held him up in his place of business.

ALUMINUM CO. LINKED IN MOVE TO DELAY POWER TREATY

SELFISH MOTIVE CHARGED BY N. Y. BOARD

St. Lawrence Project Fought by Utilities, Legislature Told

ALBANY, N. Y., April 20.—(AP.)—The State Power Authority in its annual report to the New York Legislature says the Aluminum Company of America "has a substantial interest" in a delayed St. Lawrence River water power treaty.

The Power Authority reported that St. Lawrence power should be able to save consumers $44,000,000 a year in electric rates. The Authority reported:

"The public records of the past year demonstrate that selfish special interests are working to thwart the policy of the state adopted by unanimous vote of the Legislature in 1931 and since advanced toward fulfillment by the consistent efforts of President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman."

"One group of private utility companies under the same financial control distributes more than 75 per cent of the electricity consumed in the state of New York, and another private corporation is today diverting 25,000 cubic second feet from the St. Lawrence for its private use and profit.

'The trustees call the attention of the Legislature to the fact that the Aluminum Company of America has a substantial interest in perpetuating the present diversion at Massena through delay of the public development of St. Lawrence power under a treaty with Canada."

The authority said there was a prospect that the St. Lawrence treaty might be ratified by January, 1935.

INSULL NAMED IN POWER QUIZ

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The name of Samuel Insull, now being brought back from Turkey to face indictments in Chicago following the collapse of his utilities empire, again rang out in the Federal Trade Commission's hearing room today.

Examiner John H. Bass, in reporting on the organization and financial setup of the Peabody Coal Co., of Illinois, told the commissioners the Insull utilities bought their coal at prices higher than the market rate during 1930-32 and used these costs in computing consumers' power rates.

Bass also brought out that the Commonwealth Subsidiary Corporation, an Insull property, owned the Chicago and Illinois Midland railroad, operating between Taylorsville and Pekin, Ill., a branch line outlet to main trunk lines. He observed:

"Thus the combination of railroads, utilities and coal mines forms a very compact unit—one that has the power and tendency to interrupt the normal flow of commerce."

CELLS PLANNED FOR UNRULY

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 20.—Construction of an isolation cell block at Graterford prison in Montgomery County was approved today by Gov. Gifford Pinchot. The block will be used to house unruly prisoners.

Inmate prison labor will do all the work of building the new cell block, which is to be completed within two months. Ultimately it will house 40 prisoners although at present only 30 convict cells will be completed. The cost will be $32,000.

Before deciding to build the Graterford cell block, consideration was given to the feasibility of rebuilding the so-called Klondike cell block at Cherry Hill, the Governor said. This could not have been done without building what the Executive termed "a sort of dungeon."

enough to justify that. Besides, as one Southern manufacturer remarked at the meeting:

"Secession would take away 80 per cent of our markets."

It is difficult to make over an industrial system or anything else that represents the slow processes and growth of time.

It would have been interesting to study the effect of Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson's eloquence on Mexicans, particularly on those of Indian ancestry understanding no English. Many things that Mrs. McPherson says would puzzle those Mexicans, even if they did understand English.

MILLEN GIRL'S FATE DEBATED

By DAVID P. SENTNER

International News Service.

DEDHAM, Mass., April 20.—The fate of 19-year-old Norma Brighton Millen, minister's daughter, romantic figure in the story of three youths, who allegedly went in for scientific crime, today dominated the murder trial of her husband, Murton Millen, his brother, Irving, and Abe Faber.

The crowds were larger outside the jail, where she awaits her turn in the courtroom on the charge of accessory after the fact, than were those which gathered around the courthouse.

The jury was expected to be completed today at the trial of the Millens and Faber on the charge of killing a policeman in a holdup.

The major item of gossip was over the possibility of Norma being admitted to bail. It appeared unlikely she would be bailed out before her own trial.

George Douglas, her attorney, is set against her leaving jail at present. If Norma were out on bail she would be subject to subpena as a witness for the prosecution.

JURY RULED OUT IN 'BOOP' CASE

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—Helen Kane's effort to have a jury determine whether "Betty Boop," of the animated cartoons, is caricature of her, failed in Supreme Court today.

Miss Kane, who claims to have originated the "Boop-Boop-a-Doop" style of singing, is seeking $250,000 damages from Max Fleischer, artist; the Fleischer Studios, Inc., and the Paramount Publix Corporation on the ground that the "Betty Boop" movies are based on her song style and personality. The case is being heard by Justice McGoldrick.

In requesting a jury trial, counsel for Miss Kane today expressed belief the court would be aided in deciding whether the defendants had led movie audiences to believe that Miss Kane sang in the animated films.

Although Justice McGoldrick denied the application, he indicated he would impanel a jury to assess damages if he rules in favor of the plaintiff.

Mexico Executes 24 in Death Plot

PUERTO, Mexico, April 20.—(INS.)—Twenty-four persons were executed today in the village of Tenoisque, State of Tabasco, according to a dispatch to the local newspaper El Observador.

The victims, all of whom were shot to death by a firing squad, were suspected of complicity in a plot which resulted in the assissination of the village mayor.

Children Named In Father's Will

The will of Frank Paga, Downing street, filed today provides:

The estate estimated at $3,000 is bequeathed to Maryanna, Joseph, John and Antonio Paga and Mrs. Anna Chmielowski.

Industry Loans Win Approval Of Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP.)—Presidential sanction for direct Federal Reserve Bank loans to industry and Senate Committee approval of the Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange control bill dominated today's usual maxe of Washington activities.

Friends of the market regulation measure, on which the committee vote was 11 to 8, said it had teeth aplenty. Much legislative dentistry will be attempted, however, before Senate and House join in sending it to the White House.

It was there that Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, disclosed President Roosevelt had indorsed his Federal Reserve industrial lending bill for quick action. His conference with the Executive was one of several undertaken to simplify the legislation situation and speed adjournment.

Another topic was the Wagner labor board bill. As for silver, it looked more as though the President was set against mandatory remonetization, but planned an international conference approach toward boosting value of the metal.

The close vote by which the stock exchange bill was finally approved was in line with the sharply divided committee sentiment which has resulted in half a dozen revisions. With President Roosevelt's support, early consideration of the bill in the Senate was assured.

Meanwhile, the House Interstate Commerce Committee approved the section in the regulation bill outlining the legislation's policy, which was tricken out by the Senate Banking Committee.

The declaration of policy is designed to meet the question of constitutionality and outlines the purpose of the legislation as intended to protect investors and national credit for speculative influences.

BOSS RULE NEAR END FOR CURRY

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—The end of the Tammany trail rose up today before John F. Curry, patriarch of political bosses.

The Tammany executive committee was summoned into session to act on a motion to depose Curry as chieftain, leaving his place temporarily vacant.

His shoulders back and his head still high, Curry fought the ouster motion to the end. His friends said he would attend the meeting.

The insurgents met yesterday to complete their plans for the overthrow of Curry.

Although they claimed at least 16 of the 25 votes, held by the 70 men and women district leaders, members of the committee, the Curry factions hoped for last minute defections to its ranks.

Army Pilot Misses Injury in Crash

TOLEDO, O., April 20.—(AP.)—An Army bombing plane, flying from Cleveland to Chicago, was damaged last night at the Toledo Transcontinental Airport, when a signalling mechanism in the ship failed to indicate that its gear was not in position for landing.

The pilot, Lieut. Merl Estes, chose the field for landing after motor trouble developed. He was not injured.

7-HOUR DAY DUE FOR ALL SOFT COAL MINES

Roosevelt Aid Sought To End Strike in West Virginia

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The 7-hour day will be a uniform regulation for the entire bituminous coal industry before midnight, Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson declared today following all-night sessions with coal code authority and recalcitrant southern operators.

The 7-hour day, ordered by Johnson two weeks ago, "has met with the approval of almost the entire industry," the Administrator declared as he indicated the promulgation would be issued late today.

CITES OPPOSITION

Johnson said:

"Alabama, Western Kentucky and the Fairmont smokeless region of West Virginia maintain their objection but I cannot see how these isolated districts can compel the entire industry to get into step with them.

"I see little merit in the arguments of the West Virginia smokeless crowd. Western Kentucky, Illinois and Indiana have not presented a strong case. That leaves only Alabama to be seriously considered. These operators may have a legitimate demand for exemption of the 7-hour day provision and the new schedules of increased wages, but so far I have not been convinced

"I am assured we will have the entire industry in line before midnight, in spite of the complicated legal situation in the federal courts at Birmingham."

PLEA TO ROOSEVELT

Meanwhile, an appeal by Gov. Kump, of West Virginia, to the White House for intervention to end the strike in Northern West Virginia coal fields where 20,000 miners are idle was in prospect.

No decision having been given by Recovery Administrator Johnson on the operators' appeal from his order eliminating a 24-cent wage differential over the Pittsburgh district, Kump indicated he will go directly to the President with a plea that something be done to get the mines started to work again.

The NRA administrator was visited by J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and Charles O'Neill, spokesman for Central Pennsylvania coal producers. Both declined to discuss the object of their mission, but it was believed they conferred with Johnson on what action he proposes in regard to the Northern West Virginia operators' protest against elimination of the wage differential.

The general impression was that Johnson is attempting to effect a settlement with the Alabama operators first because their flat refusal to comply with the administration's wage order has been followed by a strike of about 21,000 miners, several shootings and disorders which brought out National Guardsmen.

Roosevelt Gets Bill To Aid Mail Workers

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP.)—The House yesterday passed and sent to the President a bill to require that postal substitutes must be employed at least 100 hours a month.

Passed by the House last session, the bill then called for a minimum pay of $15 a week, but the Senate substituted the hours provision.

CODE VIOLATION CHARGES FAIL —JOHNSON

Chief Denies Move to Censor Radio or Newspapers

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson told newspaper editors today that no charges of NRA code violation brought against large manufacturers had developed a case that would stand up in the courts.

Addressing the convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, he said their help would speed accomplishment of NRA objectives.

Johnson said frequent reports in the "opposition" press asked why some drastic action was not taken against some conspicuous firm alleged to be violating an NRA code. Johnson said:

"On reference to the Federal Trade Commission, or to our legal department, or to the Attorney General, we haven't any case against a large manufacturer that would stand up in the courts. Some are skating pretty close to the line."

PLEA FOR SUPPORT

Johnson told the editors that "if you help, the objective of NRA will be more quickly achieved." He added:

"But if you hang around like vultures and swoop down on every mistake, it will take longer."

"I would like to have your cooperation because I think the national recovery program inaugurated by President Roosevelt is the only way to get the country out of the economic depression. And if you think we are out of our difficulties, you are very much mistaken.

"We have been accused of a diabolical desire to impose a censorship on the press and the radio. Considering the articles and speeches in opposition to the President's program we certainly have made the poorest kind of mess, if control of the agencies of publicity was one of our objects.

NEWSPAPER CODE

"As a matter of fact, the constitutional prohibition against interference with the press has been taken into account with every draft of the newspaper code since the first appearance of the publishers committee in the matter. We might as well have put in the Ten Commandments and probably would have done so had the newspaper committee requested a positive re-assertion of the Decalogue."

After reading from notes Johnson invited questions and Arthur J. Sinnott, of the Newark Evening News, said:

"Our main kick is that you are shooting too fast, it makes us all dizzy.

"It seems like you'he trying to get a heaven on earth—a code for this and a code for that. I didn't know newspapers were sweat shops."

NOT 'SWEATSHOPS'

Johnson said "nobody" had called newspapers a sweatship but confessed to a "maladroitness of expression" in connection with the newspaper code.

When Sinnott suggested that the NRA could have found more acute problems in other lines without taking in newspapers so quickly, Johnson said it had early proved necessary to cover industries as rapidly as possible since they all compete for labor.

Johnson denied reports of censorship on NRA publicity. He said it had been found necessary to channel news through a publicity department.

CHANGE LEGEND ON BLUE EAGLE

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP.)—A new blue eagle will stretch its wings by May 1.

Three million cards and as many explanatory letters were ready today for dispatch to prospective applicants for the new NRA emblem, which will identify holders by code and a registration number.

"We do our part."

Compliance pledges will not be required of persons or firms displaying the new insignia. This, it was understood, is by reason of an official belief that many employers might refuse to apply for the eagles if asked to give promises that appeared to them to take away some of their constitutional rights.

Establishments not yet under code may display the old blue eagle under an extension ordered yesterday for the President's reemployment agreement.

CLERICS DIVIDE JEWISH HONOR

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—"The American who did most for Jewry in 1933" is three men—a minister, a priest and a rabbi.

The three, the Rev. Everett R. Clinchy, of New York City; Father J. Elliott Ross, of Charlottesville, Va., and Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron, of Baltimore, will receive the Gottheil medal, cast in triplicate, the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity announced today.

The medal usually goes to one man adjudged winner of the title. The three men won it by virtue of a pilgrimage trip, on which they advocated understanding among Catholics, Jews and Protestants in America. They visited 38 cities.

quiry from ocean and airmail contracts. He said these efforts were designed for the purpose of "protecting contractors." He added:

"But the International Mercantile Marine is going to be investigated by my committee. I don't intend to permit any delay. We shall summon the shipping interests and I hope to be able to do it next week."

AIR MAIL BILLS UP

The Senate debate, promising to continue for several days, was concerned with the McKellar-Black air mail bill, which bars holders of canceled contracts from competing for future awards. Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, planned to offer and amendment to limit duration of the legislation to one year and to procide a commission of five members to study future regulations.

On the Republican side, Senator Austin, of Vermont, planned an amendment to restore the nullified contracts, while still another amendment to award contracts on a train-mail basis by the pound, with past contract holders eligible to compete, was drafted by Senator McCarran (Dem.), of Nevada. McCarran's plan also would create a five-man commission.

Low Bids for Aair Mail Surprise Farley Crowd

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP.)—Spectators whistled in surprise when Postmaster General Farley ripped open the envelopes and read the bids today for carrying air mail on the 21 routes the government intends to place in private hands for at least the next three months.

Some of the companies bid as low as 19 cents an airplane mile in offering to fly the mails. The maximum range stipulated in the specifications was from 41 to 45 cents per airplane mile.

The small room where the bids were opened was jammed with Postoffice and Justice Department officials and aviation men.

Postal officials said they understood virtually all of the 12 companies whose contracts were canceled had reorganized and submitted bids.

SUITS ON FILE

Four other subsidiaries of the same corporation—Boeing Air Transport, Inc., National Air Transport, Inc., Pacific Air Transport and Varney Airlines, Inc.—have filed suits in the District of Columbia Supreme Court for permanent injunctions to restrain Postmaster General Farley from enforcing his cancellation ukase.

Transcontinental and Western Air, the line with which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is connected, has reorganized and bid. Its petition for an injunction against Farley was denied in New York shortly after the annulment of contracts.

American Airlines, formerly American Airways, controlled in part by E. L. Cord, also is seeking a contract. Paul Braniff, independent operator, and a recent witness before the Senate air mail investigating committee, has entered a bid for Braniff Airways.

TABULATION OF BIDS

Newark, N. J., to New Orleans, via Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, Greeneboro, N. C., Charlotte, S. C., Spartansburg, S. C., Greenville, S. C., Atlanta, Ga., Birmingham, Ala., Montgomery, Ala., and Mobile, Ala.; maximum 44 cents per airplane mile—Eastern Air Lines, Inc., 19 cents; RAmerican Air Lines, 39½ cents.

Washington to Detroit, via Pittsburgh, Akron, Cleveland; maximum 44 cents—Central Air Lines, 23.8 cents; Pennsylvania Air Lines and Transport Company, 28 cents; American Air Lines, Inc., 39½ cents.

Newark, N. J., to Kansas City, Mo., via Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Indianapolis, Terre Haute, St. Louis, maximum 44 cents—Central Air Lines, Inc., 36 cents; Transcontinental and Western Air, 24 cents. American Airlines bid 39½ cents and TWA 24 cents on the Transcontinental route from Newark to Los Angeles, of which the Newark to Kansas City run is a portion.

WIFE MUM ON VAST RICHES, DR. M'CREADY TELLS COURT

KEPT ACCOUNTS SECRET, HE DECLARES

Aged Physician Faces Grilling in Fight For Estate

Efforts were being made today to show that Dr. R. J. McCready, aged Sewickley physician, who elected to take against the will of his wife, Matilda McCready, notwithstanding an ante-nuptial agreement that he would not claim any portion of her estate, must have known she was a woman of great wealth. He avers she concealed the facts.

Dr. McCready was cross-examined yesterday for several hours by Attorney W. A. Wilson, representing the executors and trustees of the $1,509,797 estate, which goes chiefly to charity, regarding payments of approximately $78,000 made to the doctor by his wife from shortly before their marriage until her death last year.

WEALTH UNREVEALED

Dr. McCready denied he knew the extent of Mrs. McCready's wealth, and testified:

"I had no knowledge of the value of her property at the time of our marriage. The first I knew was when the inventory of her estate was filed. She kept her own books, would let no one else see them and kept her business to herself."

Attorney Wilson sought to develop that when Dr. McCready was given so much money, it must have occurred to him she was a woman of means.

Dr. McCready admitted his wife had paid off two collateral notes on a North Side bank for him, but that he had given her notes for this aid

SON ON STAND

Dr. E. Bosworth McCready, a son of the contestant, substantiated his father's statements regarding the inroads on his father's time, which Mrs. McCready demanded because of the condition of her health and those of relatives.

The last witness of the day, Mrs. Schreiber, of Crafton, who was formerly employed by Dr. McCready in his office, testified that Mrs. McCready told her that if Dr. McCready died first she would dispose of his estate. The doctor testified this was worth around $50,000 at his marriage.

BARES TRYSTS BY BEAUTY

PAWHUSKA, Okla., April 20.—(AP.) — Thomas Gilcrease, Jr., testifying in his father's suit for divorce from Norma Smallwood Gilcrease, winner of the 1926 Atlantic City beauty contest, said his young stepmother had spent much time painting a portrait of Charlton Genet, of Tulsa, behind locked doors. The young man said:

"I tried often to get into the studio and found the door locked. The blinds were drawn, too.

"After two or three minutes I would be admitted and find Norma and Charlton inside. She was painting his portrait at the time."

Gilcrease, about 20 years old, told of attending beer and gin parties with Mrs. Gilcrease and Genet, who is the son of a pioneer Tulsa business man.

Mrs. Jeannie Gilcrease, wife of Barton Gilcrease, another son of the defendant by an earlier marriage, testified that one night at her home she left Norma and Genet lying on a quilt on the front porch, and that next morning the two came in to awaken her and her husband.

'I Was Shot by Accident'

MRS. MILDRED SIMONSON, 23 . . . . . . HELD FOR COURT.

Mrs. Simonson, pictured today at the police court hearing at which she and Louis Ferraro, 21, were held for court. She testified —and he did, too—that it was an accident that she had been shot in her Rodman street apartment. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

DENY LOVE ROW IN SHOOTING

What police had described as a "love spat" shooting was testified to having been accidental by the two principals and a third witness in Morals Court today.

Louis Ferraro, 21, of 228 Omega street, son of a night club proprietor, and Mrs. Mildred Simonson, 23, of 6021 Rodman street, discharged yesterday from the Pittsburgh hospital, were held for court on a morality charge. Ferraro also was held on charges of violating the firearms act and felonious assault and battery.

Mrs. Simonson had ascribed the shooting to a quarrel, when questioned in the hospital, police had reported. She was wounded in the left leg.

Mary Mammay, 18, a witness, also testified the shooting was accidental. She was turned over to Juvenile Court.

Doctor, Nurse Held For Aiding Dillinger

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 20.—(Universal.)—Dr. Clayton E. May and a nurse, Mrs. Gurniath La Delle, were held in bonds of $50,000 each after they pleaded not guilty yesterday to charges of harboring John Dillinger.

According to federal investigators, Dr. May treated the fugitive desperado for wounds received March 31 in a gun battle with police.

Baby Princess Knows All About Sea Monsters

The Duke of York, speaking at a dinner last night, said his three-year-old daughter was looking at her fairy-tale book when she came across the picture of a dragon.

The baby princess turned to her mother, the Duchess of York, and said:

Pastor Ousted in Row Over 'Soviet' Murals

SEATTLE, April 20.—(AP.)—The "battle of the murals" at the fashionable Pilgrim Congregational Church came to a climax today with the expulsion of its pastor, the Rev. Fred W. Shorter.

The congregation voted, 171 to 121, last night to remove the pastor, who announced that he would start a new church where he may preach "liberal, militant Christianity and the brotherhood of man."

Seven murals in a church room representing such subjects as Nazis crucifying a Jew upon a swastika and Soviet farmers prospering while American farmers in rags plowed under their crops, provoked the controversy. The clergyman declared:

"Art and religion both should be revolutionary. A static religion means a dead church."

The murals were done by members of the church art class. Mr. Shorter said in a statement:

"Many ministers become too sentimental and diplomatic to avoid offending the money in the congregation. I'm not sentimental any more. A living christianity is a practical matter, and I'm going to keep on fighting for it."

Mr. Shorter declared that church revenues dwindle when pro-capitalistic members are offended.

"In two years my salary has diminished more than half. But an increasing membership indicates whether people are interested in practical christianity."

BUS 'KIDNAPERS' CITY SLEUTHS

The "mysterious abduction" of a young man from an interstate bus in Mt. Lebanon by four armed men Wednesday night had been cleared today with the arrest of two bandit suspects.

The four armed men were city detectives and the "abduction" victim was Robert W. Orga, 18, of 262 Fisk street, sought in connection with a series of holdups, the sleuths said. They explained the "kidnaping" after arresting a second man, who was docketed as Ralph Kincaid, 22, of East Prospect avenue, Ingram.

The report of Orga's arrest was withheld because of the search for Kincaid.

The search was instituted following the capture on the North Side several weeks ago of William Isett, whose alleged accomplice, William Mahoney, was returned here from Wilmington, Del.

ELY RAPS RULE ON SUIT BY DOWNES

Culbertson to Change Bridge Expert Name To Throttlebottom

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—Ely Culbertson may continue publishing a "self-teacher" on contract bridge which in form and appearance resembles the "self-teacher" previously published by E. Hall Downes, of Pittsburgh, a Supreme Court referee has ruled, but he should stop calling it the "only authorized" version of the approach-forcing or Culbertson system.

At the same time Downes is authorized to continue designating his book by the sub-title, "Approach-Forcing, Commonly Called Culbertson System," but the referee held he is not entitled to any damages resulting from the publication of Culbertson's book.

CULBERTSON REVENGE

Culbertson said of the opinion:

"My lawyers tell me that the decision is a brilliant victory for me because I can continue to use the name Culbertson and do not have to pay any damages or royalties to anyone for this privilege, although anybody else can also use it.

"This is all very flattering, but I am considering changing my name for my future bridge publications to Mr. Erasmus Throttlebottom and registering my system as the Throttlebottom System. In this way at least I may have some rights and the millions of Culbertson system players will be spared a lot of balderdash and mangled versions by various 'authorities' on the Culbertson system."

DOWNES' CHARGES

The opinion was handed down yesterday by Supreme Court Referee Harry D. Nims in an action brought by Downes to restrain Culbertson from "unfair competition." Downes contended the phrase, "self-teacher," was his own trademark.

The legal controversy resulted from the publication two years ago of a book written by Downes called "Contract Bridge Self-Teacher — Approach-Forcing, Commonly Called Culbertson System," and the subsequent publication by Culbertson of "Culbertson's Own Contract Self-Teacher, by Ely Culbertson Himself."

Downes sued, contending Culbertson's published statements that his own book was the "only authorized Culbertson's self-teacher" and his published threats of legal action against Downes constituted unfair competition.

Home Folks Ask Mercy for Dillinger

Desperado Seen As 'Robin Hood' By Neighbors

CHICAGO, April 2.—(AP.)—John Dillinger may be poison to society in general, but in his home town of Mooresville, Ind., he's just a modern Robin Hood on a spree.

Down in Mooresville John Roe was circulating a petition requesting Gov. Paul V. McNutt to grant amnesty to the desperado whose wooden gun flight March 3 from the Crown Point (Ind.) jail left a trail of blood and political repercussions that have shocked the nation.

Many of Dillinger's home-town acquaintances are reported to have signed the petition, which alleges that America's Public Enemy No. 1 didn't get a square deal when he was convicted and sentenced to prison back in 1924 for robbing a grocer.

Dillinger is not the bold, bad desperado he has been pictured, the amnesty petition says, adding:

"He has never manifested a vicious, revengeful or a bloodthirsty disposition."

It says that the plan to quit bothering him would not only prevent bloodshed in his capture, but would give the state of Indiana something to be proud of by the "generous helping hand she had extended to her prodigol son."

Old John Dillinger, Sr., father of the here today and gone tomorrow fugitive, was little short of elated when he heard that the home town folks were sticking by his erring son. His idea about it was that John would make a good policeman, if he surrendered and was permitted to rejoin society.

Father Says Bandit Would Make Good Policeman

All the talk about making life easier for Dillinger came to the fore yesterday about the time that it was reported a limping bandit, believed to have been Dillinger, with the assistance of three helpers, raided the Pana, Illinois, National Bank for $27,629.

The amnesty talk also coincided with a report that Dillinger was believed to have been the author of a threat to kill Gov. George White, of Ohio, unless he pardons Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley, sentenced to die for slaying Sheriff Jess L. Sarber when Dillinger was snatched from the Lima (O.) jail by his gang last October. The Governor, however, said he was not alarmed.

Watchman Found Dazed and Injured

Found in a dazed condition at Fifth and Shady avenues last night, according to police, Gilbert Deacon, 33, of 104 Wabash street, West End, was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital suffering from an eye and jaw injury.

Deacon is a watchman at the new Chrysler Building, Baum boulevard and Roup street. He was unable to tell how he received his injuries.

FLIERS TO MAP VAST FOREST

Two Pittsburgh fliers were to hop from Butler Airport today to begin a vast government aerial survey.

Russell P. Hay, of the Aerial Surveys of Pittsburgh, will do the mapping. Norman Uttenweiler is the pilot. Hay's German police dog, Erich, will go along on the flights.

The pair is to map 2,000 square miles of national forest in Kentucky and Tennessee for the forestry service of the Department of Agriculture.

The work is mostly over the Kentucky mountains and the Big Smokies in Tennessee, which reach elevations of more than 6,000 feet. The general terrain in Kentucky is rock canyon.

The two nearest landing fields in the territory to be covered are at Lexington, Ky., and Knoxville, Tenn., about 75 miles apart. There is no available landing ground between except a golf course at Sterns, Ky., where the fliers will make their base.

The aviators will do most of their work at an altitude of 20,000 feet, or approximately four miles. This, Hay said, will necessitate the use of oxygen.

Auto Strikes Girl In West Homestead

Anna Barrett, 23, of 312 Walnut street, West Homestead, suffered lacerations when she was struck by an automobile while crossing a street near her home today. The driver, Edward Lesko, 128 Eighteenth street, Munhall, took her to the Homestead Hospital. He was arrested.

'Reconciliation Party' Fails, Star Divorced

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—(AP.)—Telling a story of ill-treatment and quarrels during two years of married life, Sidney Fox, diminutive brunette movie actress, obtained a divorce from Charles Beahan, scenario writer, in Superior Court.

She said they separated some months ago, were reconciled and held a "reconciliation party" to celebrate, but Beahan became intoxicated and called her names before their friends. She testified:

"He used vile—oh, very vile—language."

She said Beahan became intoxicated again at a tennis party last February 18, and was argumentative. She persuaded him to go for a ride to Malibu Beach, she testified, but on the trip he continued to quarrel, called her names and finally shook her. The court asked,

"Did you leave him, or did he leave you?"

300 STUDENTS HURL DEFI IN STRIKE

March on Politician's Home, Shout for Ousted Principal

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 20.—Three hundred high school students today refused to end their strike and instead staged a noisy parade in which they shouted their demands that their dismissed principal, J. D. Shaner, be rehired.

They marched out of North Union Township High School yesterday. Last night Shaner announced that he had talked with the students and he anticipated they would return to classes today.

PLAN PARADE

But they didn't. The 300—half of the student body—gathered banners and started on a march to the home of Asa Martin, influential politician and tax collector, at Coolspring Hollow. Martin's brother-in-law, Robert Clark, has been chosen by the school directors to succeed the popular Shaner.

Outside Martin's home they planned to announce in no uncertain terms just how they felt about the whole matter.

Then they said they'd parade Uniontown's downtown streets.

MAY PICKET SCHOOL

None of the strikers is a member of the senior class, which is shortly to be graduated. James R. Cupp, of the junior class, was named "representative-in-chief" by the striking students. Cupp declared that "this is an educational strike" and promised to tell the tax payers "a thing or two."

GIRARD, Pa., April 20.—(AP.)—Striking students, aroused by the displacement of their principal, today considered throwing picket lines around the Girard High School.

Approximately 250 pupils walked out yesterday protesting the school board's action in hiring J. White, of Albion, to replace Principal W. H. Briggs.

ESCAPES MOB, MAN INDICTED

SHEREVEPORT, La., April 20—(AP.)—Within one hour and twenty minutes after being impaneled the Caddo Parish grand jury today returned two indictments, one charging murder and the other criminal assault, against Fred Lockhart, 38-year-old itinerant salesman, who confessed to attacking and slaying 16-year-old Mae Giffin, after luring the girl away from her home.

Both offenses charged in the indictments are punishable by death.

Lockhart, saved three days from death at the hands of an infuriated mob, identified himself today as a participant in the startling Leo Frank lynching in Georgia in 1915.

Leo Frank, a young man and a college graduate, whose home was at Brooklyn, N. Y., was lynched August 17, 1915, after his death sentence for the slaying of Mary Phagan had been commuted to life imprisonment.

Lockhart said he was a member of the mob which battered its way into the Milledgeville Prison to get Frank. The mob took Frank to Marietta in order to hang him near Mary Phagan's grave.

STRAY LUGGAGE YIELDS GEMS

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 20.—(AP.)—A black suitcase containing, among other things, jewelry estimated by police to be worth several thousand dollars, was estranged from its owner today.

Documents and a bank book of the Fidelity Trust Company of Pittsburgh, found in the bag, bore the name of Sara Sang, 409 Penbrooke road, Bala, Pa., and St. Petersburg, Fla.

The suitcase was found by Carnello Colletti, of Los Angeles, among his baggage yesterday when he arrived in Brooklyn after a Mediterranean cruise. The suitcase had been picked up by mistake by a taximan at the pier, Colletti said.

He turned it over to the police, who found in it 28 pieces of jewelry including a number of necklaces, a gold corkscrew, a package containing 12 pearls and a small wicker basket full of miniature glass dogs.

It also held a will disposing of more than $1,000,000 worth of property, and women's wearing apparel.

AUDIT BLOCKED BY SCHNADER, GRUBBS SAYS

received and made available to the corporation.

Another charge was that the defendants "negligently permitted" the corporation to guarantee payment of principal and interest of outstanding bonds of the First National Company, of Baltimore, in excess of $3,000,000, when the First National Company was in serious financial difficulties.

This was done, the complaint said, "in complete disregard of the interests of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation and in violation of every standard of ordinary care and prudence."

HISTORY CITED

Two million dollars' worth of these securities, the complaint avers, consisted of so-called Chicago Tampa mortgage bonds, "secured by speculative Florida land development."

The complaint went on to cite a history of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation. It was formed on March 28, 1928, taking over the contract obligations and business of the Republic Casualty Company.

The directors of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation had been directors of the Republic Casualty Company, the complaint avers, and it set forth that the latter company was insolvent in 1927 and had a deficit of $1,164,625.17.

AGREE ON PLAN

In February, 1928, the officers of the Republic Casualty Company agreed upon a plan with the First National Company for liquidation of the Republic company and formation of the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation, the complaint avers.

The directors of the new corporation negligently permitted the corporation to expend $630,000 for purchase of securities owned or issued by the First National Company, the complaint charges. It adds:

The complaint went ont

"From time to time until January 14, 1931, when said corporation was dissolved, the Pennsylvania Surety Corporation made other purchases of securities of a similar character, all said purchases being in the interest of the First National Company."

DEFENDANTS NAMED

The defendants named in the suit are:

H. T. Aufderheide, banker; C. A. Bardolph, president of the defunct Franklin Savings and Trust Company; Walter J. Curley, tank car and oil company official; John M. Freeman, bank director; Edwin Hodge, Jr., corporation director; E. M. Love, coal and coke executive; F. E. Markell, former banker; Herbert A. May, corporation official; Harry W. Nethkin, railroad official; Benjamin D. Phillips, gas and oil official; Joseph T. Riffle, contractor; W. H. Robinson, retired executive; W. C. Rice, Albert D. Reynolds, H. C. Ward, J. W. Ward, the estate of George T. Kirkbride, the estate of S. C. Martin and the estate of H. H. Patterson.

United States. But she is not yet technically in default and has not seen fit as yet to ignore her debts to this country, after the fashion of France, now sunk in disrepute.

But we do not desire, by stressing her debt in this connection, to mar Great Britain's justified pride in her genuine and solid progress toward recovery.

That she has made STRIKING PROGRESS CANNOT BE GAINSAID and her progress has been along lines of SANITY, SOBRIETY AND SOUND ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL PRINCIPLES. She has kept her head when all about her have been losing theirs.

AS A REWARD she can now make the truthful claim that she has recovered her primacy as an exporting nation; that she has practically conquered unemployment; that she has kept her budget in balance; that she has reduced the tax burden of her people and enlarged the liberality of her treatment of the aged, the infirm and the unemployed. THIS IS A RECORD OF GREAT ACHIEVEMENT!

AND WHAT A CONTRAST TO THE BEDLAM OF OUR AFFAIRS!

Comparing the British surplus with the sorry condition of our own budget, the British chancellor estimated the American deficit at 1,416,000,000 POUNDS, something like seven thousand million dollars.

He probably knows quite as much about the size of our deficit as we do. His estimate is probably more accurate than any to be obtained from Washington.

He compares his surplus with the Japanese deficit of 46,000,000 pounds and with the Italian and French deficits of approximately 75,000,000 pounds.

CONCLUDING this heartening survey of the past year, he turned his gaze ahead.

"I look forward," said he, "confidently to further progress in the same direction during the new financial year."

PAGE THE BRAIN TRUST!

Page all the "Youth's Companion" lawyers, the frankfurter Socialists and bill drafters, the Richberg revolutionaries, the Tugwell regimenters, the NRA crack-downers, the "abundant lifers" and the new mis-dealers!

What do you propose to do about this heretical stuff which is coming out of England?

Has the New Deal omitted to provide code authorities for the hard workers, and the careful spenders and the frugal savers? Have the regimenters overlooked the multiplication table?

Is the old and time-tested wisdom of the race to be allowed to discredit the "new economics" and make "happy days" look like thirty cents?

HOW COMES IT that a nation can outstrip us in every field of current endeavor, wrest from us our position as the leading exporter of the world, beat us in the fight against unemployment, leave us far behind in the race for recovery—WITHOUT ABANDONING ITS DEMOCRACY; WITHOUT devouring private credit to support public borrowing; WITHOUT burying business initiative under an avalanche of unjust and confiscatory taxes; WITHOUT turning over the key positions of government to Boy Scouts; WITHOUT taxing its business to death, and WITHOUT sending its merchants to jail for code violations nobody understands, not even the courts?

HOW THE MOTLEY BROOD, ASSEMBLED IN WASHINGTON, WILL SCAMPER WHEN THE SANITY OF AMERICA ONCE MORE BEGINS TO SPEAK!

INDICT DRIVERS IN BUS CRASH

ELYRIA, O., April 20.—(AP.)—Two drivers were indicted for manslaughter yesterday by the Lorain County grand jury after 16 witnesses had testified concerning the collision of a Nevins Western Lines bus and a truck near here early Sunday in which six persons were killed.

The indictments named William Daniels, 32, the bus driver, and Andrew W. Schaffer, 42, of Norwalk, whose truck, witnesses have said, was parked in the highway at the scene of the accident.

Both accused men have pleaded not guilty to manslaughter charges preferred previously by Sheriff Clarence W. Dick, of Lorain County. They will be arraigned Monday. Schaffer has denied that his truck reached the scene until after the accident.

GUM BAND CLUE IN TODD DEATH

NORWALK, Conn., April 20.—(AP.)—An elastic band was made the cornerstone last night for a new police theory in the Arthur Todd mystery.

At the same time, investigators revived the woman angle in the case, but did not disclose whether this was the result of some new clue.

Putting together the rubber band clue and the woman angle, officials suggested the possibility that Todd was robbed after he drowned in Long Island Sound.

The band was found on a table in the Todd home, together with evidence indicating that he may have entertained guests last Thursday night just before his death.

Investigators said Todd may have become ill and gone for a short walk with a woman. After he jumped, fell or was pushed into the water, police believe it possible Todd's home was searched and his money discovered, bound in a roll by the elastic.

REDS IN 2 RIOTS IN N. Y. AREA

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Communists and anti-Communists alike were being carefully watched by police today as a result of two near riots in the metropolitan area last night.

In Orange, N. J., 11 members of a CCC camp wound up in jail and other persons suffered injuries when fighting broke out at a meeting of the Junior Communistic Legion of Newark.

The violence occurred as the CCC members took exception to derogatory remarks about the United States government made by one of the speakers at the meeting.

In New York approximately 100 policemen were called to preserve order when Communists and anti-Nazis began to heckle speakers at a reputed Nazi meeting in Yorkville, the German section of the city.

State Asked to Finance Insurance Liquidations

HARRISBURG, April 20.—(AP.)—(AP.)—J. Blair Moffat, of Philadelphia, counsel for the liquidation division of the State Insurance Department, today proposed that the state provide funds for adjusting the affairs of defunct insurance companies.

Liquidation has been financed by a "revolving fund" in which expenses were pooled and charged against recovered assets. This procedure has been under fire at the current investigation by a joint legislative committee.

Moffat said he believes a legislative appropriation of about $25,000 would be sufficient to liquidate companies with recoverable assets, but added that direct appropriations would be necessary to close out companies which have no assets.

The witness said that, under his proposal, the liquidating fund would be reimbursed from assets recovered.

The plan of pooling liquidation expenses was attacked a few weeks ago by Chairman A. J. White Hutton, a member of the House of Representatives from Franklin County, who asserted this procedure was "a form of embezzlement."

Senator James E. Norton, of Reading, said today he believed the state should revise its insurance laws to prevent improperly financed companies from doing business. Norton expressed his opinion that companies should be required to post bonds with the department to meet all contingencies.

The present system of liquidating defunct companies was defended by Moffatt, who asserted receiverships are expensive and claimed stockholders rarely realize much of the assets.

DOCTORS URGED TO CO-OPERATE WITH PASTORS

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—(AP.)—Doctors of divinity and of medicine are censured by Dr. Helen Flanders Dunbar, psychiatrist of the Columbia University Medical Center, New York, for not co-operating in the treatment of mental and physical ills.

Speaking before the annual Protestant Episcopal Church Congress last night, Dr. Dunbar charged that the church has fostered the traditional belief that emotional problems are moral problems, and that as a result the treatment of mental disease has been made difficult. She said:

"Originally, priest and physician were one and the same individual. Then came the assumption that the body and soul could be treated separately, with the church advancing the thought that the soul was to be saved and the body damned.

"The physician rushed to save the body, and today we find the physicians trying to save the body by treating it in pieces. But they are coming to realize that the whole of the body is more than the sum of its parts.

"And both clergyman and physician also are coming to understand that the health of either body or soul is impossible without the health of both."

On the subject for discussion—how the clergyman, the general physician and the psychiatrist can co-operate—Dr. Dunbar said the clergyman is untrained in the handling of emotional problems and fails to realize the importance of knowing when one of his flock needs the attention of either a physician or psychiatrist.

Dr. William Darrach, dean emeritus of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, said he believes "religious healing has a place in the treatment of organic diseases if carried on hand in hand with a man who knows medical diagnosis and care."

35 Per Cent of All Illness Laid to Fear and Worry

CHICAGO, April 20.—(AP.)—Fear, worry and other emotional upsets are causing a large number of people to think they are ill when actually they are not, the American College of Physicians was told today.

As much as 35 per cent of all people who seek medical help are suffering entirely or partially from some sort of emotional problem, it was estimated from a recent poll of medical school professors, Dr. Edward Weiss, of Philadelphia, asserted. Other physicians have found that from 20 to 45 per cent of their patients have bodily symptoms brought on mainly by some kind of emotional strain.

Most modern physicians, he said, do not pay enough attention to the emotional and personality troubles of their patients.

GIRL ON MORGUE SLAB REVIVES

They picked her up, pronounced her dead.

Yesterday morticians toiled among the corpses in a morgue.

Now and then one would glance toward the slab where, between two other bodies, lay that of the 25-year-old woman.

The attendants would shake their heads, and say:

"It is too bad. She was young."

Then one of the attendants stood wide-eyed. He had seen the figure move. He shouted. He and his fellows stared, locked in immobility by fright.

Margarita Hernandez Bernal, sitting upright between the two corpses, breathed:

"Please give me a drink."

The attendants fled into the street.

HONOR MEMORY OF DUSE

Lovers of drama and art, with representatives of leading Italian organizations, will commemorate the death of Eleanora Duse, famed Italian actress, with special services at the School of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute of Technology, tomorrow.

Marking the tenth anniversary of Duse's death at the Hotel Schenley during an American tour, the program will include addresses by Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Tech, in English; by Frank Vittor, Pittsburgh sculptor, in Italian, and by Italian Vice Consul Nobile Don Leone Sircana. Presentation of a resolution adopted by City Council to Vice Consul Sircana for forwarding to Duse's family in Italy will be a feature of the services.

Prior to the campus program, the addresses will be broadcast by KDKA and short-waved to Italy for rebroadcasting, with Italian announcements by Frank J. Zappala.

In connection with the decennial observance, Vittor is preparing a marble bust of Duse, to be set up by the Italian colony as a permanent memorial here. Henry Hornbostel is memorial chairman.

SCOUTS ACTIVE IN RUSHMORE CONTEST

Youth's pride in the progress of the nation is being exemplified by the active support of the Boy Scouts of America in the Mount Rushmore National Memorial inscription competition.

Joining with adult organizations taking active part in the nationwide competition in quest for the best 600-word history of the nation for the final inscription on the South Dakota mountain, Scout councils throughout the tri-state district are conducting their own competitions for their respective troops. The winning selections from each council will be submitted to the Pittsburgh Memorial Committee, in care of the Sun-Telegraph, for final judging.

As evidence of the enthusiastic support being given to the patriotic project, Bucktail Council, Boy Scouts of America, at DuBois, Pa., has added an extra award for scouts in its troops. The best entry submitted by its scouts will win a free week in camp this summer. Scout Executive H. B. Knepper, conceived the award as an added incentive.

Boy Scouts in the four councils in Allegheny County are submitting their entries through a joint committee. Harmar D. Denny, Jr., is committee chairman. Texts are received at 2114 Investment Building, Pittsburgh. The councils participating are the East Boroughs Council, Homestead Council, McKeesport Council and Allegheny County, West, Council.

The free folder giving all details of the competition can be obtained by scouts at the Sun-Telegraph downtown office, Fifth avenue and Market street, or it will be mailed free provided a request to the Pittsburgh Rushmore Memorial Editor, in care of the Sun-Telegraph, is accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The competition, sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers, is open to every man, woman and child.

MILLIONS PAID CCC HOMES

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP.)—Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, had announced today Civilian Conservation Corps members from Pennsylvania had sent home to dependents more than $4,500,000 since the program began a year ago.

Each man enrolled allots from $20 to $25 of his $30 monthly pay to his family, the director stated.

In making this announcement, Fechner stated only two of the 96 CCC camps to be operated in Pennsylvania this year will be in new locations. A new camp is to be set up in the state park in Cambria and Somerset counties and the camp in Lackawanna County will occupy its last summer's location.

CHILDREN SEEK PLAYGROUND

SEATTLE, April 20.—(AP.)—Big children and little, from 3 to 18, are getting signatures to a petition for a playfield out Magnolia Bluff way.

Said Billy Connell:

"You see, we're not supposed to play in the street, and there are two vacant lots in the neighborhood.

"So we kids thought if we took a petition down to the County-City Building, maybe the city would make a playfield out of them."

Steals Flowers For Children's Grave

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—(INS.)—Stealing flowers from graves was the charge today against Mrs. Anna Herman, 35.

The woman was arraigned and held for court in $300 bail.

She admitted having taken plants from graves in North Cedar Hill Cemetery. She said she wanted to place the blooms on the graves of her two children.

Dead in Home

FRANK ELLIOTT WILLSON

Mr. Willson, dead at 68 in his home at 1901 Shady avenue. The funeral is to be held from the home at 4 p. m. tomorrow, with interment at Homewood Cemetery. He died very suddenly.

WIFE OF CHIEF WALLOPS THUG

STERLING, Col., April 20.—(AP.)—The wife of Chief of Police H. D. Alford is no easy mark for a holdup.

Mrs. Alford was returning from a church meeting carrying a dishpan. A young man tried to snatch it from her, believing, apparently, that it contained proceeds of the dinner the women's organization had served. Mrs. Alford struck her assailant in the stomach, held onto the pan and ran into a house. The man disappeared.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

Prominent Men and Women in all Walks of Life Send Greetings to the Junior Birdmen!

By LAWRENCE SHAW
National Director

Greetings, Junior Birdmen. While thousands and thousands of boys and girls all over the United States are eagerly mailing applications for membership in our nationwide organization, it is interesting to note the number of fine telegrams and letters being received at the Junior Birdmen national headquarters in New York. From every well-known flier, public official and men and women of prominence in national, state and city affairs come messages of good cheer and welcome to the Junior Birdmen of America.

All express the need of a permanent airminded organization for boys and girls such as we are building today under the sponsorship of Mr. William Randolph Hearst.

* * *

Chief of Army Staff Writes

Next week we will start publishing in this column some of the fine letters and telegrams of indorsement which have been received not only at the national headquarters, but by many of the local wing commanders throughout the country from prominent city officials and fliers of their own towns.

One of the most interesting messages received so far comes from United States Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, Chief of the United States Air Corps, who, in a special Universal Service dispatch, which was published in many of our newspapers a few days ago, wrote:

"While the airplane, born in the United States some 30 years ago, has been developed greatly during this period, and is commonly used in nearly every country, a rather small percentage of our citizens have actually flown, and only a comparatively few can pilot aircraft.

"Mr. William Randolph Hearst is now organizing the Junior Birdmen of America and thus the members organizing into 'Flight Squadrons' in communities throughout our country will have a chance to learn about aviation and to appreciate the opportunities which aviation gives . . ."

We have a message from another prominent national official, a man in the eyes of our nation whom I know every member will enjoy hearing from. But as I said earlier in the week, all of the columns up to and including Sunday will deal with the organizing of our membership.

* * *

How To Become a Member of Rank

Your local wing commander, in his column to you yesterday, promised that on Sunday he would tell you just how to go about organizing a "Flight Squadron" in your town or neighborhood, just as Maj. Gen. Foulois mentioned in his message above. So it will be unnecessary for me state anything about that at this time.

However, you probably are all anxious to learn just how it will be possible for you to become an Eagle member—and then an Ace member, the highest ranking membership in the junior birdmen.

All members, boys and girls, group "A" and group "B," are Fledglings when they first receive their memberships. Three months after date of receiving membership any member is privileged to write to his local wing commander for a set of questions for eagle membership, enclosing three cents for return postage. Upon receipt of these questions the member is to fill in the proper answers and return them to his local wing commander with five cents, this time to cover return postage and cost of an eagle bar which is attached to the wing-pin by two small rings which are furnished with the bar, should the member succeed in receiving a passing grade of seventy or more.

Three months after receiving eagle membership, any member may make application to his local wing commander for the highest ranking membership—an Ace! This is a much more difficult test for not only does the member have to write out his answers in the presence of the wing commander, but he must also build and fly various models to the satisfaction of the commander in accordance with definite set rules and regulations governing this test. Certain days in each month will be set aside for the written examinations and model test for applicants of ace membership.

* * *

Model Builders Get Ready

You boys and girls who are already adept in the art of building and flying models better start tuning those old crates and prepare to build some new ones. It won't be long now before we announce the first nationwide series of model plane derbies in our wing cities. Certainly you will want to enter your local contest. We are going to announce some dandy awards. And of course the winner in each of our wings will be brought to the National Junior Birdmen "All America" Model Plane Derby.

For you boys and girls who don't know how to build models we will have a beginners' course in time for you to build one and enter it in the contests, too, so don't think you are going to be left out in an "air pocket."

Happy landings!

Increase Shown In Tuberculosis

An increase of 37 per cent in the number of persons newly afflicted with tuberculosis has been recorded during the last four years, according to officials of the Public Health Association.

A report made public yesterday by the association's tuberculosis service shows that 1,093 persons contracted the disease during 1933, as against 626 in 1929 and 918 in 1931. Of the 784 cases coming under the organization's supervision during 1933, one-third were from the Hill District and 40 per cent of these were children under 16 years of age.

TRICK CHARGED IN NEW M'LEOD BILL SNAG

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Another parliamentary maneuver to delay the McLeod bank deposit pay off bill—denounced by backers of the bill as a trick—was reported to in the House today.

After Speaker Rainey ruled that the Banking Committee had acted illegally on April 12 in reporting out the amended McLeod bill in an effort to defeat consideration by petition, Chairman Steagall (Dem.), of Alabama, announced that the committee would act again.

The effect of the maneuver will be to delay the plan of backers of the McLeod bill to seek a petition of 145 members to discharge the Rules Committee and bring the bill to the floor.

The House Banking Committee first acted when it became apparent that a petition of 145 members to discharge the committee would be completed.

The committee made the mistake of reporting out the wrong bill and also acted while the House was in session.

Speaker Rainey ruled that the committee's action was illegal and that Representative McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, would have the right to call the bill up for action in the House on Monday.

Then Seagall disclosed his plan to have the committee meet and make a new report.

House leaders said the new report would void the petition. It will also void a petition filed by McLeod to discharge the House Rules Committee and prohibit the signing of a petition against the Rules Committee for seven more legislative days.

FATHER BRIDGE DIES IN WEST

His service in the World War and his missionary work in China today had cost the life of the Rev. Francis A. Bridge, of Midland, a Catholic missionary.

Father Bridge

Father Bridge, 39, died in St. Mary's Hospital, San Francisco, where he had been a patient for one year.

Father Bridge was ordained in 1928. A year later he was sent to Manchuria by the Catholic Foreign Missionary Society. But the effects of scarlet fever he had suffered while serving at a base hospital in France during the war and his strenuous work in China, caused a breakdown a year ago.

Father Bridge's body is being sent to Maryknoll Seminary, New York, where he studied for the priesthood. Burial will be there.

He leaves his parents, Otto and Mary Bridge; four brothers, Regis, Gerard, Raymond and Harry Bridge, and a sister, Geraldine Bridge. He was a nephew of Father Girard Bridge, of St. Vincent's Seminary.

RHEUMATIC PAIN

Pay Bank Depositors

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS:

As an important help toward national recovery, the undersigned urge passage of the bill introduced by Representative McLeod, now before Congress, which provides for paying in full depositors of closed banks which belonged to the Federal Reserve System.

Toward this end we urge that the RFC make loan arrangements with the closed banks.

This procedure would give positive stimulus to business by converting frozen, idle and at present useless bank deposits into immediately available purchasing power.

Indiana Governor Asks McLeod Bill Passage

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The McLeod bill receives the complete indorsement of Paul V. McNutt, Governor of Indiana, who is visiting here. He said:

"The passage of the McLeod bill would be very helpful and would undoubtedly aid national recovery. As in every other state, the citizens of Indiana suffer from the loss of their money deposited in banks which are now closed. No other bill before Congress could help the country more.

"In spite of all handicaps, however, conditions in my state have measureably improved during the last year. Farm prices are higher and there are very few mortgage foreclosures now, except in cases of utter bankruptcy. Industry, too, has picked up at least 25 per cent. But of course, I do look and hope for much better conditions than these before long."

Bank Deposit Chief Backs McLeod Bill

Universal Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—Charles P. Bloome, chairman of the Depositors' Protective Association of closed banks in Pennsylvania and acting secretary of the national depositors' committee, said today:

'The only remedy for the relief of persons whose funds are tied up in closed banks is the McLeod bill. It is true that features of the bill are open to debate but this is not the time to split hairs. The sooner the McLeod bill is passed the sooner we wil have real reconstruction.

"I maintain the government has a moral obligation to pay off depositors in closed banks. In 1931 and early in 1932 after government officials and bank presidents urged all to keep their funds in banks I spoke on the situation from platforms in many states.

"I, too, urged that savings be left where they were. Then after the banking holiday, when many banks failed to open my friends came to me and said I had given them bad advice. I maintain that the average man seeing the word 'national' or 'Federal Reserve member' believed that bank was controlled or supervised by the federal government and that backed by pleading statements issued by certain government officials makes the government responsible for those funds lost in banks.

"In some quarters it is urged that money appropriated by the federal government be spent for public works. Some day somebody will have to pay for those works. For myself, I'd rather take my losses in taxes that would thaw out the frozen deposits of millions of persons than to pay for idle buildings.

"Then there is the obligation to the children and youth of the country. We inaugurated 'thrift weeks' and school children opened accounts and saved their pennies. Many banks even sent automobiles to the schools to collect these pennies. They, too, wanted to encourage the habit of thrift. And now these youngsters are told their money is gone. Being told that, just when the ideals of love of country and patriotism are being instilled into their young minds.

"Depositors in closed banks can do two things now. Bombard their Congressmen and Senators with demands that they be given relief, and hold public meetings to call attention to their plight.

"If the President doesn't change his attitude within a week or 10 days my organization is planning a national march of depositors upon the Capitol. It will not be a march of paupers, but a dignified and impressive march. We will show the President and the country that we want relief, and that soon."

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The White House had its fingers crossed when it announced that it would take no part in the Democratic congressional primaries.

What it meant was—openly.

Louis Howe already has been designated privately to handle the primaries for the administration. He will be unable to take his scheduled vacation now for that reason.

Also, Mr. Farley's right hand man, Emil Hurja, has departed at last from the PWA (much to the relief of Interior Secretary Ickes) and is now installed in the Democratic national committee, although no announcement of the switch has yet been made.

Hurja specialized in the congressional end of the 1932 election for Mr. Farley. He knows every vote in every congressional district since the Civil War.

HELP

The President himself is not as shy on the subject as the announcements indicate. What happened at the White House during the recent visit of Texas boosters shows that.

Among the callers were Senator Tom Connally and his primary opponent, Representative Joe Bailey. One of the leading issues between them is their respective loyalty to the New Deal. Bailey has strongly questioned Connally's record in that respect.

In front of a whole crowd from Texas, President Roosevelt reached out and shook Connally's hand very warmly. The President even threw an arm over Connally's shoulder.

When it came Bailey's turn to shake hands, the witnesses observed that the same enthusiasm was lacking.

Soon that story will be all over Texas, and yet no one ever will be able to accuse the White House of mixing in the Texas primary.

SIGNIFICANCE

There is more than that behind the Connally story. The truth seems to be that Mr. Connally boosted his stock 100 per cent at the White House when he voted to sustain the President's veto on veterans' allowances. The President feels very kindly toward those who stuck by him.

Mr. Connally is a veterans' man and always has been one. He is a Spanish-American War veteran, himself. His conversion was an outstanding event.

The way he was treated was full notice to all Democratic congressmen that the White House has a record of the veterans' veto vote, and, while the President is officially taking no part in the primaries, he can and will find ways to help his friends.

ALIBI

The Connally incident was so noticeable that Joe Bailey is supposed to have gone to the President and said he would withdraw if the administration was supporting Connally. He announced later he was not withdrawing, so he must have been assured that the White House is not supporting anyone.

However, Mr. Roosevelt has been in politics too long not to have realized the implications which would be drawn from his demeanor.

WISDOM

Appropos of the alternating pressure now being exerted on the President by conservatives and liberals, a high official of the White House tells this old fable:

A man was walking along a road with his son and a donkey when he heard spectators comment on how foolish he was to feed a donkey and then not ride it. So he got on to ride.

Farther on, he heard talk about how selfish he was to ride and let his son walk. So he let the son get on.

A few miles further, people reported him to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and both he and his son were required to dismount and lead the donkey again.

The sequel to that one is the one Kin Hubbard always told about the newspaper publisher who soon went to the booby hatch when he tried to run a newspaper to please everyone.

QUIETERS

Mr. Roosevelt apparently has decided to keep quiet about current legislation before Congress. He has declined lately to discuss silver, the stock market bill, the tax bill and proposed securities changes.

The idea seems to be that his new tactics will quiet popular suspicion that he is handling Congress as an organ grinder handles his performers on the end of a string.

NOTES

Mr. Roosevelt is certainly feeling himself again. At his last two press conferences, his pleasant sarcastic wit crackled...Vice President Garner's unreported speech to the visiting Texas boosters was a whiz. Among other things he said he thanked his stars that he was not nominated for the Presidency at Chicago. Also, that if the New Deal was going to Heaven or Hades, he intended to go along...Mr. Roosevelt gave Senator Wagner a strong joshing about the labor board bill when they met a few days ago, saying in effect:

"Good grief, Bob, what happened to you? When I went away, you were getting along all right, but when I get back I find everyone swarming all over you, pulling your hair out."

The answer to that is Wagner may introduce a substitute bill shortly.

NEW DEAL BANS GALLATIN

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Albert Gallatin, who served longer than any other man as Secretary of the Treasury, has gone down before the policies of the "New Deal."

Visitors at the office of Secretary Morgenthau today felt a pang of loneliness when they were not greeted by the painting of the old man with the hook nose, thin, tightly drawn lips and the piercing eyes.

For many years Gallatin's picture hung back of the Secretary's desk—since early in the Wilson administration when William G. McAdoo was secretary.

Gallatin's picture never was known to hang straight. Morgenthau said:

"He was a nice old man but he wouldn't stay straight."

Roger B. Taney, secretary in 1833 and 1934, took Gallatin's place. Alexander Hamilton, who hangs over the fireplace, did not change his position.

Man Dies of Heart Attack in East End

Edward Miller, 62, of 5937 Center avenue, died last night in Homeopathic Hospital a few hours after he collapsed at Center and South Highland avenues, according to a morgue report. Death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Candidate Favors State School Tax

On a platform of tax reduction, Charles W. Parkinson is seeking the Republican nomination for legislature in the Fourth District. An engineer-draftsman, Parkinson favors the state paying school taxes.

SEADOGS LEARN ABOUT SAILORS FROM ARTIST

By JAMES CANNON
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 20. — Paul Cadmus, a glossy-haired Greenwich Village artist, said today the Navy ought to realize that sailors aren't Sunday school scholars.

The CWA employe, whose painting of sailors and a few frowsy girl friends was denounced as "false" by Navy officials who refused to let it be exhibited in Washington, shouted:

"Why don't the admirals face the facts of life? Do they think their jolly tars run to church as soon as their ship comes in? If they do, they're as dizzy as a whirling dervish.

"The admirals must know that booze and fast women are as much part of the sailor's social life ashore as his uniform is. As a matter of fact, my picture gave the Navy a break.

"I've seen a hundred incidents worse than the one I painted .I grew up along Riverside drive. That's where you learn about sailors. You'll learn more by a walk along the drive when the fleet's in than by running all the ships in the world in an admiral's fancy uniform.

"I guess sailors are hard-working fellows on a ship. But once they get ashore—brother, they are tornadoes."

The reporter asked whether Cadmus had been in the Navy. Furrows raced across Cadmus' dark brow. He asserted:

"Of course not."

"Do you know any sailors?"

Cadmus flushed as he muttered:

"No. I never met a sailor in my life."

Bullitt Challenges Soviets in Baseball

MOSCOW, April 20.—(Universal.)—Moscow's "Play ball!" this year will find American Ambassador William C. Bullitt, a first baseman's mitt on his hand, captaining one of two embassy nines he has organized to challenge all Soviet comers for the championship of Russia.

FLIERS NAME POST 'CHAMP'

International News Service.

PARIS, April 20.—Wiley Post, famed American round-the-world flier, today was officially declared the world champion aviator for the year 1933 by the International League of Aviators.

A second American was awarded a similar high honor in his own field by the designation of Lieut. Com. Thomas G. W. Settle, of the United States Navy, as the spherical ballon champion for 1933.

Miss Maryse Hilz, famous French aviatrix, was declared the world's best woman flier, and Dr. Hugo Eckener, noted commander of Germany's Graf Zeppelin, was awarded first prize for distinctive work in the field of dirigibles.

ASTOR PARENTS TO LOSE HOME

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—Climaxing the bitter battle between Mary Astor, beautiful film actress, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto L. Langhanke, over the support of the aged couple, the latter's luxurious mansion in Hollywood which has been the principal bone of contention in the controversy will go under the auctioneer's hammer, it was learned today.

Said to have been built at a cost of nearly $200,000, the magnificently furnished Moorish type residence, with its swimming pool and acre of terraced grounds, will be turned over to auctioneers to be sold to the highest bidder next Tuesday.

Dentist's Teeth Puts Gunmen To Flight

CHICAGO, April 20.—(AP.)—Dr. Emil Miller, dentist, fixes teeth, and he knows about all their uses.

For example, they might come in handy during a holdup, if affixed firmly to the proper spot—which in this case would be the trigger finger.

Yesterday, when a robber, posing as a patient in his office, waved a revolver in his face, Dr. Miller leaned forward and snapped.

DEATH CHEATS OLD CIRCUS MAN

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—(AP.)—Edward Codona, 74, is dead at the suburban town of Walteria, with his last wish unrealized.

He was the father of the famous "Flying Condonas," circus aerialists. His son, Alfredo, two years ago was dangerously injured, and hope of his return to the high trapezes seemed doomed for a year. Then he determined to strive for a comeback.

For a year, in a barn at Walteria, rigged with swinging trapezes, the father, son and daughter, Victoria, worked together, and Alfredo regained his muscular dexterity.

The final test was to come with Alfredo in Chicago for the opening of the Hagenbach-Wallace circus. The father was too ill to journey east, but lived in hopes of getting a wire telling of Alfredo's return to success.

G. O. P. BIG-WIGS FAIL TO BRING HARMONY

Indorsement by the Mellon-Vare-Grundy circle of a Republican primary slate including Attorney General William A. Schnader for Governor and Senator Harry B. Scott, of Center County, for lieutenant governor, has not so far brought the expected harmony.

In Philadelphia last night President of Council Edwin R. Cox, an organization man, bitterly assailed William S. Vare. Cox, himself running for lieutenant governor, said his 36 years of service to the organization had been discarded in a trade involving Schnader, and there were assurances that several ward leaders would back Cox.

TALBOT CONFERS

In Pittsburgh Speaker Grover C. Talbot, a third candidate for lieutenant governor, had the statewide candidate field to himself, and proceeded to confer with Republicans of all factions, a procedure similar to that followed by David E. Kaufman, of Towanda, during his visit here this week.

Talbot said he was sure the voters would decide the candidates for themselves, and asserted he was involved in no tieups. Talbot is counting heavily on support from members of the Legislature throughout the state.

ASSERTS INDEPENDENCE

Before leaving Pittsburgh last night Schnader noted the displeasure of some independents at his indorsement by the big business group when he said:

> "No one need be alarmed because of reports that leaders of the Republican Party throughout the state have decided to support me. I stand on my record of service to the state during the past 11 years. I have supported every movement for better government, have prepared and assisted in the passage of many liberal and progressive laws, and have never been tied to any faction or group of the party."

Statewide candidates or their spokesmen will be guests tomorrow at a tea given by the Women's Republican Club of western Pennsylvania in Kaufmann's auditorium.

POLL SURPRISE TO TAPROOMS

They forgot all about the new liquor laws in Mt. Lebanon Township yesterday, when a special bond issue election was held.

The laws specify that on election days no beer or liquor shall be sold.

The polls hadn't been open long before somebody remembered. So Police Chief William J. Kane sent his force throughout the township reminding all the dealers. And for the rest of the day everybody remained thirsty.

Meanwhile the taxpayers voted 335 to 146 to issue $90,000 in bonds for public improvements. Plans called for the Public Works Administration to buy the bonds. In addition, Uncle Sam contributes $29,000.

POSTCARD RENT POLL DOOMED

It's not going to cost a cent to register in the poll on Mayor McNair's tax exemption for new homes and his 10 per cent ground rent.

The postcard idea is out.

McNair has indorsed Candidates Harry A. Eigenrauch for State Senate, and Frank Policastro for Congress. They plan in return to get signers to 50,000 cards backing the McNair schemes.

And then to take the 50,000 cards to Council and ask what about it.

One thousand of the cards have already been printed and are in circulation. You can probably pick yours up at any Democratic political meeting.

Ill Woman Killed In Leap From Attic

Ill for several months, Mrs. Ratie Richard, 63, of 327 Main street, took her own life last night by jumping from a third floor window in her home to a yard below, according to a Morgue report.

She was dead when found by her husband, Joseph.

COPELAND O. K. LAID TO 'GANG' METHODS

Charges of gang politics and steam roller methods today followed the indorsement by the Allegheny County Democratic Club of Judge C. D. Copeland for governor and John B. Sweeney for county chairman.

After a clash with representatives of Judge E. C. Bonniwell, also a candidate for governor, and Van A. Barrickman, county chairman candidate, the club pushed through the indorsements at a McKeesport meeting last night.

Barrickman charged:

Most prominent Copeland leader at the meeting was Maj. E. Lowry Humes.

Barrickman charged Sweeney with trying to use old boss methods in denying the Bonniwell group a chance to be heard. A report of the committee of 27 directors was made by only nine of them, Barrickman said, alleging a number of directors had not been notified of the proposed action. Many members were not notified of the meeting, he said.

The slate indorsed at the meeting included Roland S. Morris for United States Senate, Henry L. Snyder for Lieutenant Governor, Norbert J. Fitzgerald for Secretary of Internal Affairs and Annette T. Johnston for vice county committee chairman.

Lion Tamer Fails To Control Wife

HUMES FIGHTS NOMINATION OF GUFFEY

Nomination of Joseph F. Guffey for the Senate on the Democratic ticket would mean the election of Senator David Reed or Gov. Gifford Pinchot, according to Maj. E. Lowry Humes.

Humes, addressing the Allegheny County Democratic Club in McKeesport last night, declared the only issue in the Democratic primary was how the best service could be rendered to President Roosevelt.

Reed and Mrs. Pinchot have been busily engaged in denouncing the Roosevelt program, Humes asserted.

As for Guffey, Humes said that since he entered politics he had alienated a large number of those affiliated with him. These associates were, according to Humes, Guffey's late uncle, Col. James M. Guffey; Vance C. McCormick, Mitchell Palmer, Roland S. Morris, Gov. Al Smith, John J. Raskob, Sedgwick Kistler and finally Mayor McNair.

FAVORS MORRIS

Humes asked:

"It is possible that all of these prominent and distinguished citizens can be wrong and Guffey alone right. It is certainly significant that every Pennsylvanian in the group is openly opposed to Guffey's candidacy and is supporting Roland S. Morris."

Humes said Morris, out for Senate, had the qualities of ability, statesmanship and integrity to insure election if nominated.

It is conceded, Humes said, that Judge Charles D. Copeland, opposing Guffey's candidate, George H. Earle, for nomination for governorship, will be elected if nominated.

Naming as the most important local contests those for Democratic county chairman and vice chairman, Humes said nothing was so much needed here as a leadership divorced from all suspicion of Republican domination.

CHARGES PATRONAGE

It is apparent, Humes said, that the chairman will be either John B. Sweeney, of McKeesport, or the incumbent, David L. Lawrence. Humes hit at other candidates for remaining in the race for dividing the opposition to the Guffey-Lawrence machine.

The present vice chairman, Mrs. J. Wood Clark, has for years succeeded in maintaining herself in a public job, giving further proof that the purpose of the Guffey-Lawrence machine was patronage and not leadership as its purpose, Humes said. Mrs. Annette T. Johnson is opposing Mrs. Clark.

Humes indorsed Henry L. Snyder for nomination for Lieutenant Governor, and Norbert J. Fitzgerald for Internal Affairs.

Taxpayers League Heads to Speak

Campaign Cards Damaging Trees In West View

Civic Club's Plea Ignored; Posters 'Spiked' On

Trees were being damaged yesterday by bill posting in behalf of several candidates for legislature in this district. Invading the West View district bill posters drove heavy tacks into trees to hold in place placards extolling the abilities and virtues of two candidates.

A picturesque old oak on the Perry highway at Horse Shoe Bend was one of the victims.

The posters are those of Homer L. Fisher, candidate for State Senate in the Fortieth district, and Louis R. Oliver, candidate for the House of Representatives in the Thirteenth district.

The placards were placed after all candidates had been sent pleas by the Allegheny County Civic Club to refrain from desecrating either public or private property with unsightly signs.

REED TO VOTE AGAINST BONUS

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—(AP.)—Senator David A. Reed says he expects to vote against the bonus when it comes up again in the Senate.

Addressing a veterans' gathering last night, the Pennsylvania Republican who is seeking re-election asserted "the government owes no money whatever to veterans like myself who came out of the war as well as they went in."

His statement was received in silence. He said:

"I have always opposed the bonus."

Then he explained that he sought to correct an "erroneous impression" which resulted from his vote to override President Roosevelt on restoration of Economy Act cuts, adding:

"The national government ought to be consistent when it asks every other employer to increase salaries and restore at least a part of the pay cuts to its own employes."

Military service in an emergency is a patriotic duty requiring neither compensation nor reward, the Senator declared, echoing the remarks of another speaker, Brig.-Gen. Frank T. Hines, veteran's administrator.

War is imminent in Europe, Reed said, adding that the best way for the United States to preserve its neutrality is by military preparedness.

"I am not a candidate of any slate and I refuse to be. I am grateful to Pennsylvania for the opportunity of having served in the Senate for 12 years and if Pennsylvania decides not to send me back I will still be grateful to her."

SCHOOL TOIL HIT BY CANDIDATE

Education under the present system is "medieval drudgery," Mrs. Martha E. Carson, Pittsburgh real estate woman seeking nomination to Congress from the Thirty-third District, charged last night in an address before the Authors' Club at the College Club.

Advocating re-establishment of education on an efficiecy basis and elimination of long hours of study in favor of more healthful play, Mrs. Carson said:

"If industry can accomplish efficiency such as we find in mills and factories today, surely the schools can do as much.

"It is a shame that we provide playgrounds for the children, then deprive them of the best hours of the day when they could get the most good from their play."

She urged a thorough "housecleaning" in the school systems, during which needless elements in text rooms would be weeded out. Under the present system students are forced to work about six hours a day in school and two or three hours each evening at homework, she pointed out.

Copeland-Morris Rally in Wilkinsburg

Copeland-Morris forces of Wilkinsburg will hold a meeting at the Independent Democratic headquarters, Penn avenue and Hay street, Wilkinsburg, at 8 o'clock tonight. Among speakers will be Gregg Lewellyn, former internal revenue collector; Arthur Neuburger, for Legislature in the Tenth District, and Mary A. Dillon, for state committee in the Forty-fourth Senatorial District.

Pinchot Assailed As Opportunist

Branding Gov. Gifford Pinchot, candidate for Republican nomination for Senate, as a political opportunist, former United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans addressed a meeting of the Foreign Language Press in the Keystone Athletic Club today. Evans said:

"Pinchot has always attempted to hop on any popular band wagon."

THREE KILLERS DIE IN CHAIR

International News Service.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Three killers convicted in the recent court war on crime today were executed one by one in the Cook County Jail electric chair at sunrise.

John Scheck, 21, who killed a policeman in a wild attempt to escape from the Criminals Court's Building, led the solemn procession from death row to the glass-enclosed execution chamber.

George Dale, 27, sweetheart of a "blonde tigress" gunwoman, came next. Dale paid the extreme penalty for killing an aged storekeeper in a robbery foray with Eleanor Jarman.

The third man to die was Joseph Francis, 35-year-old Negro slayer of a milk wagon driver.

Twenty minutes were required to complete the executions. All three fulfilled their boasts to "die like a man," and walked to the chair without assistance.

REED AIDE HITS PINCHOT MONEY

Gov. Gifford Pinchot's money has come in for attack by Mrs. Walter L. Riggs, vice chairman of the Allegheny County Reed Committee.

Before the McKeesport Men's and Women's Republican Club, McKeesport, Mrs. Riggs declared last night:

"The same man—Gifford Pinchot—who shouts over the radio that this campaign is a battle between the rich and the poor, spent $195,000 of his own and his wife's money in an unsuccessful attempt to be elected a United States Senator in 1926.

"The total salary for that period would have amounted to approximately only one-third of his campaign expenditures. This is buying office with a vengeance."

Favors Labor in All Legislation

Proposing to give preference to the worker in all legislation, Dr. Lewis M. Herrington, of Stowe Township, is a candidate for Congress in the Thirty-fourth District. Running for Democratic nomination, Herrington approves President Roosevelt's policies. He wants social legislation and reduction in all taxes.

GRANDMOTHER GETS ORCHID, SAVED 4

An aged grandmother who saved four children in a fire and a man who shared his dinner with a stranger were awarded today's "Winchell orchids."

Mrs. Mary Connelly, 73, battled smoke and chemical fumes to lead her four little grandchildren to safety last Tuesday when fire broke out in their apartment building at 2534 Fifth avenue.

While the fumes spread through the living quarters from an exterminating plant on the first floor, Mrs. Connelly picked up the smallest child and led the others down the stairway to the street.

Louergan discovered a stranger taking the pail from his car while it was parked at his work in North Park recently. And that stranger, who wrote the Winchell Orchid Editor of the Sun-Telegraph, was "mighty hungry." Let him tell the story:

"That man didn't call me a thief. He sat right down and gave me almost all that was in his bucket. Then he reached in his pocket and pulled out $1.60. He said, 'You take this, buddy. You need it more than me.'

"That money got me some more food to eat and yesterday I got a job. It ain't much of a job, but it will help. I can send his money back when I get paid."

These persons will receive orchids as tokens of public appreciation for their deeds from local members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

FRANK & SEDER

EUROPE AWAITS SHOWDOWN ON ARMS

GENEVA, April 20.—(AP.)—League of Nations circles forecast today a dramatic showdown on disarmament on May 23.

That is the date when representatives of the nations in the world disarmament conference will return to Geneva in full session to attempt to catch and pull together the flying strings of the many-sided problem of arms control.

There are even unconfirmed rumors that France may insist upon an investigation of German armament before consenting to negotiate any sort of a disarmament treaty.

But the differences of France, Germany and Great Britain form but one section of the problem as a whole.

FAR EAST CRISIS

Today a tendency was seen in Geneva to link what one official called the "disturbed" disarmament situation with developments in the Far East growing out of the newly-stated Japanese policy that western powers must keep hands off China.

Some progress was seen by well-informed sources here in the British "white paper" revelation at London Thursday that Germany had expressed a willingness to postpone reductions of armaments by other powers for five years.

France, it was declared here, refuses to accept as legal the German armaments revealed in the German military budget and wants the disarmament conference to tackle the problem from the standpoint that Germany already has begun rearming in violation of the Treaty of Versailles.

It also was stated that France is disturbed over last Saturday's memorandum of five neutral powers—Sweden, Spain, Switzerland, Denmark and Norway—holding that it is better to reduce armaments and permit Germany to rearm on a moderate basis than to provide for a mere limitation which would involve heavy rearmament by Germany.

FRANCE'S DEMANDS

France undoubtedly will insist on collective security as a necessary condition before negotiating any disarmament convention. She has repeated time and time again her demand for assurances of British support in case of attack as a condition of her participation in a disarmament agreement.

In connection with the situation in the Far East, many frankly say that even if France, Germany and Britain should succeed in reaching an agreement on conflicting points at issue it is doubtful that a world convention with Japan and Russia among the signatories could be achieved.

Russia is not expected to sign any sort of a convention if Japan withholds her signature.

A spokesman for the Soviet Union has asked, however, whether Europe would grant Russia freedom of armaments in the Far East if Russia agreed to curtail her armaments on her western front.

International circles freely forecast Russia's entry into the League of Nations and believe Russia would be willing to participate in collective security, provided the system applied to the Far East as well as to Europe.

BATTLE PLANE SHORTAGE TOLD

Universal Service.

BALTIMORE, April 20.—If the United States should engage in a war in the near future, it would find itself so deficient in fighting planes that it would have to buy them from Europe, Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, (retired), former chief of Army aviation, told the Gavel Club here yesterday.

Three hundred members of the club heard the former commander of the Army fliers assert that the class of aviators developed during the World War has just about died out. Gen. Mitchell said:

"The United States had a chance to dominate the world in aviation, but through the greed of politicians and the spinelessness of Army and Navy officials, we have lost that chance.

"It would take us four years to attain a parity with other nations, even if we had an intelligent aviation plan, and we have no such plan."

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The American army is so small it would be powerless to defend the nation in event of an invasion by a major power, Gen. Douglas McArthur, chief of staff, told a House Military Affairs Subcommittee today.

He made an earnest plea for passage of the bill of Representative Thompson (Dem.), of Texas, increasing the officer strength from 12,000 to 14,063 and enlisted strength from 118,750 to 165,000. The General said:

"With our little army, we are now relatively helpless to defend ourself in case of invasion by a major power."

After detailing the condition of the army, MacArthur turned to Represenative Fitzpatrick (Dem.), of New York, chairman of the subcommittee, and said:

"Mr. Chairman, pass this bill, I beg of you as an old soldier who probably has seen his last batlefield. Pass this bill and give the American army a chance in the next fight it wages for the life of our country."

MacArthur told the sub-committee that since the World War the American army has been going down steadily. Although Congress authorized an enlisted strength of 280,000, it has been whittled down to a point where it is "dangerously inadequate," he said.

While there has been great progress in mechanization, an immediate increase in enlisted strength to 165,000 is an irreducible minimum, he said.

JAPS RECOGNIZE TREATY RIGHTS IN CHINA

International News Service.

TOKIO, April 20.—Apparently surprised at the world-wide and generally hostile reaction to his statement of Japanese policy earlier this week, the foreign office spokesman today "toned down" the provoking pronouncement and pledged Japan to maintainance of the "open door" in China.

Answering the specific fears of many observers that Japan was closing China's "open door" by declaring herself against "political" economic and military aviation aid to China by other nations, the spokesman declared in today's statement:

"Japan will not deviate from the 'open door' policy in China nor alter the conditions of existing treaties."

The spokesman declared his statement had been merely an elucidation of Foreign Minister Koki Hiorta's speech to the Diet last January, and said that Japan would object to the actions of other powers, "regardless of their form or pretext," if they lead to disturbances in the Far East.

Japan's New Program Old One Disguised

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(INS.)—A study of Japan's new declaration of policy towards China today caused American officials to conclude it represents an elaboration of the famous "twenty-one demands" in a slightly disguised form.

The declaration has not yet been communicated to this government by Japan, but a copy of the text given newspapermen in Tokio was cabled to the State Department by Ambassador Joseph C. Grew.

LOST INTERVIEW WITH KAISER REVEALED

BOSTON, April 20. — (AP.) — What the Kaiser said to William Bayard Hale, journalist, that night back in 1908 — an international mystery for a quarter of a century—was revealed today.

The famous "lost interview," which caused so many headaches and so much speculation, is presented in the May issue of the Atlantic Monthly Magazine by William Harlan Hale, son of the man to whom Emperor William II, of Germany, spoke so freely, and, as his country thought, so indiscreetly.

The inevitable world crisis was a clash between Japan and occidental nations: East and West must meet and the West must conquer.

'WAR'S CHRISTIAN'

War was necessary. War was Christian. The Bible was full of fighting. The greatest soldiers were Christians.

Theodore Roosevelt, then President of the United States, was his hero—the dominating, militaristic leader he hoped he himself was.

Thus the Kaiser spoke. It was one evening in July, 1908, that he consented to the interview by Hale, close friend of Theodore Roosevelt. The meeting was on the imperial yacht, Hohenzollern, at anchor in the Fjord of Bergen.

The Hale interview was to appear in the Century Magazine, December, 1908. The German foreign office gave it a thorough editorial scouring, removing most of the dynamite.

TOSSED OVERBOARD

Then, it was decided that the interview should be suppressed. It was, just before publication. The pages were yanked out, crated and stored in a warehouse. The German cruiser Bremen came to New York, loaded the crates aboard and in mid-Atlantic tossed them overboard.

Many of the Kaiser's remarks stressed war. He said:

"In a world of practical facts we have to fight, even for righteousness' sake. The Bible is full of fights—jolly good fights some of them were. It is a mistaken idea that Christianity has no countenance for war."

'JAPS TOO SMALL'

He thought the Japanese had been overestimated as fighters; they were too small in stature. He asserted:

"England is a traitor to the white man's cause. If that alliance of theirs with Japan is persisted in, I don't see how the British Empire can be saved from dismemberment."

The most logical combination of nations to act as "big brother" to China, the Kaiser said, was that of the United States and Germany. He added:

"Some fine day the world will wake up and read a quiet little agreement between Germany and the United States declaring that we guarantee Chinese sovereignty over Chinese territory. O—ho! I wonder what my friends across the channel will say to that."

AILING INSULL WRITES WIFE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ABOARD S. S. EXILONA, at Sea, April 20.—Samuel Insull wrote a letter to his wife in Athens from every port he has touched on his extradition voyage back to the United States, he revealed today as the Exilona headed southward across the Mediterranean Sea to Casablanca, Morocco.

With his last European port behind him, the indicted Chicagoan was due at Casablanca, on the North African coast, next Tuesday. From Casablanca the Exilona will steam through the Straits of Gibraltar and out across the Atlantic to Boston and New York.

The former millionaire utilities operator, under indictment for fraud in the collapse of his companies, frequently is lapsing into pensive, almost sullen moods. He looked tired today, and admitted he was "a little off color" physically.

ORTALE FACES ARREST IN $107,000 SHORTAGE IN BANK HERE

postal savings deposits secured by government bonds.

While operating under the provisions of the Sordoni act, the bank may accept new deposits, Dr. Gordon explained, segregating new deposits in separate accounts against which unrestricted withdrawals may be made.

DR. GORDON'S VIEWS

Dr. Gordon made the following formal statement:

"As a result of an examination of the affairs of the Bank of America Trust Company, Pittsburgh, conducted by the Department of Banking there have been developed apparent irregularities on the part of certain officials of the institution. It was the unanimous decision of the directors of this institution that they request the Secretary of Banking to permit them to place the bank under the provisions of the Sordoni Act pending a more detailed investigation of its affairs.

"The Secretary of Banking approved this request, and as of 9 a. m., Friday, April 20, the Bank of America Trust Company will operate on a restricted basis. This means that all deposits received from this time on will be segregated and kept either in cash or invested in United States bonds, under the regulations prescribed by the Department of Banking as provided for by the Act. Such deposits may be withdrawn on demand by these depositors.

LIABILITIES CITED

"As of the close of business April 19, 1934, the deposit liability of the Bank of America Trust Company was approximately $1,157,000. Of this amount $687,500 represented United States postal savings deposits which have been secured by United States government bonds.

"The remaining deposit liability consists for the most part of small accounts with balances averaging $2,500 or less, which are fully protected by the bank's membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Provision has been made to protect the few deposits in excess of $2,500 through a guarantee given to the Department of Banking by the directors of the institution. Consequently, all depositors, as shown by the bank's records, are protected in full, so that no depositor will lose a single penny by the placing of the bank under the provisions of the Sordoni act.

SITUATION STUDIED

"Immediate steps are being taken to determine the final information with respect to the bank, so that a meeting may be held with the directors with the view of determining whether or not a sound plan of reorganization may be evolved. Should such a plan be successfully concluded, the bank would be permitted to return to regular banking operations continuing its membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

"At the meetings held last night and this morning with the directors of the Bank of America Trust Company, there were present, in addition to the Secretary of Banking and his staff, representatives of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

CALLED TO PITTSBURGH

Dr. Gordon was summoned to Pittsburgh last night by the directors of the bank and immediately began an investigation.

The first clue to the alleged irregularities was discovered last Wednesday by Palmer, the deputy examiner. In the information made today there were four counts. The first charged embezzlement of $2,300 last November 17, the second of $1,900 on November 18, the third of $2,500 on November 20 and a blanket charge, specifying $100,000 on April 1.

The officials of the Bank of America Trust Company are: W. P. Ortale, president; J. O. Serafini, secretary-treasurer, and T. P. Trimble, Jr., general counsel.

The directors are Ortale, D. Carabellucci, A. Iacovetti, Michael Mannella, Dominic Navarro, Anthony Petrilli, Charles Ross, Salvatore Sunseri, R. D. Thomas, F. W. Wimmer.

A sort of "Laugh Clown, Laugh" story of the life of Charlie Chaplin is heard over KDKA tonight at 10, when Fulton Oursler tells of the screen comedian's acting under a burden of sorrow and disappointment.

* * *

The militant "Something About a Soldier" song is heard over WCAE dramatic sound effects, on the Four Service Men's program at 7:30 this evening.

* * *

The second edition of "The Program of the Week," featuring the chief news, song and joke of the past seven days, is heard over WJAS tonight at 10.

Floyd Gibbons To Be Heard Tomorrow

Arrangements were completed today for the two world-wide broadcasts to be heard Saturday commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of International News Service.

Floyd Gibbons, famous headline hunter, will describe the outstanding news events of the past 25 years as selected by Arthur Brisbane, the noted editor and columnist.

His speech will be broadcast over an NBC-WCAE network and relayed over a short wave of 31.48 metres.

He will be heard at 6:30 p. m. E. S. T. Saturday.

Joseph V. Connolly, president of International News Service, will speak over a Columbia-WJAS Broadcasting Company network at 4:45 p. m. the same day, his address being relayed over a short wave of 31.28 metres.

Tech Jubilee On WCAE

There must be a bit Irish in all tenors. Tonight Howard Price, Welshman, features "Macushla" on his 7:30 program. In which case Macushla refers to Gene Llewellyn, who will be Howard's bride in June.

William A. Schnader campaigns for the governorship on WCAE at 6:45 p. m.

Suggesting A Few New Wrinkles

By AIRCASTER

I wonder why it has never occurred to the wizards of the wireless world, who are dramatizing the commercial plugs with hair-raising hair tonic dialogs, and lackadaisical laxative sketches, that they might carry the technique to its logical conclusion by dramatizing the half-hourly station announcements.

As a sample, the station standby might start off with a manly snore. After a few seconds of nasal trumpeting, let a wife call to her sleeping husband to announce that the comedian who tells those old jokes (and who doesn't?) has gone off the air, and that a new program is about to begin.

* * *

And as a relief from miniature dramatizations, the stations might adopt the use of echoes.

With a couple of natural echoes (which is the first thing an accoustical expert tries to eliminate in studios) a sponsor needs herald the virtues of his product only once, and it will go echoing out over the air waves indefinitely, thus evading the network limitation on commercial announcements.

* * *

GOOD IDEA

At that, seriously, a well imitated echo, repeating the name of a product two or three times, would be something smart and new in advertising.

* * *

I have encountered quite a few people who are embarrassed by their uncomfortable reactions to music, and I see that the WJAS Voice of Experience, too, is meeting up with them.

Recently he received a letter from a listener who explained that he invariably weeps when he listens to radio melody.

Since broadcasting that fact, the voice has heard from many others afflicted with the same reaction.

An obvious explanation presents itself, and may or may not be the answer. But it is reasonable to suppose that most of those who weep are musicians sorely grieved over the hi-de-ho era.

Homewood Man Dies In Parked Machine

Shortly after he told relatives he was going to sleep in his car parked in front of his home at 7429 Susquehanna street last night, William Dunn, 65, of 556 Homewood avenue, was found dead in the auto, the Morgue reported. Death was due to heart trouble.

Globe Trotter

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Let me tell you that the soldiers at the Veterans' Hospital deeply appreciated the co-operation from the Globe Trotters in supplying them with silk and rayon to make rugs.

It not only afforded them a pleasant pastime, whiling away the monotonously long hours, but it also is part of the treatment of the occupational therapy department, and what's more the money realized from the sale of the finished rugs enabled many a veteran to buy cigarets and candy.

The Globe Trotters have been unusually generous in their help but so great is the demand for cast-off silks and rayons that the supply at the Veterans Hospital is about exhausted and naturally the soldiers there are looking toward the globe trotters to replenish the supply. So don't stop sending in the material.

If you have worn out underwear or stockings, and it's the ladies I am speaking to, please send them to me at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph or bring them to the lobby of the building.

If the Want Ad depot at Fifth and Market is more convenient leave the bundles there. I'll pick them up and send them on to the Veterans Hospital.

* * *

Yesterday when Director Hay was here to speak of Mayview he heard the request for the above mentioned articles come in via telephone. Immediately he thought of the library at Mayview in charge of an inmate.

He said that one place where books are needed and needed badly is at Mayview and wondered whether the Globe Trotters could do anything about that. Of course we know the answer.

We'll get them a library. Send in or notify me what old books you have lying around that are of no earthly use to you and I'll make the arrangements for their transfer to the library at Mayview Hospital.

* * *

M. S.—The CWA is no more. The RWD (Relief Works Division) is carrying on some of the work.

* * *

C. E. B., Clairton—There is to be no charge to the veteran or to the dependent for making out a bonus application.

That means that the notary public is not permitted to charge for the acknowledgement nor is any one permitted to charge a commission for cashing such a check.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Lewis Munnell, baritone and staff announcer, returns to the air with another song program at 8. Gertrude Dodds assists at the piano.

Human Side of the News -:- Edgar B. Davis, Who Gave a Party for 10,000 People—Daniel Frohman, Spry at 82

-:- By Edwin C. Hill

THE greatest football player that Brockton, Mass., ever saw, and the most patient angel that ever backed a show on Broadway, has struck oil again. Dispatches from Texas tell us of new millions for six-foot, two hundred and forty pound, good natured and determined Edgar B. Davis. He's a rare personality, this big man from Brockton, where he peddled papers and lemonade as a boy. He worked so hard in the show business that he had to go to sea for his health.

In far-off Sumatra came the simple idea that made him a millionaire. Sumatra grows rubber trees. But they grow too thickly for good production. Edgar Davis sold to the United States Rubber Company the big idea of thinning out the trees. In five years he was in the Texas oil fields with a fortune of two million dollars. The geologists told him he was foolish to try for oil in a certain field. He waved them aside. To him there was a Power wiser than all the wise men of the rocks. Providence had moved him to bore for oil in the Luling field.

He bored and bored. His two million melted away. The banks were ready to foreclose. He was almost ready to give up. He started to the field to call off his men. On the way, a tire of his car blew out. And while he was fixing the tire his men at the field brought in a 10,000-barrel gusher. "What else was that," asks Davis, "but an act of Providence?"

* * *

Broadened By Travel Experiences

THIS expansive, jovial six-footer was a rather narrow sectarian in his younger days, but travel and the experience of life broadened him. He delights in doing things for his friends and giving people a good time. When he sold his Luling fields to Magnolia Petroleum for twelve million dollars, he distributed two million among four hundred and fifty employees and gave a barbecue for ten thousand people—the biggest party ever thrown. To park the cars of his guests he had to buy the corn-crop from a hundred-acre field.

Six years ago, he astounded New York by continuing to back a show to which critics and the public had manifested utter indifference. It was a desire to help out a boyhood friend who had written the play, that prompted him to stand by it month after month, filling the theater with passes, until he had sunk one million three hundred thousand dollars in the hopeless piece called "The Ladder."

It was love for his old home town which prompted him, last winter, to pledge his fortune to uphold a bank in which he had no financial interest. That's the kind of a man he is, this kindly bachelor who spreads good cheer, plays the piano quite well, takes keen delight in such little kindness as bringing the old neighborhood news-stand dealer to New York with him to see the World Series, and who believes that the Lord will provide.

* * *

Daniel Frohman Vigorous at 82

DANIEL FROHMAN, dean of American theatrical producers, and older brother of Charles Frohman, who went down with the Lusitania, has just turned 82. He is as spry, and as carefully dressed, and as spruce as a young fellow. You ought to see "Uncle Dan" dance the rumba to the tuba down in Cuba! Nobody has a greater lore of the stage than Daniel Frohman, or a more wonderful collection of its photographs and souvenirs. He was telling me the other day about the strange superstitions of the theater—oddities of his personal experience with actors and actresses.

Fridays and Saturdays are considered the bad luck days of the week. That is why most openings take place on Mondays or Tuesdays. To laugh outright at rehearsals is the worst kind of luck. Humming or singing is all right in a dressing room or back stage, but whistling—never! It's certain bad luck to put a shoe on a dressing table, and if a cat jumps upon the table, good night! No sane actor or actress will wear overshoes into his or her dressing room. They must be taken off at the stage door.

If an actor dies, a notice must go on the bulletin board at once, saying that the show is closing, even if all hands know that an understudy will play the part and that the run is to continue. If the notice isn't posted, the understudy will die sure. A peacock dress, or a peacock fan, is the blackest kind of luck. No real lady trouper would ever wear one.

Florenz Ziegfeld, Follies king, carried a jade elephant for good luck and covered his desk with good luck elephants in ivory, silver, jade and bronze. George M. Cohan wouldn't dream of writing a play unless he used a yellow pencil upon yellow paper. The Marx Brothers sign all contracts in green because green is their good luck color. Eugene O'Neill, whose "Mourning Becomes Electra" was one of the few hits of a slow season, believes it is bad luck to attend the opening night of one of his plays.

Robert Emmet Sherwood, when one of his new plays opens, goes to the movies. Fannie Brice won't dress in the mornings until the bed is made. And John Barrymore carries a rabbit's foot given to him years ago by his late uncle, John Drew. I asked Uncle Dan Frohman what he thought was the best kind of luck. "Money in the bank," said Uncle Dan quickly.

'MISS AMERICA' CALLED RIVAL OF VENUS

NEW YORK, April 20—(AP.)—The modern American girl, says Bryant Baker, the sculptor, is "a little plumper than Psyche and a little slimmer than Venus"—and is more beautiful than any woman in 2,800 years.

"The sculpture of the ages proves it."

"Miss America hasn't been equaled since the times of the very early Greeks. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall and is a match for Aphrodite.

"Helen Wills is a perfectly beautiful American woman. So is—"

He paused and shook his head.

Baker, who won $100,000 for his "pioneer woman" statue now in Ponca City, Okla., added, however, that he would not include Katharine Hepburn or Mae West in the group, declaring:

"Miss Hepburn's face is too peaked and Miss West has too many curves. The American girl doesn't really want curves—she likes an attractive, athletic thinness."

Although he believes the American girl possesses more grace than her average European sisters, he named two European women he considers "perfectly beautiful"—Diana Wynyard, the English actress, and Astrid, the new Queen of the Belgians. He went on:

"Our beaches are full of beautiful girls. You can see them at the movies on the screen. Tens of thousands of young women possess figures that sculpturally would be considered classic.

"At least one girl in every 4,000 in the United States is perfection physically. With 60,000,000 women, that ought to make about 15,000 without a flaw."

DIDN'T LIKE CAVE-MAN COURTSHIP

Actress Tells Court Director Wooed by Threats, Blows

LOS ANGLES, April 20.—(AP.)—Garbed in black satin and sables, pretty Marjorie Crawford, aviatrix and actress, appeared as the star witness today at the preliminary hearing of R. C. "Danny" Dowling, film dance director charged with kidnaping and assaulting her.

Miss Crawford, a winsome brunette, discribed in detail how Dowling, at one time dance partner of the film star, Joan Crawford, appeared at her Beverly Hills home last March 31, and allegedly carried her off to Yuma, Ariz., under threats of death. She told Judge Joseph Chambers:

"He told me I was going to marry him or else. He came to my home with Jimmy Aye. Jimmy said: 'Congratulations! I hear you're going to marry Danny.' I said: 'Well isn't that nice.' They told me I was to have my choice of Yuma or Las Vegas, Nev. Danny poked a gun in my ribs with one hand and hit me in the mouth with the other."

At this point Miss Crawford appeared nervous and distraught. With trembling fingers she held a glass of water and sipped from it. Deputy District Attorney John Hopkins asked:

"What happened then?"

The answer was:

"Well, he hit me again and he said he'd kill me if I don't do what he wanted. He forced my maid at pistol point to pack my clothes, and away we went in an auto. I told him I'd call the police, but that didn't make any difference. He let Jimmy out in Hollywood and he forced me to accompany him to Yuma."

Miss Crawford, former wife of William Wellman, film director, said she had been ill ever since the Yuma trip. She said Dowling locked her in a hotel room when she refused to marry him and that she escaped.

Dowling was arrested in Yuma and returned here voluntarily to deny Miss Crawford's charges. The District Attorney filed charges against him after an investigation.

BOY ARRESTED FOR PRACTICING MEDICINE

International News Service.

DETROIT, April 20. — A 19-year-old boy who wants to be a doctor was held by police today on a charge of practicing medicine without science or license.

The youth, John Warren Bistran, who graduated from high school two years ago, actually prescribed "remedies" for several trusting patients, according to Otto Fischl, investigator for the Department of Health. Bistran explained, however, that he was careful to "prescribe" only well-known and harmless tonics.

The boy was arrested in an office fitted out with a professional "shingle" and equipped with cards and records bearing his name with the title "M. D."

Young Bistran explained that he intended no harm and that he really knows something about medicine. He declared:

"When I left high school I began to dabble in chemistry. From that I turned to medicine. I wanted to be a doctor. But I had no money to attend medical school, so I decided to learn the profession by getting some practical experience. I treated only my friends, and I gave them nothing but harmless remedies. I never took any chances."

Music Clubs Honor Pittsburgh Women

NORRISTOWN, Pa., April 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. W. C. Dierks and Mrs. D. A. Murdoch, both of Pittsburgh, have been named head of the nominating and resolutions committees of the Pennsylvania Federation of Music Clubs convention.

Titled Pair Admit Debt of $72,125

NEW YORK, April 20.—(NS.)—A confession of judgment by the Prince and Princess Rospigliosi in the amount of $72,125.88 was on file in the county clerk's office today.

The judgment, which represents 18 notes signed by the couple, is in favor of Alfred Borrigia, who is unidentified. Princess Rospigliosi is the former Marion Snowden, New York society girl.

Fund Cut Stops RWD Assignments

Allegheny County officials of the Relief Works Division today were wondering what would be their next step as a result of the slashing of the allotment of $416,000 to $375,600 by Harrisburg, officials. Word of the cut was received last night.

This halts for the time being the additional job requistions which had been in process of preparation for the past week. To date more than 18,000 men have been requisitioned for jobs, but under the setup announced from Harrisburgh last night the county probably will be unable to go forward toward filling its quota of 23,000.

JOHNSON'S REMOVAL DEMANDED BY MRS. PINCHOT

POLITICS

Politicians See Martin Lining Up for Schnader

By MARK SHIELDS

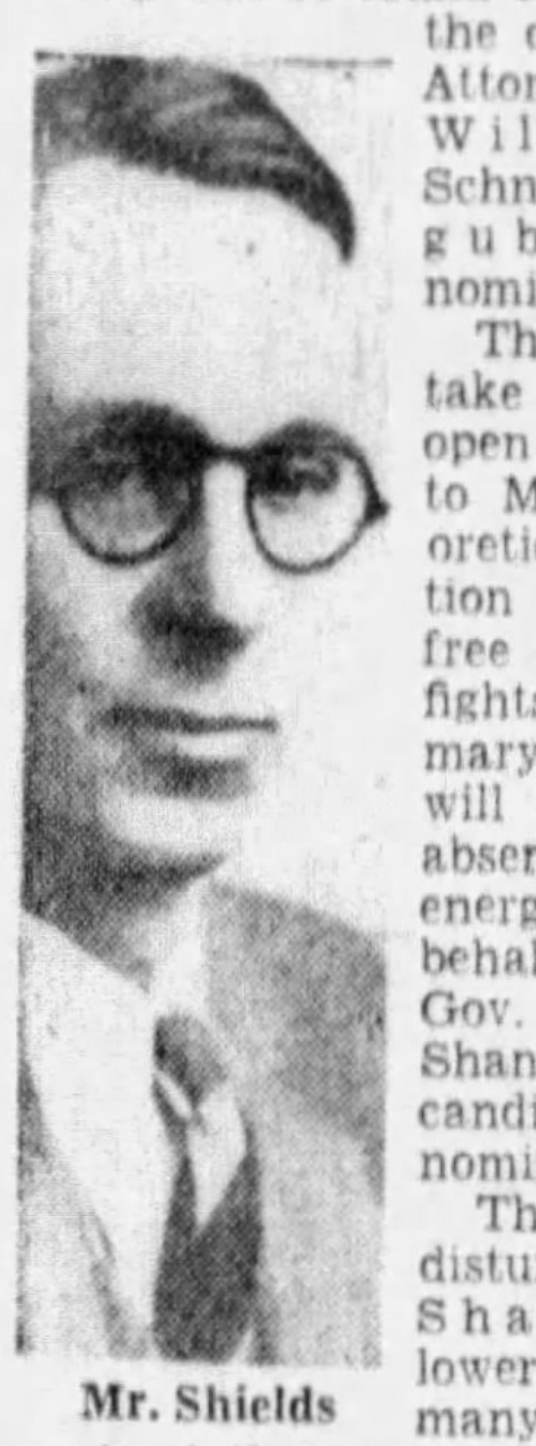
State Chairman Edward Martin, according to men conversant with the play of politics in the Republican organization, eventually will be found lined up with the candidacy of Attorney General William A. Schnader for the gubernatorial nomination.



Mr. Shields

This may not take the form of open avowal, due to Martin's theoretical obligation to remain free of factional fights in a primary. But it will involve an absence of any energy on his behalf for Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon, also a candidate for the nomination.

This will be disturbing to the Shannon followers, though many of them contend it is not an irreparable loss. They cannot discount, however, the fact that in some rural communities Gen. Martin is well liked.

The truth is that both the Shannon and the Schnader groups are miffed over the conduct of the state chairman in the governorship muddle, and each has members who claim that he has contributed to the present distressed situation. They argue that for Gen. Martin to file himself as a candidate at the last moment, and then to withdraw a week later, just before the final bell, merely served to render more confused a political problem which was carrying about all the confusion the traffic would bear.

* * *

Shannon and Martin Agreement Implied

While there never has been anything in black and white, Gen. Martin and Gen. Shannon were understood to have an implied agreement by which the one who became a candidate would receive the support of the other. This grew out of their old military association and the close political relation of the past four years.

There was something of a strain when the filing of Shannon petitions was followed by the circulation by Martin's friends of petitions in his behalf. That strain was eased when Martin surrendered and did everything he could to have Gen. Shannon adopted as the organization candidate.

It took some arduous work by Auditor General Frank Baldwin to prevent a dinner given by Martin's friends in Washington County two weeks ago from becoming a Shannon demonstration, Mr. Baldwin never having been hot for the candidacy of the lieutenant governor.

While all this dickering was proceeding, with 16 candidates in the field, lines became more divided, and political leaders more bemused.

Now there has been a definite adherence to Mr. Schnader by the Mellon-Vare-Grundy overlordship. Those steering it are confident that because of Gen. Martin's past and present affiliations with the Mellon wing he will break from Shannon.

* * *

Vets to Fight Schnader And Senator Reed

This will cause some extremity of animosity among the soldiers. It will make them fight that much harder against Mr. Schnader, and perhaps as well against Senator David A. Reed, who is being supported for renomination against Gov. Gifford Pinchot by the same crowd of organization men which has just swung to Schnader.

That is not designed to make happy the friends of Senator Reed.

The upshot is unpopularity all around the shop for Gen. Martin, who by nature and personal inclination is a most kindly and friendly person, and not bent toward giving gratuitous offense to any one.

Naming of William B. McFall as chairman of the Schnader committee in Allegheny County is a bid to the old independent wing which followed the late Judge Richard W. Martin. Mr. McFall and Judge Martin were brothers-in-law. Mr. McFall is friendly to County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, but this tie is not strong enough to take the head of the county board into the Schnader camp.

Joseph Bialas, as treasurer of the Schnader committee here, adds a conservative who has been political active principally in judicial campaigns, though not as a candidate.

* * *

Judge Smith's Stand Remains in Doubt

In his one-day stay here yesterday Mr. Schnader saw a number of local politicians, including County Chairman William H. Coleman, who is politically affiliated with Senator James J. Coyne. On the lawyers' committee announced as working for Schnader appears the name of Alexander Cooper, a candidate for senatorial in the district now represented by Senator William D. Mansfield.

Mr. Cooper is assumed to have Coyne support, though Mr. Coleman, who lives in the district, is not for him. Instead he favors Representative James H. McClure, of Glassport, who was put in the race by Senator Mansfield. Whether this will have any bearing on Senator Mansfield's position in the gubernatorial contest is yet to be determined.

Another whom Mr. Schnader saw was Judge Ralph H. Smith, Pinchot leader in Allegheny County. From Judge Smith Mr. Schnader received no commitment. The position of Judge Smith will not be determined before next week.

Many of Mr. Schnader's closest friends believe he has accomplished a march toward harmony by landing the organization, his previous support including Public Service Commissioner P. S. Stahlnecker and Judge John Fine, of Luzerne County, enthusiastic Pinchotites. Other observers believe he has alienated many independents, especially in this section. It will take a week to show which of these opinions, both partly right, is dominant.

COUNTY RELIEF BOARD AGAIN UNDER FIRE

Fund Mismanagement Charge Repeated by Rectenwald

Charges of mismanagement of relief funds have again been hurled at the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board by Joseph A. Rectenwald, member of the State Legislature.

The hearing, held yesterday in Council Chambers ended in uproar after more than a score of persons had told a group of legislators the difficulties that have stood in the way of adequate relief.

As the hearing neared its close, Rowe Felty, of 926 Lincoln avenue, asked a question which nettled Rectenwald. He inquired:

"Where has this intelligent bunch of men been for the last five years?"

Rectenwald shouted:

No wise cracks. You shouldn't get sarcastic."

He ruled Felty out of order and adjourned the meeting.

One speaker charged the legislators with responsibility for the death of a child because they failed to provide adequate relief funds for the parents.

Rectenwald said that he himself was responsible for the hearing. He denied that he sought any political advantage.

Child Tuberculosis Victims Live In Crowded Leech Farm Quarters

School, Dining Room In One-Story Building

A one-story structure, originally built as a recreation pavilion for child victims of tuberculosis at Leech Farm, today is used as a combination schoolhouse and dining room for the city's young tuberculosis patients.

Forty-five boys and girls imbibe food and learning in the building, which has sagging floors, cracked walls and no kitchen. Meals are prepared in the main building and carried to the makeshift dining room in a small wagon.

After inspecting the place yesterday, Councilman P. J. McArdle said:

"The building has certainly outlived its usefulness. We'll have to construct a new one, and also make some provisions here for recreation for the young patients."

The only play quarters now available consists of a room about the size of two pool tables, which is used as a combination parlor, bath, nurse's station and recreation hall.

In the boys' dormitory, built seven years ago, a gaping hole in the floor surfacing reveals the bare boards beneath. Another opening in the middle of the room is ineffectively covered with a rubber mat.

Mrs. John J. Callahan, chairman of the Leech Farm Committee of the Health Colony Association, invited McArdle to visit the farm in the hope of bettering the conditions of the children there.

She said:

"The structure where the boys and girls have their meals and classes was built and paid for in 1917 by a group of Pittsburgh women—the Haven of Rest Association. It was merely intended as a gathering place for the children in order that they would not have to associate with the seriously sick patients in the hospital.

"It was not designed for its present use, and it is not adequate for it. I'm sure the city can afford to erect a suitable building."

All available space at the sanitarium is now being used, according to Miss Jane Quary. Tuberculosis patients now cared for at Mayview could not be accomodated at Leech Farm, she said, adding:

"We now have 292 patients and a waiting list of 75."

LABORING MEN 'BETRAYED,' SHE SAYS

Governor's Wife Hits Employers, NRA at Steel Meetings

Charging that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson had "betrayed the workingman" in his administration of the National Recovery Act, Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, last night flatly stated he should be removed.

Addressing an organization meeting of steel workers in Gladstone Junior High School, Hazelwood, she stated that in 30 years of public life she had never seen "a more complete betrayal" than Johnson's.

The first lady of the state declared that figures recently made public by the federal government proved that the steel interests made more money under the NRA than they had ever made previously, and that, comparatively, wages had gone down instead of up.

This afternoon Mrs. Pinchot took off from the County Airport for Indianapolis. She will speak there, but denied she would join a hosiery strikers' picket line.

TALKS TWICE

Her talk at Hazelwood was the second during the evening before steel workers. Previously she had addressed the delegates to the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in convention in Elks' Auditorium.

During that address, along with a scathing and subtly political attack on Andrew W. Mellon and United States Senator David A. Reed, she assailed Johnson as a "betrayer of the American people."

She told the steel workers' convention that things would go from bad to worse until there was a redistribution of wealth.

One per cent of the American people control 60 per cent of the wealth, and 60 men in this country, including J. P. Morgan, Mellon and other bankers actually "control the country," she said.

ATTACKS MELLON

Mellon has an annual income of between $5,000,000 and $20,000,000 a year, she said she had been informed. She continued:

"With all this money, he can't eat any more than we can. He's a little bit of a man who looks to me as if he had indigestion, so maybe he doesn't eat as much.

"So, while he piles up millions, surpluses in milk and other food supplies pile up.

"With his immense wealth, there are perhaps 1,000,000 workers employed in companies under his control.

"Suppose he put $10 more a week in their pay envelopes?

"One million families would be able to buy shoes and other commodities. Factories would start up, and this would go very far in relieving the depression."

FINE IN PRINCIPLE

The NRA is a fine principle and a step in the right direction, she said, because it recognizes the fact that the nation's buying power must be increased. But, she added:

"It has not done what it was intended to do, I believe."

Wages increased to a certain extent under the NRA, but sweatshops are coming back again, she declared.

Workers must organize in trade unions to bring about real democracy, Mrs. Pinchot said. These union groups must change in their tactics to meet new conditions, she declared.

Steel bosses have increased their "spy network" among the workers five-fold since the NRA became law, according to William J. Long, one of the progressive leaders in the Amalgamated Association. Addressing the organization meeting at Hazelwood just before Mrs. Pinchot took the platform, he said:

"All we ask is that they tell the truth, without exaggeration, to the bosses. If they do that, we don't care."

M'NAIR DRIVER DANCE 'BOSS'

Mayor McNair discussed national credit dance permits and Pinchot whisky before a meeting of the Progressive Civic Association of Dormont and Mt. Lebanon last night. The Mayor held forth at an open forum after pleading he did not feel like speech-making. He said:

"The government is using up all the credit by forcing banks to take their bonds. As long as tax-exempt securities are being issued, how can people expect to get credit?"

With all the money Gov. Pinchot has borrowed it seems that he should not have the state in the liquor business, the Mayor said.

Dance permits are issued by his chauffeur, Mayor McNair said, because:

"I have to give him something to do or fire him and I can't do that because he has seven kids at home."

SMITH REPORTS 52 OUSTERS

Safety Director Ralph E. Smith has reported to Council that 52 employes in his department have been dismissed since January 1.

His report was made at the direction of Council as the result of a resolution put through by William A. Magee. Departments which have not reported are Public Works, Health and the City Solicitor's office.

In the Safety Department, the dismissal notices of 20 detectives bore the phrase, "for the good of the service." Four others, Edward McEntee, Robert S. Burke, John J. Dean and James H. McCoy, were dismissed with the reason being stated in writing.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., April 20. To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

In opposite columns appear these two different items:

Will Rogers

"Lexington, Mass., citizens march to Washington as in Revolutionary days, to protest the government having anything to do with business."

"Washington, D. C.—Secretary Perkins reports 2,750,000 employed in past year, employment in March was 80 per cent of what it was during peak of 1923-25 average. Weekly payrolls increased 70,00,000 in 12 months, since last March."

So it looks like the boys from Lexington will find quite a few along the line of march to Washington, that will be too busy to join 'em. I imagine it would be awful hard to ruin a country by paying wages. Yours,

WILL.

Shakespeare'd Be Funny Mottos for Peppermint Wafers

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Stock exchange bill has been through committee and even Bertillon couldn't recognize it now.

The committee kicked it around, smacked its face, gave it a nice set of rubber teeth and put it on the window sill to cool off.

That's what happens to all bills in committee. The commish doesn't know its own strength. It's like trimming a rose bush with a fireman's ax.

An agile legislator once thought up a bill to abolish child labor. When the commish got through with it it was a law prohibiting woodpeckers from tapping iron lampposts for maple syrup.

Shakespeare couldn't get by committee in his original form. After he had been through the word-chopper he would turn out to be funny mottoes on peppermint wafers.

Council 'Strings' On Fund to 'Sell' City

Council has amended a resolution appropriating $30,000 to the Pittsburgh Industrial Development Commission to make the payment of the money contingent on the raising of $100,000 from private sources.

The commission is being revived in an effort to bring additional industries to the city.

ASKS RENT FUND FOR JOBLESS

Asserting that the present system of relief distribution is wasteful, Anthony Ramuglia, of Allentown, yesterday asked the State Emergency Relief Board at Harrisburg to consider the payment of rent for families of unemployed.

Ramuglia, who was a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Unemployment League, referred to recent disorders in Pittsburgh and Allentown, where crowds fought officers seeking to evict families.

The board allocated $9,739,285 for April relief work and for food and clothing for the last half of the month. The allocation was made possible by a grant of $10,059,931. Allegheny County was granted $670,684.

TRACTION FIGHT BRIEFS FILED

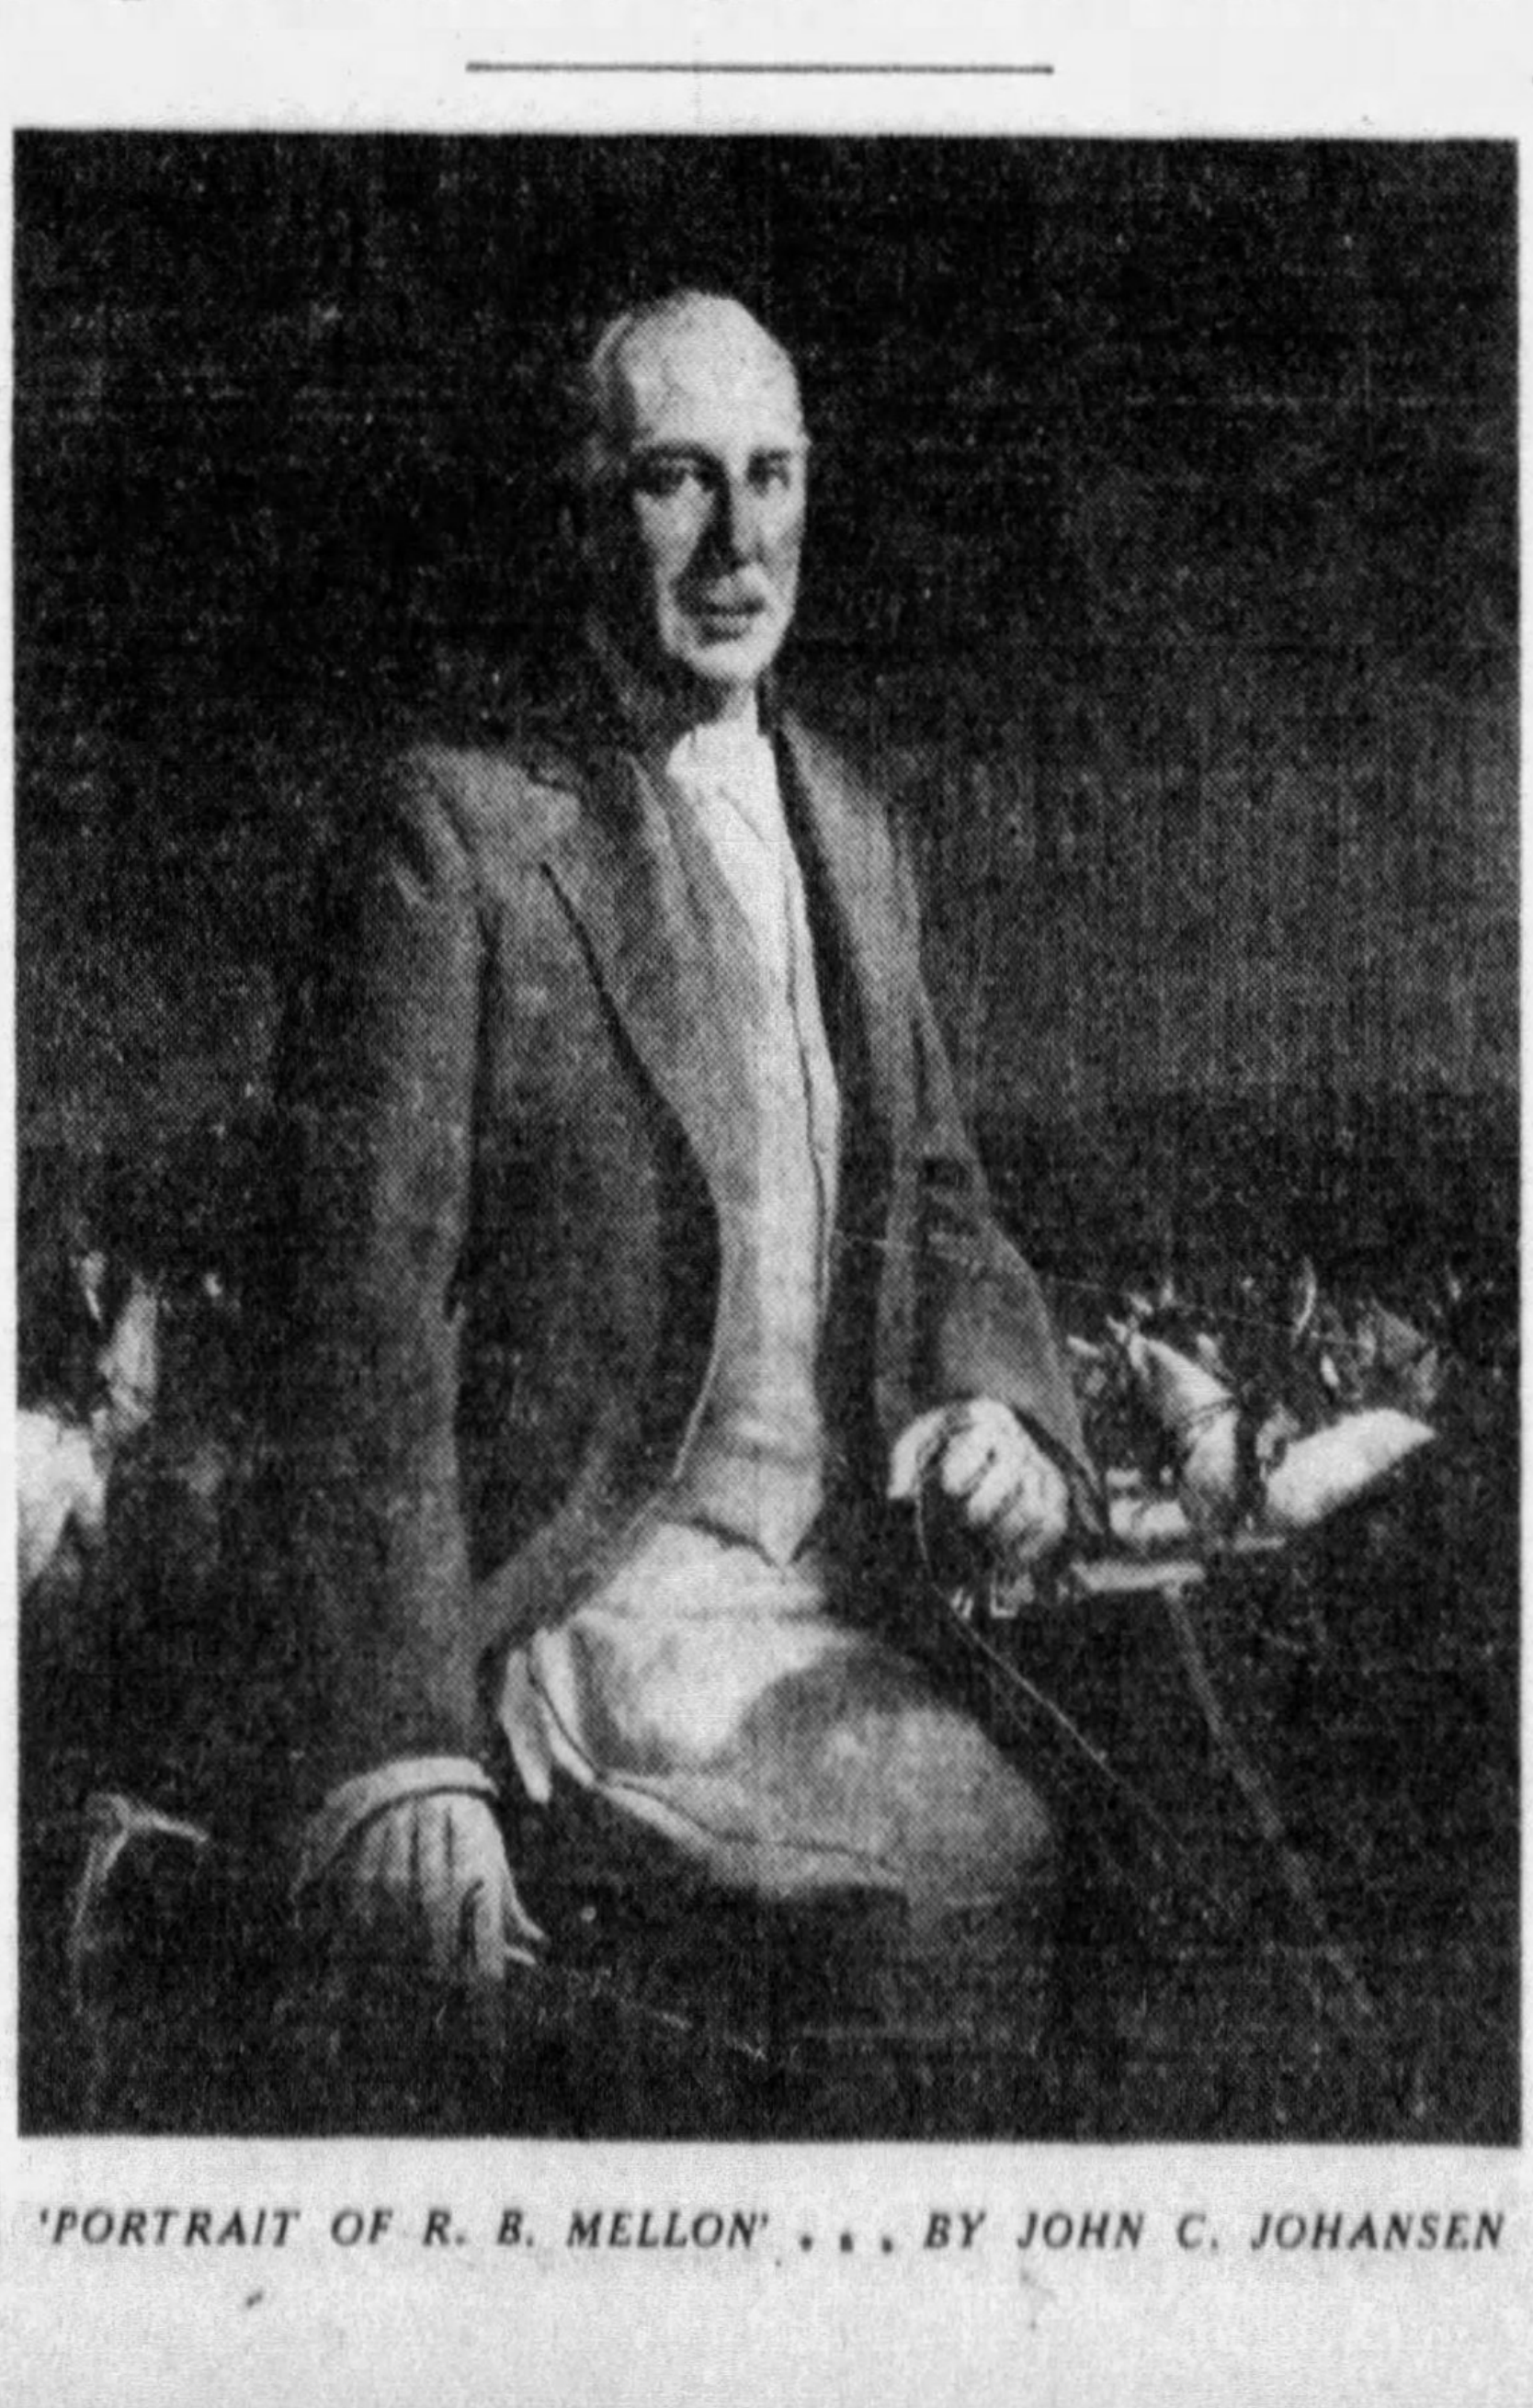
The Pittsburgh Railways Company has filed briefs with the Public Service Commission preparatory to a hearing before the full commission Monday at 2 p. m. in Harrisburg on a two-year extension of the Traction Conference Board agreement.

The Allied Boards of Trade which contested the extension will be represented. The agreement is with the city and deals with fees the company pays for use of the streets.

The railways company contends that the Allied Boards failed until April 11, 1934, to protest the extension of the agreement, and thus has been negligent.

The company pictures a disrupted trolley system in Pittsburgh if the agreement is not extended.

PORTRAIT OF R. B. MELLON EXHIBITED



'PORTRAIT OF R. B. MELLON' . . . BY JOHN C. JOHANSEN

Johansen Canvas to Be Donated to Rolling Rock

A portrait of the late Richard Beatty Mellon has been placed on temporary exhibition in the galleries of the Carnegie Institute. The painting is by John C. Johansen, American artist.

The portrait will remain in the galleries at the institute until May 12, after which it will be taken to the Rolling Rock Club. It is to be presented by a group of friends and associates of Mr. Mellon to the club of which he and his brother, Andrew W. Mellon, were the founders.

The painting shows Mr. Mellon in riding clothes on his favorite horse. In the background are members of the club preparing for a ride. In the distance, the landscape is of the country about Ligonier, where the Rolling Rock Club is located.

John C. Johansen, who painted the portrait, is well known in Pittsburgh. He has been represented in practically all of the internationals since 1903. His painting "The Village Rider" was awarded an honorable mention in the Sixteenth International held in 1912. The painting "Borderland," which was in the Twenty-second International, was purchased through the Patrons Art Fund and now hangs in the permanent collection at the institute.

FRICK TRUSTEE SUES U. S.

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, trustee for the late Mrs. Adelaide H. C. Frick, under the will of Henry C. Frick, steel and coal magnate, filed a suit in Federal Court against the government, seeking to recover $103,462.52, with interest. Mrs. Frick died October 4, 1931.

The trustee avers in a statement of claim that the amount involved was erroneously and illegally assessed and collected as income taxes for the years 1927 to 1931, inclusive, by the collector of internal revenue.

The statement of claim sets forth that the late steelmaster by his will bequeathed to the trust company, as trustee, a certain sum of money in trust, to invest and reinvest, with proceeds to apply to the residue of his wife during her lifetime, and overpayment on taxes was made during the various years.

The trustee seeks refund of $21,217.68 for 1927; $22,513.10 for 1928; $22,509.43 for 1929; $19,439.13 for 1930, and $17,783.18 for 1931.

"I don't want the operation. I want to marry and have children."

She was included with the others, however. But eventually she may establish her right to motherhood as the law provides for a guardian who may appeal decision of the board. It lies in the discretion of the guardian to make the appeal.

New Deal Bobs Up As New Study In Schools

CHICAGO, April 20.—The "New Deal" has bobbed up as a special subject in some American high schools, and in others as part of courses in civics, economics or sociology, the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools reveals.

A report of the association's committee on studies said:

"Several schools now include a study of the NRA and other New Deal topics. In one, it is compulsory.

"We cannot but wonder if there may not possibly be too great emphasis upon the current situation, and if some of the emotional upset may not tend to cause neglect of emphasis on fundamental principles of economics."

FACING DEATH IN 'GAS ROOM,' YOUTH JESTS

CANON CITY, Col., April 20.—(AP.)—His manner almost flippant, Walter Reppin, 18, Newark, N. J., talks light-heartedly to three other condemned slayers in the "death house" at the Colorado Penitentiary here about which one will be the first victim of the state's yet unused lethal gas chamber.

When he was brought to prison to await execution last January for killing Vincent Regan, Colorado Springs student taxi driver, Reppin was a terrified, pale-faced youth, plainly showing the horror with which he awaited death.

But since the Colorado Supreme Court stayed his execution, Reppin has grown steadily more cheerful until now he's confident he will be granted a new trial and will not again be sentenced to breathe death in the little brick building he has seen in the prison grounds.

Gov. E. C. Johnson refused him clemency but volunteer lawyers appealed his case on the ground he was an infant in the eyes of the law and should not have been allowed to plead guilty to murder.

The counsel, as well as the Colorado Attorney General and his aides, filed briefs and the Supreme Court heard their oral arguments and the eight judges now are deliberating whether to uphold Reppin's conviction and sentence and re-set the date of his execution, or to grant him a new trial.

Reppin is sure they will favor him in their decision. He says:

"But I wish I could get religion like Kelley. I've tried, but I can't. It's just natural with Kelley."

Reppin's three "room-mates" are Louis and John Pacheco, beet field workers, and Lloyd Frady.

Detective's Son Bared as 'Burglar'

KENOSHA, Wis., April 20.—(AP.)—Frank Schneeberger, chief of the Kenosha detective bureau, had the answer ready when a theater owner reported an attempted burglary.

The night before the detective had searched frantically for his 9-year-old son, Frank, Jr., who returned with a story that he fell asleep in the theater and was forced to break a door lock when he awoke and found the place closed.

Divorces were granted to Leota H. Shepherd from Ralph E. Shepherd, Grace Wallace from Peter J. Wallace, Albert Feller from Mona Feller and to Angeline Sasso from John Sasso.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

Viewing the New

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply . . . THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

* * *

Stunning!" we breathed as we stood in admiring attitude before one of the best looking costumes we've seen in many a day. It's just the sort you of GOOD taste will choose for almost any occasion throughout the late spring and summer season (excepting, of course, evening affairs).

A navy sheer . . . with a dusty pink linen coat to the knees (wearable with other frocks, you know this without being told) . . . and dusty pink linen carnations rambling down the front of the frock diagonally from one shoulder. Just simple enough to wear to town for luncheon . . . just chic enough to wear to the Continental Bar (if you go in for barring!) . . . just swanky and swish enough to take you to dinner with the Big Thrill of the moment. In misses' sizes. $27.50.

And one of the same idea in brown and beige. It being done up in little waggish checks with silvery buttons going down the front (they look like the symbols you draw for a game of tit-tat-toe!) And a natural linen coat . . . also to the knees . . . also priced $27.50.

* * *

With initials on everything but the teakettle these days (fool's names and their faces again, you know!) it's nice to know that you can get silver metal ones to put on bags for the small sum of 10c each. Which is quite out of the ordinary for initial prices as you must know (the cheapest we've seen heretofore being 35c each).

* * *

Dragonflies and beetles are here already even though Summer is still well around the corner. They're Patou's . . . and perch very airily on your hat . . . your shoulder . . . or even your bag. Of crystal with nice green eyes to peer at one. $1.00 (Pins, we almost forgot to add.)

* * *

Cleanliness is next to godliness of course . . . but beauty and sweet smellingness ought to be next to something of the kind too, we think. And we hailed with acclaim this discovery that one of the stores has boxes and boxes of round cakes of soap . . . 9 in a box . . . pink, orchid, white, and yellow . . . and smelling SOOO sweetly!

Gardenia, verbena, violet, and rose "flavors" and priced only 29c the box. Just to do right by your bathroom.

* * *

And if shrugging your shoulders is one of your whims . . . wear a taffeta or organdie cape (just out) and find how much more impressive you are!

The organdies have two rows of ruffles at the edge and another at the neck . . . come in white, black, pink and brown. $1.98.

While the taffetas . . . at $2.98 . . . are fitted to the shoulder via some tiny seams . . . have the same ruffles at the bottom . . . and tie under your chin with a big bow. Pink, blue, white, red. And if you don't land him in one of these you'd better start reading ads about toothbrushes, or something!

* * *

We started out for a tour of the clothes situation . . . and got ourselves submerged with this result . . .

That we struggled out one doorway laden with copious notes on these string dresses that are causing may ears to prick up and many shopping noses to sniff the air delightedly! Yellow and brown ones . . . white and reds . . . aqua and browns . . . and of such quality that the mere mention of $10.95 for them seems sacrilege! Two piece in sizes 14 to 20.

—DOROTHY RANDALL

Interior of Stomach Setting For Amusing Presentation At 20th Century Club

The interior of a stomach is certainly an original setting for a play. But that's what Mrs. J. Reynolds Pierpoint chose for the setting of "There Ought to Be a Law," her prize-winning play which was presented at the Twentieth Century Club yesterday afternoon.

The stage's regulation black velvet drapes with particularly effective lighting effects set the "interior of Mrs. Charles Morrison's stomach" where Gastric Juice met and was finally overcome by the dancing, cavorting, "incompatibles" which came down the stairs into the stomach—from cocktails right on through to the end of the "intake" when Gastric Juice collapses, calls for Soda, and declares "There Ought to Be a Law."

In acting honors, Mrs. Richard D. Baker as Gastric Juice walked off with the laurels.

Mrs. Thomas McC. Mabon was the wife in the second prize winner, Mrs. Frances Liggett West's "Sweet and Simple"—the wife who convinced her husband that the "sweet and simple type" wasn't so desirable after all.

Mrs. Lindsay Auxiliary Speaker

"Something New For Your Garden" will be detailed by Mrs. Alexander P. Lindsay when she addresses the Western Pennsylvania Section of the Woman's Auxiliary to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers Tuesday afternoon. The meeting, preceded by luncheon, will take place at the Pittsburgh Field Club, hostesses being Mrs. John Carlock, Mrs. J. French Robinson, Mrs. Herbert Graham, Mrs. William Pringle and Mrs. Hubert Stark.

Mrs. James C. Rea will entertain the section at her country home near Rector, Pa., on May 23. It's to be a luncheon meeting, too.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Margaret Sherman Phillips, youngest daughter of Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., of Butler, a candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania and former congressman, and of Mrs. Phillips, was the first debutante of the past fall to become engaged, and she'll be the first to be married.

Her marriage to Augustus Craig Succop, son of the C. H. E. Succops, of Castleman street, Pittsburgh, will take place in Phillips Hall, the Phillipses' country home on the Butler Plank road near Butler, Pa., at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of Saturday, May 5. Only members of the two families and close friends will attend the ceremony.

Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart, of Washington, the former Janet Phillips, will be her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Helen C. Spaide, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland L. Spaide, of Butler, will be bridesmaid. There will be two ribbon-bearers—Suzanne Phillips, daughter of the Houghton Phillipses, of Butler, and John Succop, the bridegroom's small brother. Ernest Evans, of Pittsburgh, will be his cousin's best man.

Officiating at the ceremony will be the Rev. Dr. Samuel Semple, of Titusville, Pa., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Titusville, for 25 years. Harvey Gaul will be organist.

Mary Louise Hunter Engaged to Marry

Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Hunter, of McKeesport, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Louise, to W. D. Mansfield, Jr., son of Senator and Mrs. W. D. Mansfield, of McKeesport.

Mary Louise is a graduate of the Baldwin School, Philadelphia, and of Wellesley. She spent her junior college year at the University of Munich, Munich, Germany. Her fiance was graduated from Brown University, Providence, R. I.

Enjoyable Concert At 20th Century Club

One of the most enjoyable concerts of a season abounding in concerts was, I think, the program of sonatas played last night in the Twentieth Century Club by Mischa Mischakoff, violinist, and Henry Harris, pianist and Pittsburgh son.

Many of Pittsburgh's most dependable concert-goers were there—Mrs. William Maclay Hall, president of the Pittsburgh Symphony, for example. She wore a soft rose crepe dress, with the skirt fashioned with a slight train.

Vivacious, petite Mrs. Dan Tatom was in chiffon, printed in yellow and brown tones. And I saw Mrs. Wallis J. Tener in black lace, Mrs. A. S. F. Keister and Mrs. Suzanne Swing.

Mrs. Edwin Ruud was in a box, and so were the Louis B. Hayses. Mrs. Hays chose a pistachio green chiffon dress.

Others I recall seeing were Mrs. Jacob S. Payton, in black lace; William R. Shulgold, and many other music lovers.

"Wild Horse Mesta" will be the thrilling western film at the children's "movie" at the Enright Theater tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. These movies are sponsored by a group of persons and organizations interested in providing suitable entertainment for little boys and girls. And the group of sponsors includes the cludes the Junior League.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bidding the Hand Well

There is a beautiful chain of inferences stretching between the partnership hands in all those cases in which fine bidding has resulted in the correct eventual contract's being reached. On the other hand, the chain has snapped, as it were, in those hands which should produce magnificent results for a partnership but on which, through some fault in the bidding, the partners do not reach the correct result.

H. C. Beecher, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., has submitted to me the hands below, held by him as South and his partner, Mr. Green, in which they stopped at a contract of five hearts though a Grand Slam is obviously a laydown.

South, Dealer.

♠ 5 4
♢ A J 6 4 2

North
West East
South

♢ K
♣ A 9

The actual bidding was:

2♠	3♣
3♡	4♢
4NT	5♣
5♡	Pass

Mr. Green suggested the following bidding:

South	North
2♠	3♣
3♡	5♣
5NT	7♣
Pass

Mr. Beecher thought his bidding should have gone as follows:

South	North
2♠	3♣
3♡	4♢
5NT	7♣
Pass

I am frank to say that I agree with Mr. Green's bidding in preference to Mr. Beecher's, but in my judgment there is yet a further step to be taken, even in Mr. Green's fine bidding—namely, South should bid seven notrump. The Opening bid of two spades is, of course, fully justified with South's strong hand, his five-plus honor-tricks and his good distribution. North, with one six-card and one five-card suit and 2½ honor-tricks in his hand, has ample strength not only to bid a suit but to bid two suits and later to carry the contract to a Slam.

When South hears North's response of four diamonds, obviously his next bid is five notrump, showing three Aces and the King of a bid suit. Inasmuch as North has one Ace himself, that clearly places the club Ace in the South hand and the bid of seven clubs by North is automatic. The reason why I should prefer a final bid of seven notrump is to guard against an unfavorable suit break. Played in notrump the contract is certain if either clubs or hearts break, whereas an unfavorable trump break or a ruff of the Opening lead might defeat the contract if undertaken at a suit declaration.

The objection to the line of bidding suggested by Mr. Beecher lies in the fact that North utterly fails to disclose at any time his second biddable suit. There is no reason whatever why he should not bid four diamonds over three hearts, and certainly the bid of five clubs over three hearts is a bad mistake. After an Opening Forcing bid has been made the partners do not need to hurry. Every effort should be made to disclose information that will help the partners to reach the best contract and not prevent it.

The actual bidding was very fine so far as the first two rounds were concerned but when South bid four notrump rather than five notrump, he made an underbid. He had the three Aces and the King. He had received two strong responses from his partner. There was no reason why he should underbid, although even after five hearts, had I held Mr. Green's hand, I would have made another bid.

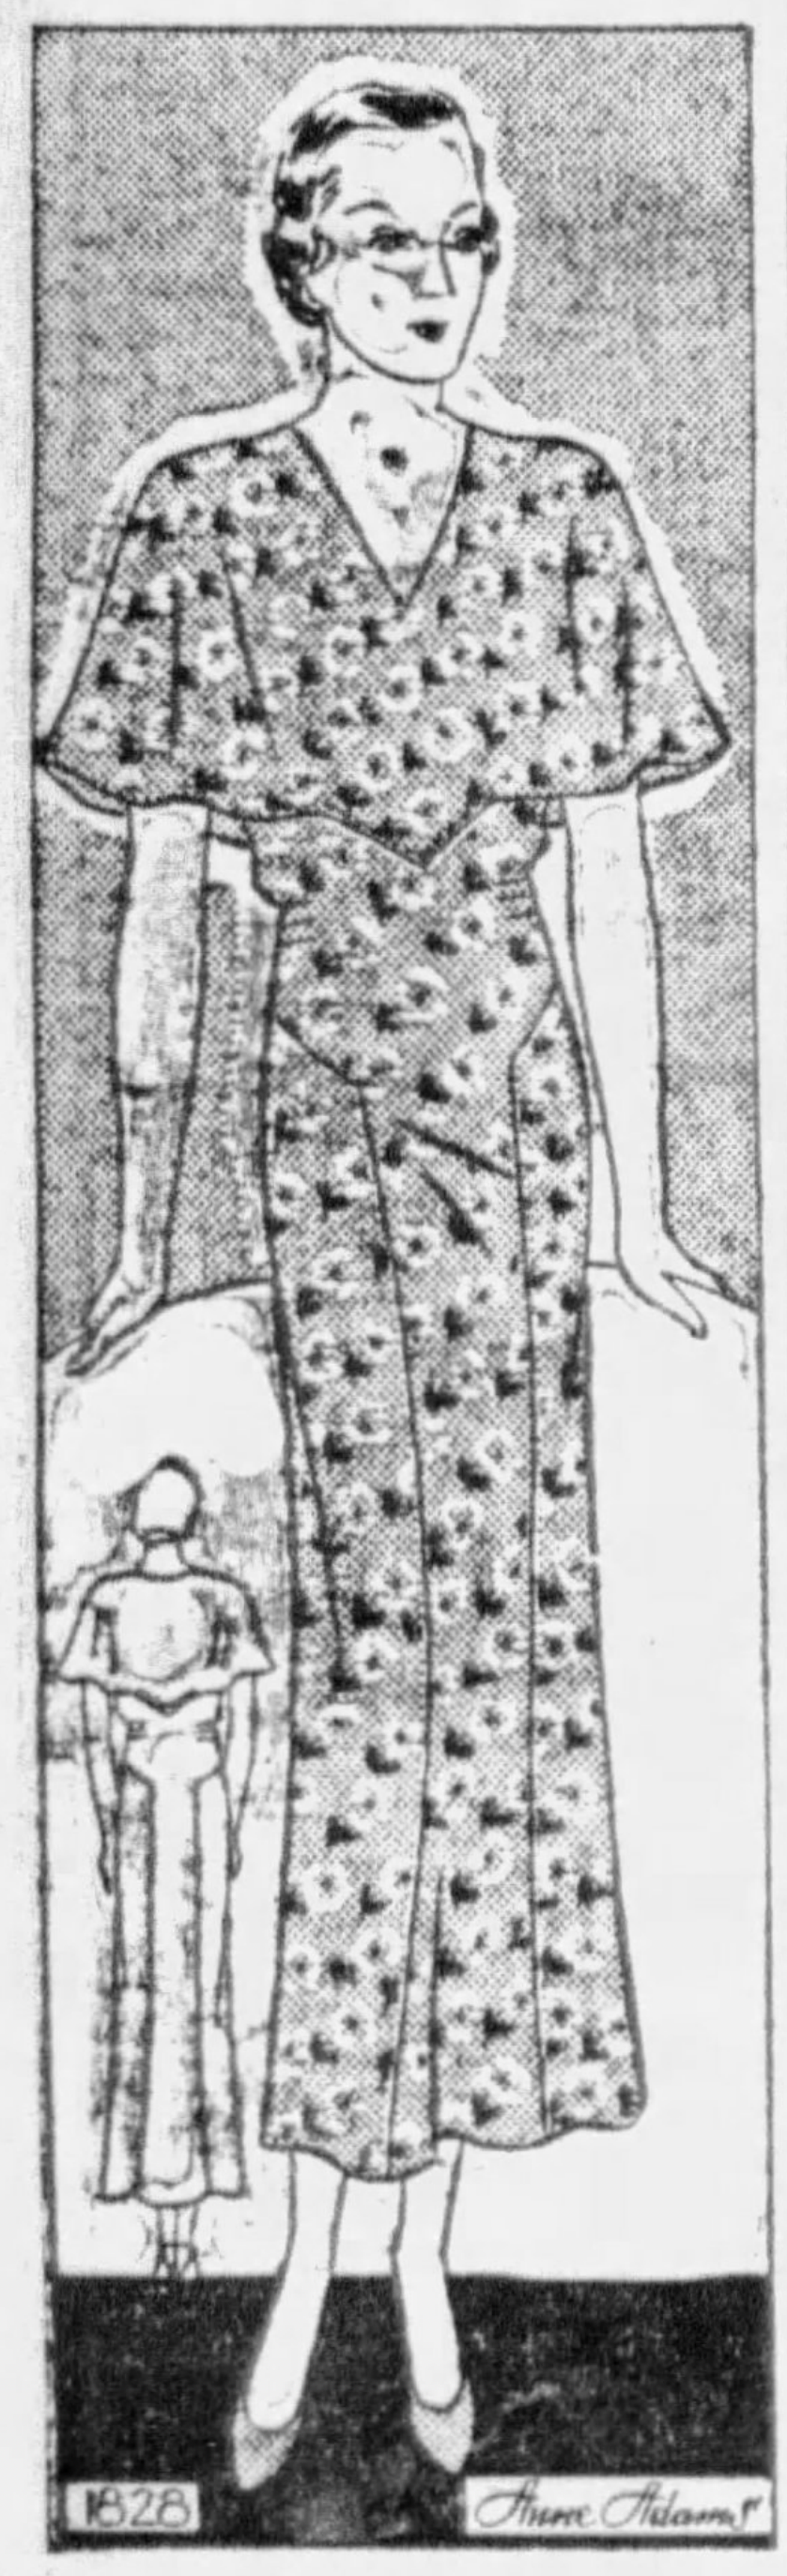
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern



A cape frock is not only young looking, but surprisingly slenderizing. This one particularly so, since it has been designed to cover a full bust and stout arms. The silhouette is further slimmed by an absence of belt and by those delightful and carefully planned skirt panels. A charming frock for a sheer fabric in silk or cotton, in print or monotone. We like the new dark grounds with small, spaced colorful motifs—they're ideal for full figures. The cape may be fashioned of contrast if you wish.

Pattern 1828 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4¼ yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

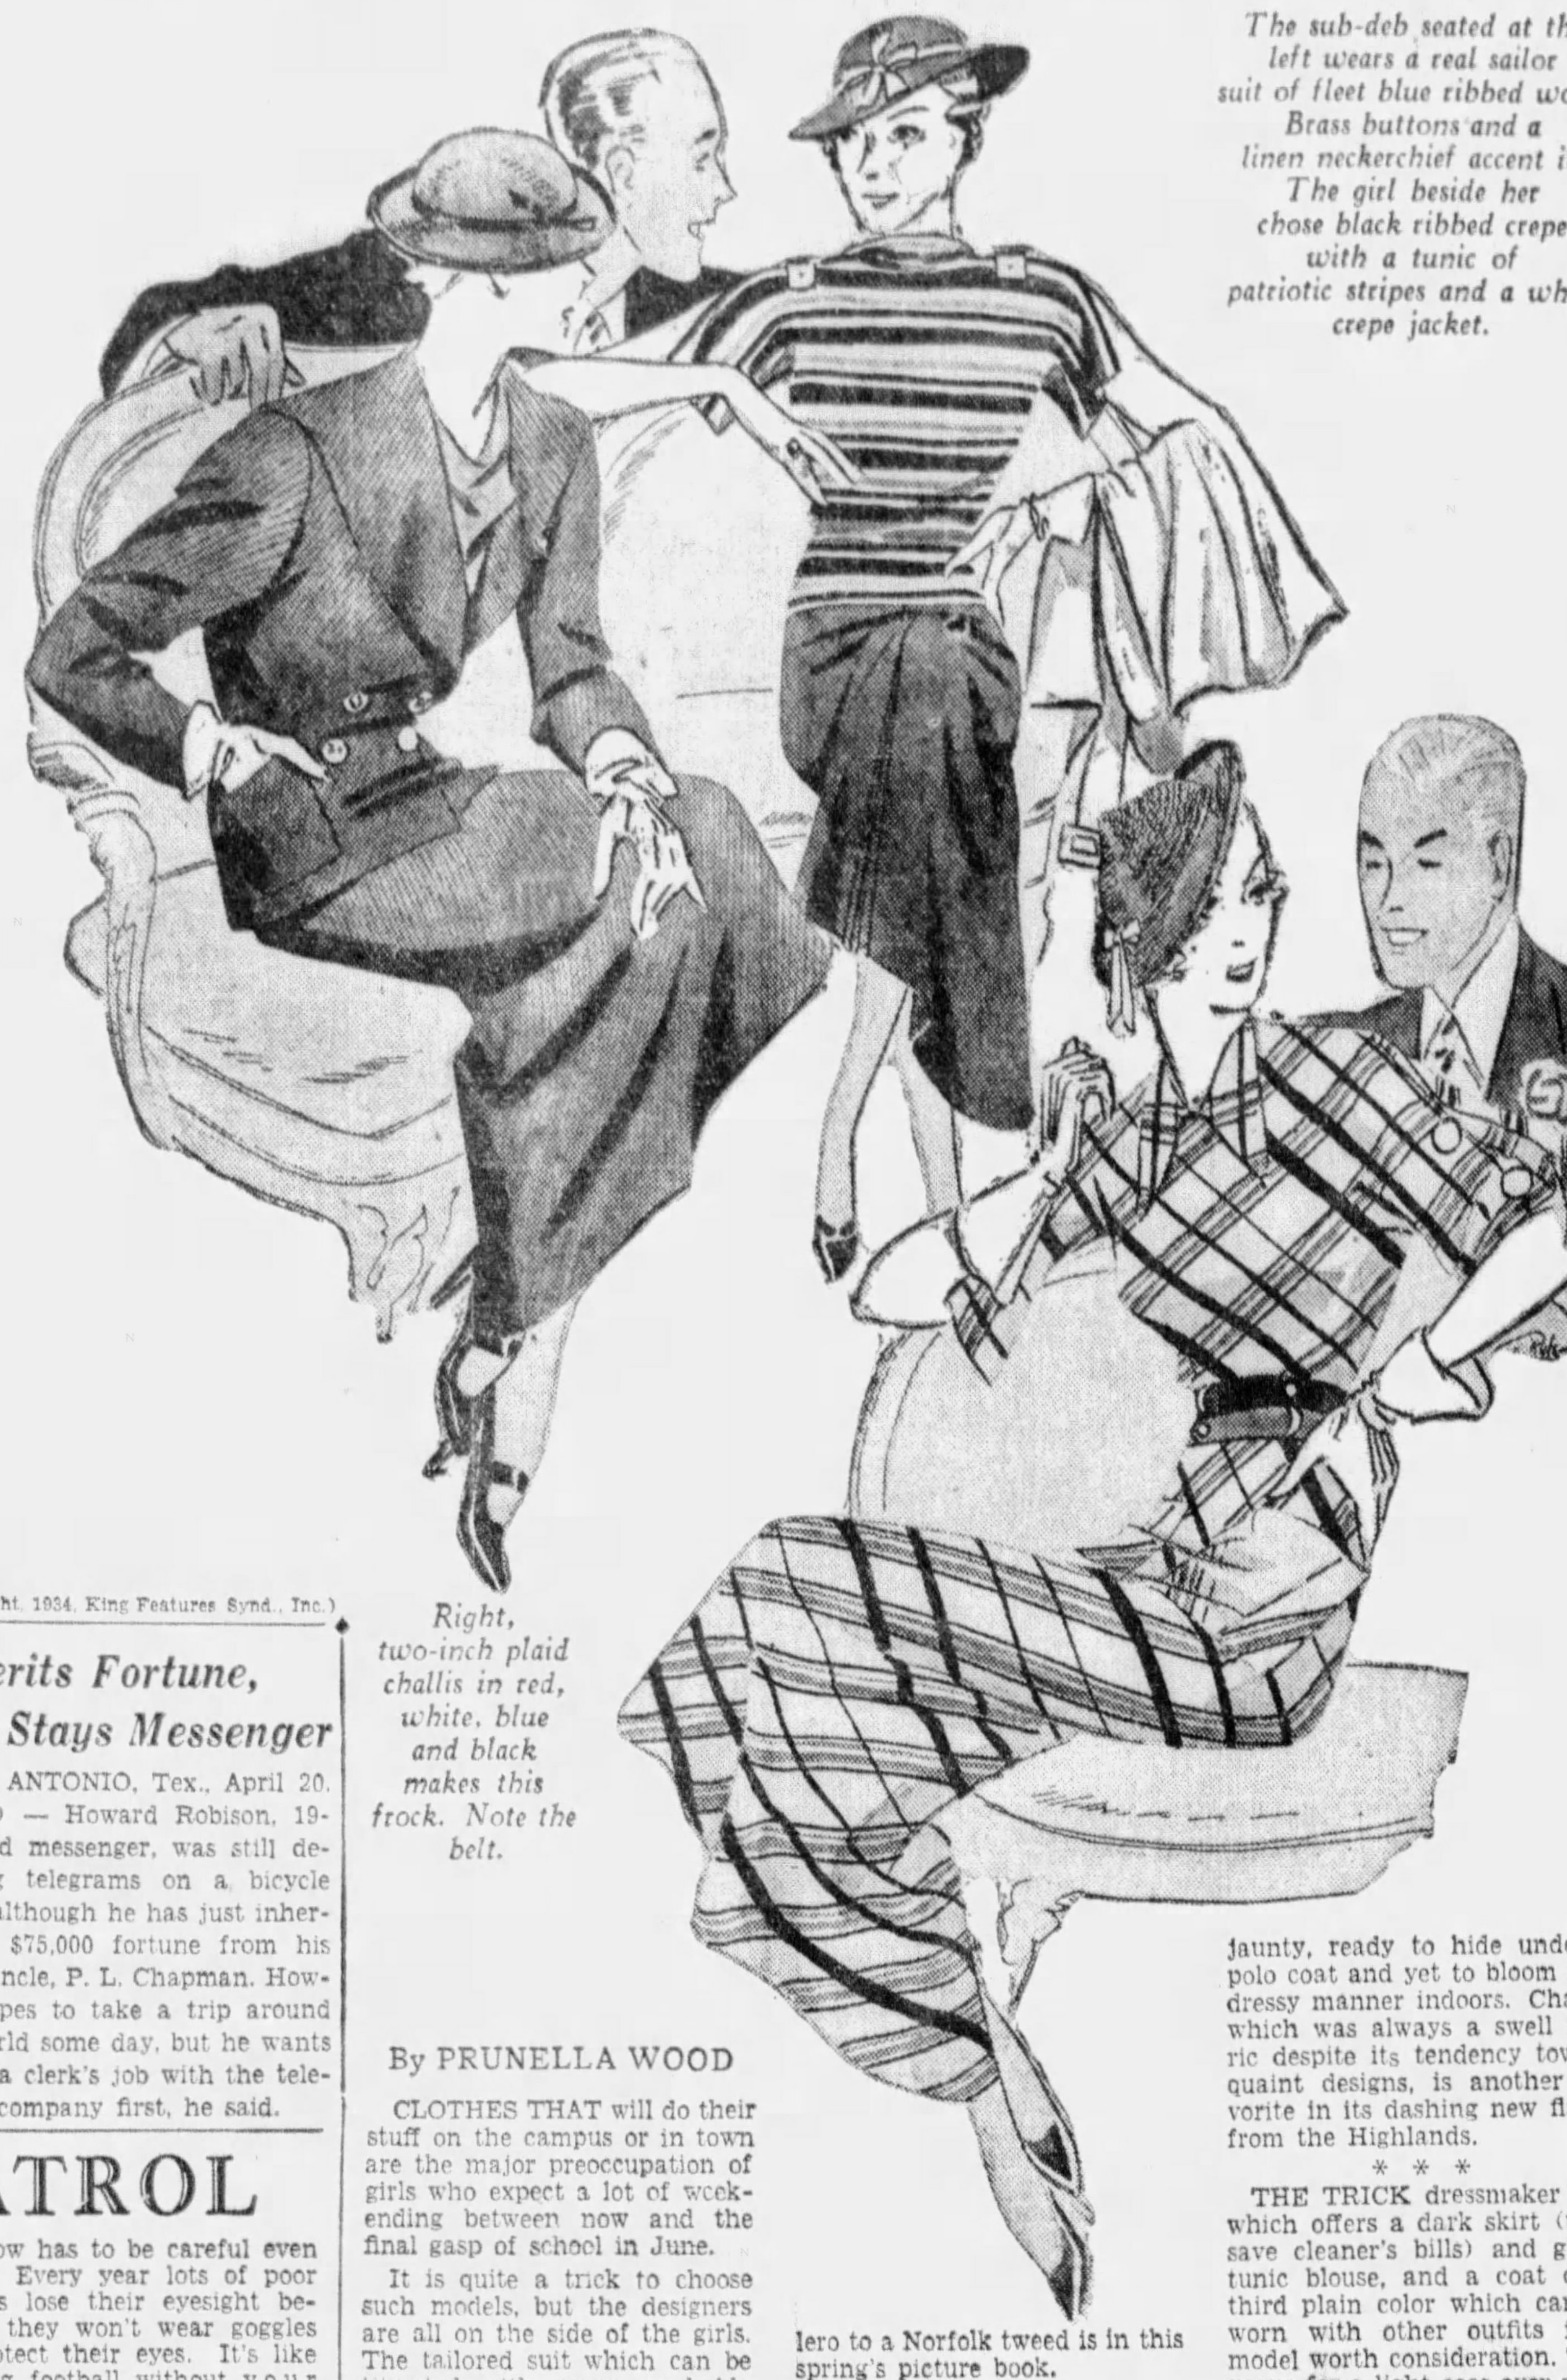
TWO-TIMERS FOR SCHOOL DAYS



The sub-deb seated at the left wears a real sailor suit of fleet blue ribbed wool. Brass buttons and a linen neckerchief accent it. The girl beside her chose black ribbed crepe with a tunic of patriotic stripes and a white crepe jacket.

Right, two-inch plaid challis in red, white, blue and black makes this frock. Note the belt.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

CLOTHES THAT will do their stuff on the campus or in town are the major preoccupation of girls who expect a lot of week-ending between now and the final gasp of school in June.

It is quite a trick to choose such models, but the designers are all on the side of the girls. The tailored suit which can be titivated with many washable blouses, proper hats and smart accessories is always a stand-by, and everything from a pert bolero to a Norfolk tweed is in this spring's picture book.

* * *

TAFFETA SEEMS to be the heart beat for Sunday and tea-time frocks, cut short and jaunty, ready to hide under a polo coat and yet to bloom in a dressy manner indoors. Challis, which was always a swell fabric despite its tendency toward quaint designs, is another favorite in its dashing new flavor from the Highlands.

* * *

THE TRICK dressmaker suit which offers a dark skirt (they save cleaner's bills) and giddy tunic blouse, and a coat of a third plain color which can be worn with other outfits is a model worth consideration. This vogue for a light coat over some such blouse and skirt combination looks like a big number for immediate spring wear.

Inherits Fortune, Stays Messenger

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 20.—(AP.)—Howard Robison, 19-year-old messenger, was still delivering telegrams on a bicycle today although he has just inherited a $75,000 fortune from his great uncle, P. L. Chapman. Howard hopes to take a trip around the world some day, but he wants to get a clerk's job with the telegraph company first, he said.

JUNIOR PATROL

The eleventh annual safety engineering conference and exhibit was held in Pittsburgh yesterday, fellows!

Many important men, and safety engineers who have been studying for years how to make roads, railways, industrial plants and everything we use safely, were there.

They have put guards around dangerous whirling machinery, belts and wheels that might catch workmen's fingers or clothing.

They have put guard fences along the roads and non-skid treads on stairs. But all these safety devices can't help much if people are careless and heedless.

No safety sign or warning can stop a crazy fellow from driving too fast or make a sleepy fellow remember to look up and down before he steps off the curb.

But gradually the world is making progress. We have cut down the number of accidents and deaths a lot already.

Junior Patrol members can help in this work a lot, especially right in their own homes. The safety experts tell us that a great many injuries are caused by falls, many of them down stairs right in people's homes.

How about the stairway in your own home, fellows? Is it dark, so that people can't see where they step? Are there any tacks sticking up, or holes in the carpet in which people might trip? Do you ever leave your toys on the landing, over which people may stumble or slip and fall down?

These are the kind of things Junior Patrol members can watch, and help others by telling the family about them. Don't let boards with nails sticking up lay around. Somebody may step on it and run the nail into his foot.

Every accident has a cause. You can remove the causes, but a fellow has to be careful even then. Every year lots of poor fellows lose their eyesight because they won't wear goggles to protect their eyes. It's like playing football without your headguard.

ILL CHILD HALTS BIG BRIDGE JOB

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—When they tacked up the scarlet fever quarantine sign on 6-year-old Norma Shea's door, Norma's family weren't the only ones to worry. For important work on the new $41,000,000 Triborough Bridge, connecting Manhattan, Queens and the Bronx, must wait until Norma is allowed to go out and play.

Paul Loeser, general manager of the Triborough Bridge Authority, was informed that Norma's quarantined home was one of the first of a block of buildings scheduled to be demolished next week for the new bridge ramps. Loeser said:

"I really don't know what we can do in such an emergency."

LAURA WHEELER LINEN DESIGNS

When winter is over we somehow like to have our lines reflect the bright colors nature is showing all about us. These motifs certainly offer the needlewoman an opportunity to be as colorful as she pleases; the wreaths are formed of daisy-like flowers, each petal of which is made of a single stitch. The flowers can be done in two shades of one color to get a shaded effect or each wreath can be in a variety of pastel colors. These motifs are attractive on luncheon sets, tea cloths, scarfs, cushions and pillow cases as well as other linens. The embroidery is greatly simplified by a step-by-step guide which shows by means of illustrations each step in the use and embroidering of the pattern as well as telling how to make a variety of articles and offering color suggestions.

Pattern 649 comes to you with a transfer pattern of two motifs 5½x16 inches, two motifs 4½x10 inches and 12 1½x3 inch motifs; and the step-by-step guide.

Send 15 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Acceptance and Regrets

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please be good enough to advise me of the proper manner to accept an invitation to a wedding and decline the invitation to the reception following? J.

If the invitation is, as it probably is, a formal one to a church ceremony, with the reception invitation a separate card, it is not necessary to acknowledge the invitation to the church ceremony. The church-ceremony invitation reads, in the second line, "request the honor of your presence." The invitation to the reception, reads, in the second line, "request the pleasure of your company," and it is this that requires an answer.

So, since you are planning to send your regrets to the reception invitation, your answer reads:

Mr. Arthur Wells Jackson regrets that he is unable to accept
Mr. and Mrs. (Bride's Parent)'s kind invitation for Tuesday, the first of June

(In a "regret," it is, obviously, not necessary to repeat the hour mentioned in the invitation.)

Thank-You Note

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When visiting in another city and being invited to a friend's home for dinner, is it necessary to write and thank the host and hostess after returning to my home town?

2—When clearing the table for the dessert, which is correct, to remove first the food or service plates? L.

1—You will make your hostess happy and you will show that you are a polite and appreciative person if you write a note of thanks-for-the-hospitality to your hostess. Even more charming it would be if you write this note the day after the party, if you possibly can, enclosing it in a box of flowers. You wouldn't write a separate note to the host, but in your note to the hostess you would ask her to tell her husband how very much you appreciate their kind invitation, and what a hapy time you had at their party.

2—It is usually more convenient to remove the food first and then the dinner plates.

Present Him to 'Miss'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how to introduce a girl of 16 years of age to my husband "Miss" sounds rather reserved and yet the Christian name sounds too familiar. Should I have said "introduce my husband to a girl of 16?" S.

Yes, you should have said, "introduce my husband to a girl of 16," even if the girl is such a young lady. And even though such a young lady, you should use the "Miss" before her name when you make the introduction. "Miss Albey, may I present my husband" or "Miss Albey this is my husband," or "Miss Albey, my husband."

INCREASING TAX LAID TO COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Universal Service.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 20.—Increasing tax burdens due to county government were depicted here by Dr. George W. Spicer, professor of political science of the University of Virginia.

Dr. Spicer spoke at the opening session of the 10-day Tennessee Valley Institute at the University of Chattanooga. His prepared address was the principal feature of the round-table discussion that launched the ambitious schedule of the institute.

Declaring that county governments in the South were "designed in an ox-cart age for entirely different conditions and have long since been rendered obsolete by the vast changes that have taken place since local governmental structures were created in the United States," Dr. Spicer said that until recently county governments had received but scant attention from students of public affairs or from the general public.

COST INCREASE

Dr. Spicer said:

"No more convincing evidence of the importance of the unit of government need be sought than the fact that the cost of county government in Tennessee rose from $9,943,041 in 1913 to $45,612,815 in 1929."

After reviewing the changes that have taken place since original county lines were drawn, including the modern means of transportation and communication, Dr. Spicer said that county governments were unable to render efficient service because of the lack of population and wealth to support essential services. He continued:

"Second only to the problem of reorganization is that of inducing the small, poor counties to surrender a flimsy local pride in favor of a local government unit of sufficient area, population and wealth to meet the demands of modern community life in an efficient and economical manner.

'SERIOUS PROBLEM'

"Perhaps a more serious problem than any defect or organization on procedure is to be found in the appalling apathy and indifference of the average rural citizen to the needs and welfare of his local government. The reform movement must become popular if it is to succeed without the sacrifice of local government, but such a movement cannot become popular unless the people understand the issues involved and this understanding can come only through education of the county electorates."

Dr. Spicer said that in order for county governmental reform to succeed the responsibility must be shouldered by three groups, the newspapers, officers of the several counties and organized citizen groups.

Pitt Students Favor New State Constitution

Would Give Governor Seat in Legislature, Abolish Squires

And this is the way they would do it:

Provide for the Governor to be elected to a four-year term, also giving him a seat in the Legislature, where he could introduce measures.

Have all judges appointed for life.

Abolish aldermen and justices of the peace and create small claims courts.

Empower the Governor to appoint district attorneys.

Make the Legislature a unicameral body, all members elected at once from seven economically formed districts.

This program will be presented by Pitt delegates to the Intercollegiate Constitutional Convention to be held in Harrisburg April 27, 28, 29. John P. Bracken, of Pitt, is chairman.

2 FINED IN RAIL PASS VIOLATION

Milas Sales, of 2817 Webster avenue, and his nephew, Milas J. Tidline, of 522 Morgan street, were fined $100 each in Federal Court when they pleaded guilty of illegal use of a railroad pass, a violation of a federal statute.

Tidline, a "redcap" at the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Station, obtained through the latter company a pass for transporatiton on the Pennsylvania Railroad from Pittsburgh to Washington. He and some friends decided to go to the capital by automobile and the railroad pass was turned over to the uncle.

The latter used the free transportation, but after the conductor questioned the signature of identification, Sales got off the train at Greensburg. Later he and his nephew were indicted on complaint of railroad officials.

The court allowed them one year in which to pay the fines.

MANY MISHAPS LAID TO SPORTS

Baseball caused 2,120 accidents that cost $154,964 in damage awards between 1922 and 1930, according to a report submitted yesterday at the safety engineering conference held in Fort Pitt Hotel under the auspices of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council.

There were 373 football accidents costing $24,400. Less than 800 hunting accidents cost $567,301.

The report was submitted by W. H. Cameron, managing director of the National Safety Council. William B. Rodgers, president of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council announced the winners of the trophies in the safety contests at the closing session.

50 TO CONFRONT BOY IN SLAYING

Fifty witnesses, nine of them from Illinois, will be called by the commonwealth to testify in Criminal Court against Thomas A. Davis, Jr., 19, of Banksville, who will be arraigned Monday for the slaying of Herbert Brantlinger, state highway patrolman.

Brantlinger was shot fatally during a holdup near Bridgeville on the William Penn highway September 3. Davis was apprehended in Illinois, where, it is alleged, he confessed to a part in the holdup and shooting.

Included among the state's witnesses will be ballistic experts who will testify that the fatal bullet was fired from the revolver found on Davis at the time of his arrest.

Aged Man Chases Wife From Home

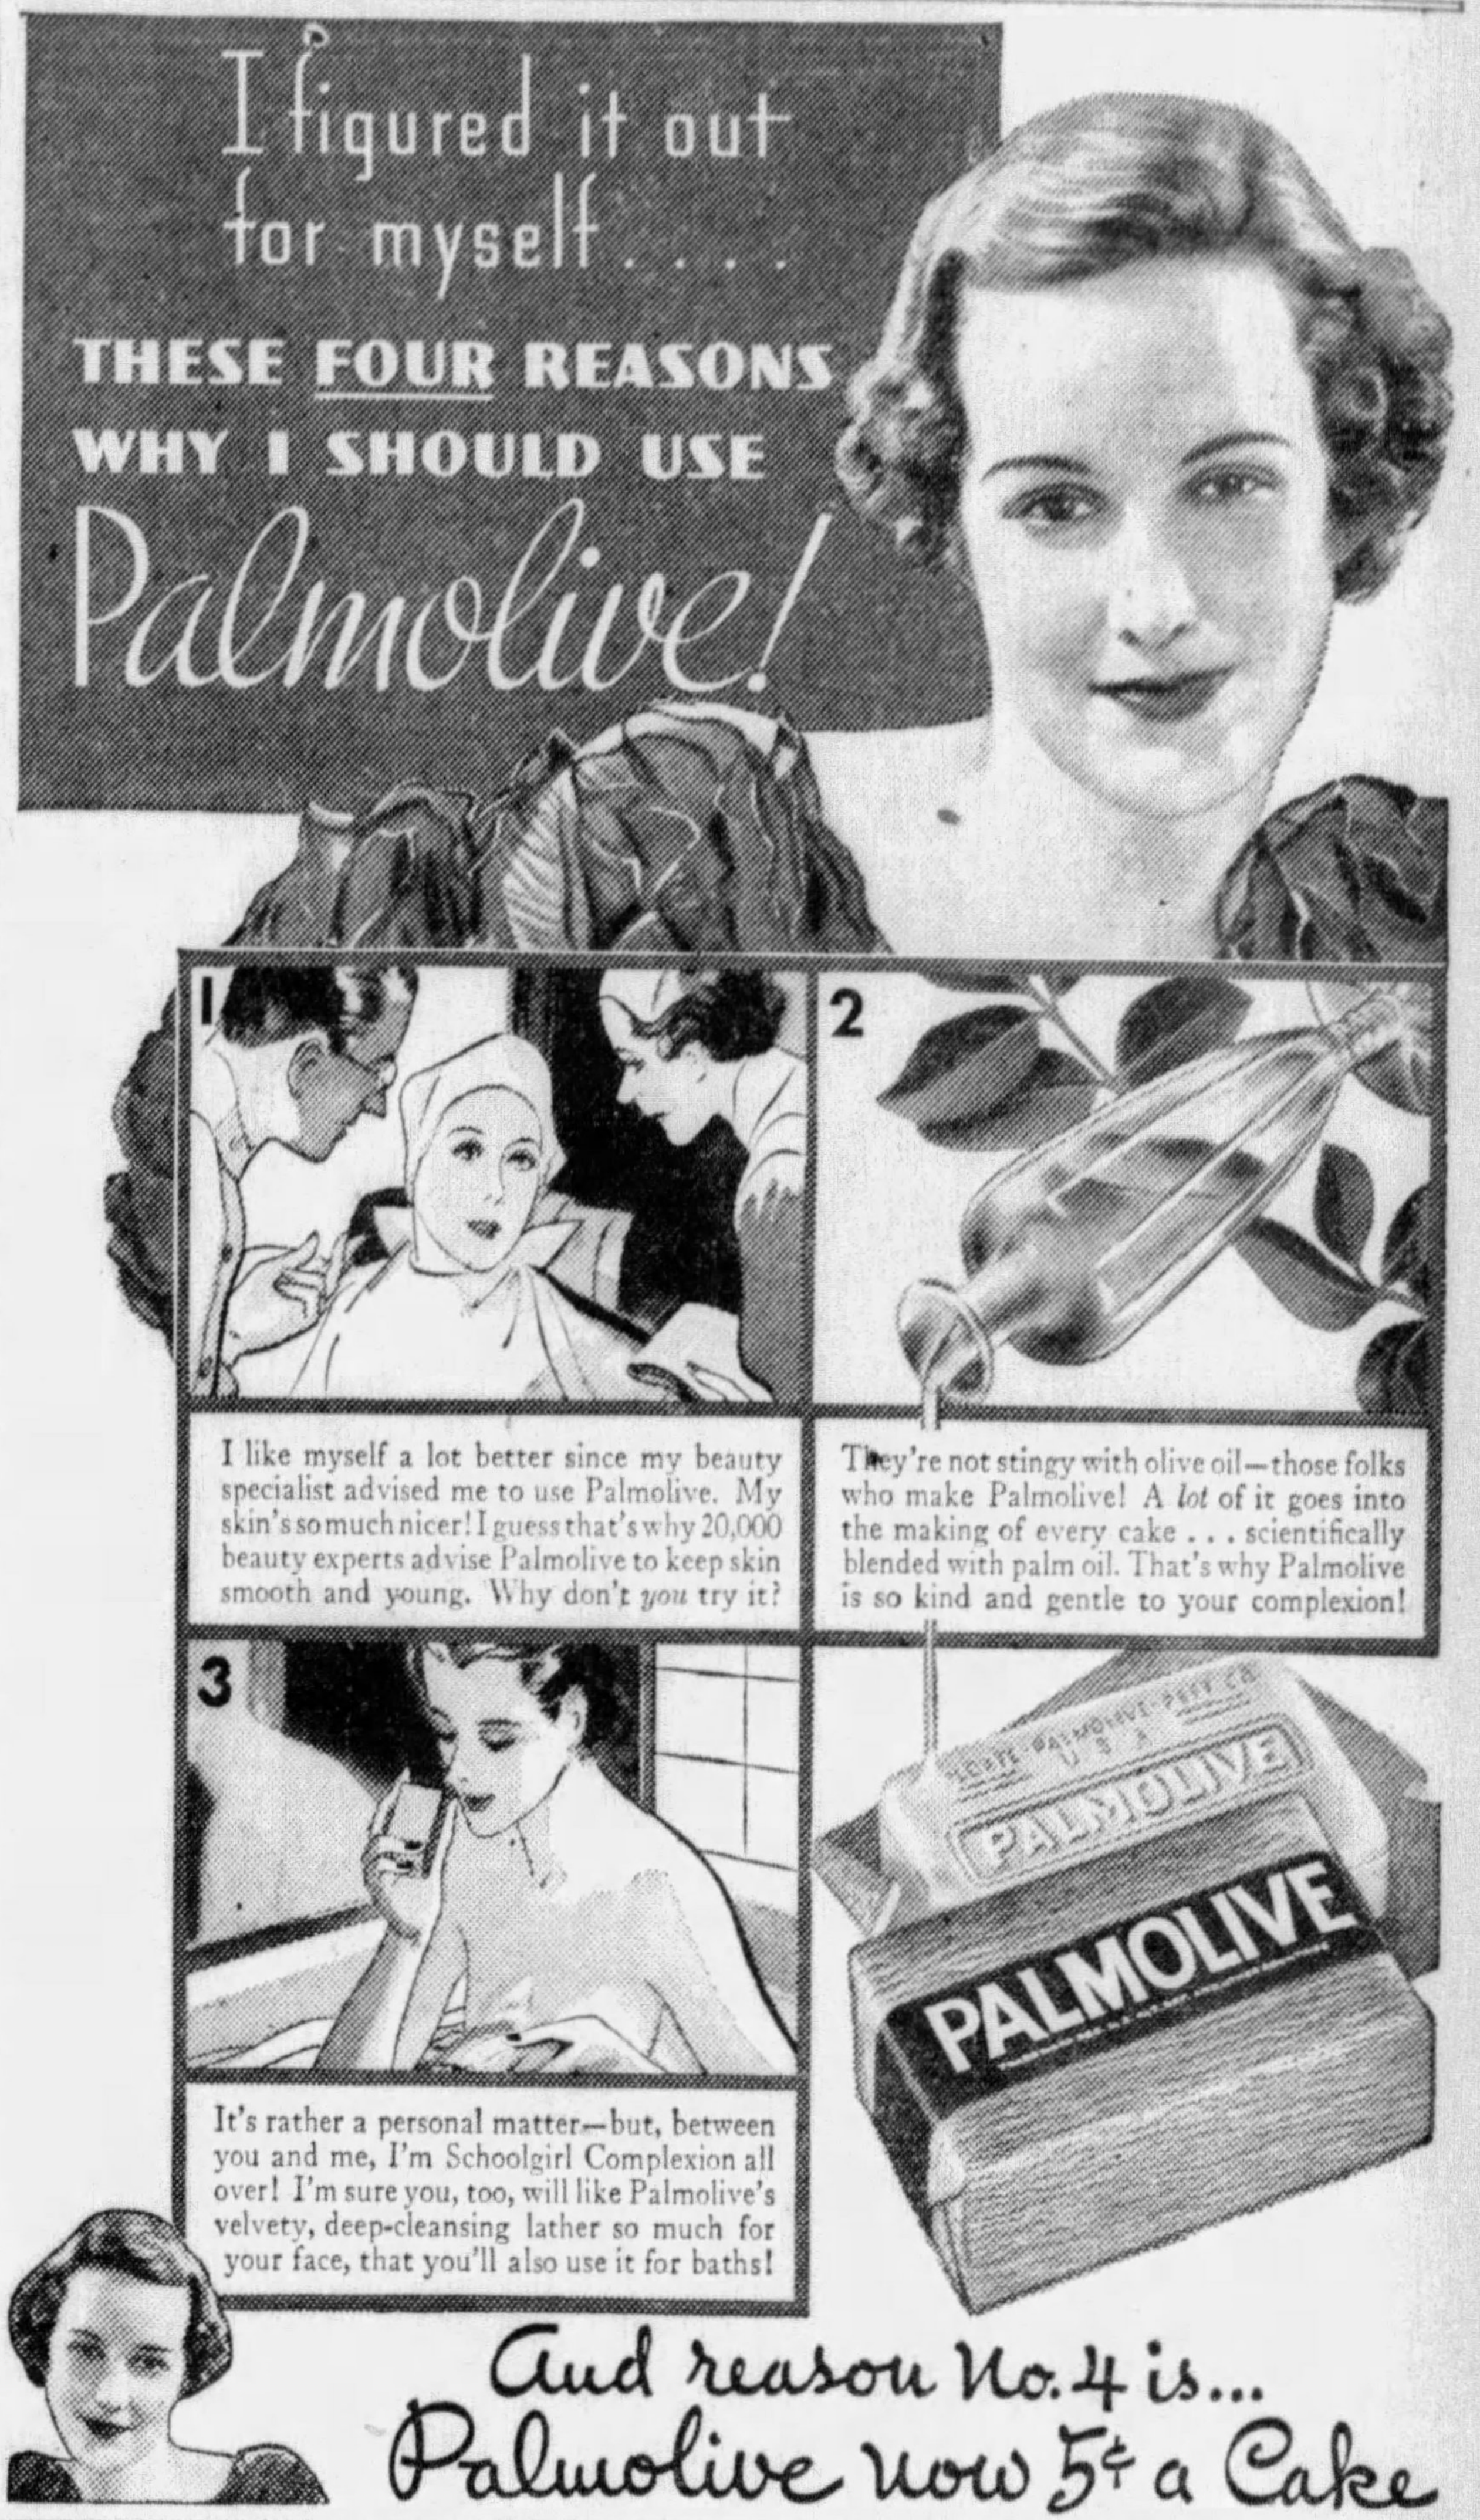
Responding to a call from neighbors, police said they found Alfred Mason and a loaded revolver and shotgun in his home at 219 Sylvania avenue. The couple are Negroes.

'Hot Tips' on Races Linked in Bank Theft

NEW YORK, April 20.—(INS.)—"Hot tips" on the races that failed to bring the desired results were blamed by police today for the alleged embezzlement of $125,000 by two Brooklyn bank employes.

The men, Henry Johnston, 37, and Aurel H. Weigel, 30, are employes of a Brooklyn branch of the Corn Exchange Bank.



I like myself a lot better since my beauty specialist advised me to use Palmolive. My skin's so much nicer! I guess that's why 20,000 beauty experts advise Palmolive to keep skin smooth and young. Why don't you try it?

They're not stingy with olive oil—those folks who make Palmolive! A lot of it goes into the making of every cake . . . scientifically blended with palm oil. That's why Palmolive is so kind and gentle to your complexion!

It's rather a personal matter—but, between you and me, I'm Schoolgirl Complexion all over! I'm sure you, too, will like Palmolive's velvety, deep-cleansing lather so much for your face, that you'll also use it for baths!

Read the remarkable love letters of a genius to his boyhood sweetheart

The LOVE LETTERS of CHARLES DICKENS

To Maria Beadnell

The publication of this series of hitherto unrevealed letters written by Charles Dickens to Maria Beadnell, whom he had loved and lost but found again after twenty years, is of profound importance to every admirer of the works of this great novelist.

Jilted by Maria Beadnell in his youth, given by her only misery and regret in his early manhood, the loss of her love drove Dickens to the fierce labors which made him the greatest novelist of his age and one of the greatest of all time.

To her coquetry—to her throwing over of the impecunious young "Shorthand Reporter," the world perhaps is deeply indebted to Maria Beadnell for being partly responsible for the success of one of the outstanding literary geniuses of modern times.

These letters reveal an intimate and personal side of Dickens not touched on in any of his biographies. They throw light on a romantic interlude of Dickens the man as well as Dickens the novelist.

The Private Papers of a Reporter

Among other fantastic stories being whispered by some of the big-timers in Washington is this unusual theme:

Many years ago, it starts, two lads in Paris, who were devoted to each other, worked quietly for a cause—Communism.

One's name was Miles Wallach, it appears, and he melted from the earth—the talkers tell you. No one in Soviet Russia or anywhere has seen Miles Wallach for over 17 years. Or heard of him.

Is he alive? Is he dead? Where is Miles Wallach?

Miles Wallach, to hear the exciting story-relaters tell it, is very much alive—and what's more—he is among the 10 most famous men in the world! But he isn't known by the name of Miles Wallach!

This is allegedly why: One of the two pals became very ill. Shortly before he passed on—his chum tried to comfort him at the bedside. "One day," he began, "your name will be known and important everywhere. Both of us now are obscure, unheard of—nobodies in the great cause that will be won. I will take your name and carry on, my friend."

A few days later the lad died—and so did the name of Miles Wallach—which was not his name.

Maxim Litvinov!

At any rate—a lad and a lass were madly in love with each other for many months. She was the loyal type, but so was he.

She was a show girl, who found jobs scarce since Ziegfeld went away. He was an obscure painter—and so they were poor.

He raced home to their combination apartment and studio in one of the Greenwich Village alley places to tell her.

"Look!" he exclaimed breathlessly, "I've sold a picture! It's the first real money in so long, dear. Take it, it's for you! You've been so grand. You've stuck with me when nobody else would. Buy yourself lots of things—but honey—first go to the butcher's and bring back a delicious steak—it's been too many long months since we've had a good steak."

She thrilled with him over their good fortune as he embraced her affectionately—tight in his arms. It was a long kiss.

"All right," she said, "let me get my hat and that steak."

She went into her room and looked at the $100. "He's right," she mused. "I have stuck through hell with him. But no more."

Four years later he was still brooding. Or, as we say along The Long Lane of Short Careers, "he still carried the torch for her."

He never complained about her leaving him that way—four years before. Nor would he permit anybody to pan her for it.

He suffered in silence and was always very glum.

Then a mutual pal phoned him. "I know where to find her," said the friend. "She's in town—she still loves you. Shall I tell her anything for you—that you still adore her?"

"Yes," he almost wept, "but don't frighten her, please. Just tell her if she wants to come back—that there will be no quarrel—no questions—nothing at all. It will be as though she never went away."

He hung up and then cried a little—the way some men weep—when they've ached all over for four long years—for one woman.

Two hours later—almost to the very moment she left four years before—she walked in wearily and wet from the rain.

"Oh, dear," she sighed, "what a crowd in that butcher's."

It is no longer news, of course. About Norma Talmadge and her divorce from Joseph Schenck. Norma got her Mexican decree—and George Jessel got front paged—for wooing Norma nine years.

But this has a bit of charm to it. The wire Schenck received: "You're as free as the air, but I love you just the same. Norma."

The mail from radio listeners is always interesting. Some tell you their troubles. Others urge you to do this or that. Many of them are friendly. Some are lukewarm. But most of them have a story.

There is a little boy, for instance, John Connor, of Manchester, New Hampshire. Johnny has a dog named "Flash!" and every time your New York correspondent would yell "Flash!" into the microphone the dog went a little crazy trying to find out who was calling him.

And so "Flash" got a little fed up with the invisible voice the other Sunday night and wrecked the tiny radio. A darn good critic, it appears. At any rate, last Sunday night I hoped Johnny had a new radio. In a whisper I added: "Go get 'im, Flash, go get Bernie!"

An hour later, according to a telegram from Mr. Bernie in Los Angeles—I learned that a dog actually did!

The statement is a bit exaggerated, we learned.

Chief Moran, as head of the Secret Service, "advises" the President on routes and behaviorism in public so as to insure the safety of the Chief Executive. He actually cannot boss F. D. R.

The President can disregard the advice at will, as did the late President Coolidge. The only person who may really "order" the President is Comptroller General McCarl, watchdog of the Treasury.

He orders by not ordering. When the President signs a bill of expenditure, McCarl, by not okaying it, literally tells the President that it is "no dice," meaning "not this time, dearie."

The only way the item can then get past McCarl is to put a special bill through Congress, and even then McCarl may attack it on constitutional grounds, by golly! So you see who's really boss.

His appointment is always supposed to be non-political; he lasts 15 years in office and can never succeed himself.

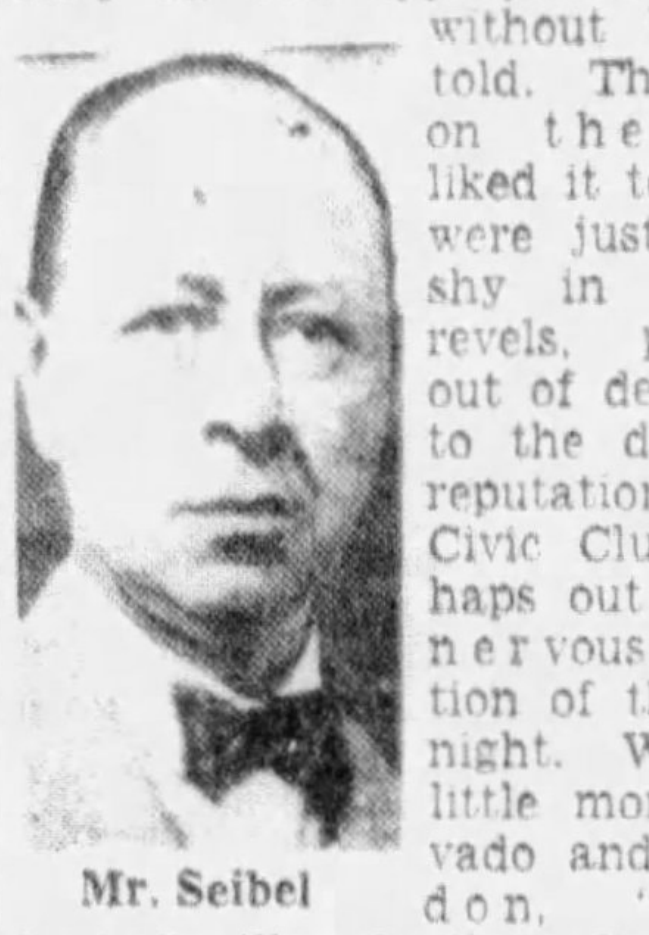
Gay Revels of Cap and Gown Make Rafters Ring "Hello Again"

By GEORGE SEIBEL

If King Solomon, Sultan Abdul Hamid, Florenz Ziegfeld, and other connoisseurs of feminine beauty—an old word meaning "pulchritude"—had been at the Nixon Theater last night, to see the Cap and Gown revue "Hello Again," they would have got their fill of dimples and curves, for from Mother Eve to Mae West the boys of Pitt could have supplied the whole harem of history.

Let it be said at the beginning that no fault could be found with the plot of the show, there being none such. It was a straight revue without sequence or coherence—just one thing after another, like life—and as miscellaneous as mince pie. It was melodious, amusing, colorful, but it could not be called profound or subtle.

The audience, which was composed largely of the Civic Club elite, liked it and laughed decorously in the appropriate places without being told. The boys on the stage liked it too, and were just a bit shy in their revels, perhaps out of deference to the decorous reputation of the Civic Club, perhaps out of the nervous agitation of the first night. With a little more bravado and abandon, "Hello Again," will make the rafters ring, or whatever rafters do if there are any in the Nixon.



Mr. Seibel

With three lyric poets, six composers, and four or five famous beauties, "Hello Again" was a stupendous event.

It began in the shadow of the Cathedral of Learning, and the finale again was sung with this Gothic background, so there was no doubt about its being a Pitt show, even if the co-eds were somewhat deficient in the feminine allures of the real thing.

If one were asked to pick out the high spots of the entertainment, the musical laurels should go to the "Song of the C. W. A." lyric by Louis M. Fushan, music by Dr. Benjamin Levant, and sung with rich vocal quality by Alfred Knauss. As the most infectiously funny and dextrously staged skit, "A Ballet Master Stages a Drama" would rank first—and this is not credited to anybody in particular on the program. For a beautiful fantasy, "A Chinese Picture Book" is haunting—with its lyric by Stanley Goldman, its music by Gus A. Schnabel, and Eugene Burkhart to sing it splendidly. For dancing excellence the "Tips and Taps" of Joseph Samson merits an orchid or two, while the cake walk of Frank Bolden and Howard Jordan put a grand climax into the Stephen Foster number sung beautifully by Harry Parker and the octette.

It would be a task harder than Paris faced when he started the Trojan war to pick the prize beauty among Russell Connolly, Marshall Baker, Robert Haase and John Wyeth. They would be a credit to the mystic arts of any beautician.

"I Love You, Caroline," sung by Bernard Rosenson, was another number that had a good lyric by G. Norman Reis and a lilting air by Dr. Levant. The same pair were also responsible for the clever ballad, "Go West, Little Girl, Go West," sung by John Wyeth.

John M. St. Peter and Charles Ruch contributed skits of much comic value, and whoever concocted the "Sewickley Beach in 1904" satire, also has a vein of mirth. Lastly it must not be forgotten that the Style Show put on by Jack Hammerschmidt and his models brought the Rue de la Paix right up Sixth avenue with fine feathers and bare backs and everything from lingerie to furs.

It was a gay and merry revel from first to last, which only needs a Bobby Connolly to step on the gas, and a little more gas in the tank—and "Hello Again" would not be visible for its dust. Costumes and scenic background were lavish and effective, the musical direction and choral work clicked well, and altogether it was one of those exhibitions where so much is presented that it is only possible to list a few of the more scintillating stars in the grand galaxy.

Brown Stars In Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Joe E. Brown has grown up from a moronic character to one only slightly dumb in "A Very Honorable Guy," comedy in the Warner that is not so farcically funny as the usual Joe E. Brown vehicle, but has plenty of chuckling brand of laughter. This perhaps because Damon Runyon wrote it, and gave it a novel plot that is strictly melodramatic in action growing out of a humorous original idea.

Joe plays a hard-luck gambler, down to his last 15 cents, who becomes indebted to a big shot who treats very roughly such boys as don't pay up. So Joe pays up promptly when the debt is due. He obtains the money by selling his body to a doctor. Immediately luck goes the other way, and the first thing he knows he is rolling in wealth. He tries to buy his contract back, but the other party to it refuses six times the sum he paid Joe, so the latter decides to flee to South America. That decision results in a lot of excitement, and Joe winds up as a chicken farmer instead of in S. A.

Irene Franklin wins about as many laughs as Mr. Brown does. She appears as the wisecracking mother of Joe's sweetie, a flapper played by Alice White. Alan Dinehart is suave as the big shot, and Robert Barrat plays the eccentric body-buying doctor.

Short subjects include a news reel, with President Roosevelt telling how his vacation made him a "hard guy," cartoon in color, "Beauty and the Beast," and a novelty showing the training of the performers for a flea circus.

Mullhall Is Given Chance Of Coming Back

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.—Hello! Perhaps it is old age creeping upon me, at any rate, I'm not ashamed to say that I'm sentimental as far as the screen's old-timers are concerned. Back in the days when I was the office boy at the almost-forgotten Metro Company, Jack Mulhall graduated to stardom. Since then time has reeled off many changes in the movie village. And now Jack, who went back to practically playing extra in "Cleopatra," is again to have his chance.

Jack has been assigned a featured role with W. C. Fields in "The Old Fashioned Way" at Paramount. I sincerely hope his career starts all over again.

Some newsy items—Mark Sandrich grabbed off a directorial plum when Pandro Berman, headman of RKO assigned him the megaphone on "The Gay Divorce," starring Fred (fancy dancer) Astaire and Ginger Rogers . . . And another RKO trick is the borrowing of Dorothy Wilson for the lead with Richard Dix in "The Family Man."

S'funny, but RKO once took Dot from the stenographic dept. and made her a star, then released her. Now that she's under contract to Charles R. Rogers, her "home" ot wants her back.

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood—Joan Blondell and her camera-cranking hubby, George Barnes, played a swell gag on Maurice Leo, who arrived in town the other morn. Joan hired a band (such horrible music they blew, too), a fake mayor to present the key to the city, phoney newspapermen and photographers—and poor Maurice was so befuddled when he stepped off the choo-choo he isn't over it yet. Mrs. James Cagney, also on the train, was in on the rib . . . Al Jolson arrived in town Monday morning, and such a big kiss he got from Ruby Keeler! As soon as Ruby finishes her current Warner movie they'll Panama-Canal-Boat-It to New York for a rest. M-G-M was so impressed by Mina Gombell's work in "The Thin Man," she was immediately engaged for a role in "The Merry Widow" . . . Hal Wallis, Warner boss, has hired Leon (Rubber Legs) Errol to star in a couple of technicolor short giggle-getters.

* * *

Richard Thorpe, megaphoning "City Park" for Chesterfield, makes a "stupid sister" report. He has a gal on his set "so dumb she thinks a shyster lawyer is one who is too timid to get to court!"

Movieland meanderings — Elmo Lincoln, one-time big serial star for Universal, is in the mining business and his bank accounts say he's struck it rich! . . . More than 350 members of the local Dick Powell fan club gave the star a dinner and invited him—so he could sing to them! . . . Chester Morris made a statement to the effect "New York's girls are the most beautiful I have seen anywhere!" But the crack didn't cause the rumpus in Hollywood that he had hoped. Nobody paid any attention to him! . . . Madge Evans risked her own life to save her toy Peke from drowning in Santa Monica's strong surf the other Sunday.

* * *

Some knick-knacks about Broadway folks—Paul Harvey nets a second role at Fox. This time it's in "Charlie Chan's Courage," another of the Chinese mystery dramas . . . George Caine, once the toast of Broadway for her warbling of Franz Lehar's "The Merry Widow," was considerably shocked when Hollywood casting directors asked her if she could speak lines . . . A couple of ex-Broadwayites Ray Walker and Dorothy Libaire are in "Always Honest" for Fox . . . Ted Healy has grown such long sideburns for the Marion Davies picture, "Operator 13," that even Freddie ("Barretts of Wimpole Street") March is jealous!

All In A Day

Changing World of Radio

IT WAS about ten years ago, I think, that I bought my first radio. It was a peculiar contraption, with a detachable horn and a set of ear phones. But what a thrill the thing would hand me in the early stages of the game!

I lived in Great Neck, L. I., at the time and I kept far more reasonable hours than I do today. There wasn't a morning that I failed to get home before 5 o'clock in order to see if I could get some distance on my machine.

Yes, I was a nut on distance. The radio offered other inducements, such as the 1924 Democratic Convention in New York and the same jokes that we hear today. But I wasn't interested in those things. I wanted distance—and plenty of it.

I can remember a radio repairman in Great Neck who sold what he called "distance tubes." He talked me into a new set every week until I got wise to the fact that he was reselling me the same set that he had removed the week before. I often wonder what became of that guy. He's probably a Congressman by this time.

But being a distance maniac, it was all in the game to me. If somebody had assured me that I could get distance by balancing the radio on my head and saying "toodle-oodles" one hundred times I would have gone for that, too.

Then, one early morning, came the supreme thrill. I got Chicago! No question about it; the announcer's words had come over very clearly. What a sensation! Sitting out on Long Island and hearing a man's voice—I hope—float over the air from Chicago! Wow!

I raced upstairs and awakened my father and mother.

"Hey, pop! Mom! This is no time to be sleeping. Come on downstairs to the radio. I just got Chicago!"

My father sat up abruptly.

"I don't know anything about getting Chicago," he growled. "But wake me up again and you'll get hell." . . .

Since then I have had several radios. One of them still stands, neglected and forlorn, in a closet—and two of the smaller ones provided choice desserts for my dogs. The thrill of the early "distance" days having vanished I lost my standing as a radio addict.

That was the situation, at least, until a few months ago. I was returning from the coast with Mr. Ted Husing, the man of a few million words, and he kept harping on the magnificence of a new radio that he had recently placed in his home.

This machine, said Mr. Husing, was made by a Mr. Scott, in Chicago. Giving me a special broadcast description, Mr. Husing led me to believe that there was very little this new radio couldn't do. I judged from Ted's earnest words that the machine would do everything but press my ties and write my column.

All of which didn't mean much to me. I knew of a Mr. Scott who had written books, and his brother who had produced the much-discussed "Emulsion." But a radio Scott was unfamiliar to me.

As the train raced eastward, Mr. Husing kept talking. I was half asleep, which is the ideal way to converse with a broadcaster.

"I tell you, Mark," my friend went on, "there's nothing like it. There's no distance you cannot get, no distance—"

I blinked my eyes. Distance! Memories of the past!

"I like distance," I said sleepily. "I——"

Mr. Husing had grabbed a telegraph blank and was already scribbling away. I asked what he was doing.

"Ordering your new radio," he replied. "Didn't you just tell me you wanted one?"

A month or so ago they moved in my new radio. It took me a little time to grow accustomed to it because Mr. Scott sends me more peotry than radio instructions. But now I understand the doggone thing — and I'm back where I was 10 years ago.

I'm a distance hound all over again. I stumble in after a difficult night and dash for my radio. I fumble around exactly as I did a decade ago. But now, instead of Chicago, I fish for Rome and Berlin and Buenos Aires and Paris. And if the weather is kind I get them.

The other day, after 10 years, I got the same wallop as I received when I first heard Chicago. I was dialing slowly on the red band—and out popped Moscow, Russia! I heard the station identification, and my chart verified everything. Moscow — no less!

"Hey, baby," I cried excitedly, "this is no time to be sleeping. Come on inside. I just got Moscow!"

She regarded me sleepily.

"Know what they're saying?" she asked.

"No," I admitted. "I don't."

"Well," she yawned, "what's the good of getting it?"

And she went back to sleep . . .

So do the years move on, and so does the radio change. There isn't a doubt that, a century hence, my new radio—great as it is today—will be a museum piece along with the out-of-date contraption with which I first heard Chicago. People will look at them and laugh, and they will wonder how we in this age could have been thrilled by such a simple thing as getting Chicago and Moscow.

But things change only on the surface. For, along about 2024, plenty of excited young men will race from their complicated machines around five in the morning and cry loudly:

"Hey, pop! Mom! This is no time to be sleeping. Come on downstairs to the radio. I just got Mars!" . . .

IT'S SOAPIER

. . . that's why Chipso is both quick and SAFE! Chipso is not adulterated with the harsh, "dirt-cutting" substances contained in inferior soaps which roughen your hands and gradually fade and weaken fabrics. Chipso's RICHER SUDS loosen dirt harmlessly.

"I used to be nearly frantic," Mrs. L. S. Rinker told us, "with the dirt the boys got into and the way their clothes wore out. Now I pop everything into rich CHIPSO suds. Even the dirtiest clothes don't have to be rubbed hard. Chipso gets into every dirty spot and soaks the dirt out.

"Yet Chipso doesn't fade colored blouses, nor turn blue serge knickers purple, nor shrink woolen golf hose. It is safe even for silks—as my silk stockings, underwear and housedresses prove often enough.

"Chipso works hard all over my house, for I use it for cleaning and dishwashing, too. You see, it doesn't hurt my hands which are very sensitive to harsh soap, yet its thick suds act quickly on greasy dirt."

MUSIC

Mischakoff — Harris
Twentieth Century Club

Mr. Lissfelt

Because many other musical authorities assured me so, I shall be happy to say that the outstanding chamber music concert of the season was played by Mischa Mischakoff, violinist, and Henry Harris, pianist, at the Twentieth Century Club last night.

An ideal audience, which neither coughed nor rattled programs, listened to three masterly sonatas, the E Major of Handel, Beethovent's "Kreutzer," and Brahms' D Minor. In that excellent auditorium conditions were quite perfect and the two artists responded marvelously. I wish I might quote the praise I heard by a little eavesdropping.

Be that as it may, Mischakoff has a wonderful violin and great style. We have heard him in small solo parts as he plays with the Chicago Orchestra and have watched him lead, all of which gave but an inkling of what he played last night. His genre is doubtless chamber music, for he approaches the sonatas with reverence and some adoration.

The Handel is almost a solo for violin: Mischakoff was a little on the forward line during the Beethoven, but in the Brahms there was the fine unity between players which must delight the soul of the composer.

It was the first time Henry Harris has appeared here in sonata recital, and it must have been a revelation to his many admirers. His extremely sensitive touch permitted him to subdue his virile solo style to the demands of the ensemble, so that one lost neither the delicacy of his singing tone and scale nor the dramatic effects which the music often demanded.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Food and Vitamin Values Of Nuts Held High

All Varieties Are Rich in Iron, Phosphorus and Lime; Food Content Exceedingly High

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City,
United States Senator from New York.

Few people realize that nuts were a staple food in the diet of our forefathers. Today, they are considered a delicacy and a confection. Many believe them to be an unhealthful food. This is not true. They are wholesome and nutritious.

Let us consider the important food substances found in nuts. The chief constituents are fat and protein. In addition to these, a rich supply of carbohydrate is found in peanuts and chestnuts. A large amount of concentrated nourishment is found in all nuts.

They supply the body with valuable mineral salts. Vitamin B is found in many varieties of nuts. Recent studies have proven that, in addition, vitamin A exists in large amounts in walnuts, pecan and butternuts.

The fat percentage of nuts is high. In the pecan, filbert, hickory nut, walnut and butternut, over seventy per cent of fat is found. The protein found in nuts is comparable to that found in meat and fish. The almond, peanut, pistachio, candlenut and butternut are especially rich in protein, which aids in the development and growth of the body.

TREES DESTROYED

When our country was first settled, nut trees were plentiful. When other foods were cultivated the value of the nut was forgotten. Beautiful nut trees were ruthlessly cut down. Their wood was used to make furniture, or used as lumber or fire wood. Due to the interference of the United States Department of Agriculture, and other organizations, plans are ready, and work is proceeding, in which two millions of nut trees, particularly the hickory, walnut and butternut, will be planted.

The most popular nuts in this country are the peanut, the walnut, almond and pecan. The peanut is one of the cheapest nuts on the market. It has high energy value. The almond and pecan are unusually rich in iron, phosphorus and lime. The walnut has a high caloric content and a fine flavor.

Shelled nuts are increasing in popularity. They may be purchased in bulk or in cans or jars. If you have reason to believe they were not shelled under the most sanitary conditions, it is best to thoroughly and quickly wash the nuts in hot water. In this way, dirt or dust particles are destroyed.

USES NUMEROUS

There are many ways of using nuts. They may be eaten raw, or thinly sliced and combined with raw fruit. Peanuts and chestnuts improve in flavor when cooked or roasted. Chestnut dressing for turkey is delicious. Any variety of nut can be used to give added flavor to bread or cake. In fact, nuts combine well with most foods.

Nuts must be thoroughly chewed to be easily digested. They should be eaten in moderation. Today, scientists do not approve of eating nuts at the end of a meal.

The food value of nuts is high. For example, the meat of fifteen peanuts or ten almonds is equal to food value in two slices of white bread. When eaten in moderate amounts and as part of a meal, nuts are easily digested and are a healthful and nourishing food.

Abbot Reserves Talk for 'Godly'

CALGARY, Alta., April 20.—(AP.)—Somewhat after the manner of Gandhi, the Buddhist abbot Chao Kung is observing a period of silence, during which he will speak only to "the godly."

During a 20-minute stop here, while on his way to board a ship for Europe where he will found a monastery, the abbot talked with Salvation Army officers and a clergyman.

New Jersey Town To War on Petters

WESTVILLE, N. J., April 20.—(AP.)—With the coming of spring Edward C. Wagner's thoughts turned to love. Petters are becoming a public nuisance in his part of town, he told the Council, so he was sworn in as a marshal to drive them away.

Why Some Men Succeed

What a difference there is in men! Some of them are full of pep, energy, ability. They get there ahead of the other fellow.

What's the difference?

Usually a man eats success or failure at the breakfast table. Often he makes or loses a contract according to what he eats for lunch. Wise eating is the smartest thing a business man can do. At least one meal a day, eat Shredded Wheat, milk, and fresh fruit.

If you didn't have any other food, you could live on this combination, and be mighty well on it, too. It gives your body all it needs for energy, tissue building, and disease resistance, and it gives you bran to keep you regular.

The right food has a great deal to do with your success. Try Shredded Wheat for one meal a day, and see what happens to you!

'Pets' Because She's Failure As Conversationalist

Can't keep up a conversation. And of course, they PET.

I wonder if that is the reason for so much promiscuous love making. The two young people sit there and have nothing to say. And so they begin kissing.

And often KISSES SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS.

They create an imaginary romance, and that finally leads to the spring (h)alter. And lo, two of the love birds of the world are put into the same cage. And it may turn out all right, or it may not.

And going back, it can all be blamed upon the inability to talk.

Miss Brunot

Don't you think it would be a good thing in public schools, instead of spending so much time teaching that two and two make four, to try slipping in a little bit of airy persiflage.

Don't you think it would be a fine idea, around the home table, instead of merely swallowing the food whole and shoving up for a second helping, to compel Willie and Mary, and dad and mom to say something clever before they are allowed more food?

Don't you think there should be courses in how to say what you are thinking, or how to interpret just what you might be thinking, if you thought at all?

And mighn't all this clear up a lot of marital unrest. For no matter how much one likes to live on affection, there comes a time when a few well chosen sentences go further toward contentment than all the love making in the world.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 17, and have been going with a fellow for over a year. I have liked him since the first time I saw him. He took me out several times before he asked to be my "steady."

He comes to see me two or three times a week, and when we are alone we never have anything to say to each other. So we "pet."

END BY "PETTING"

Every time we go some place together, on the way home I make up my mind I won't do this petting. But we just seem to be drawn together and there seems to be nothing else to do.

He always tells me how much he loves me. But I think we are too young for so much seriousness. We scarcely know what the word love means.

I want to get some fun out of life, and do not think that can be done if you settle down too early. Maybe it is natural for young people to be this way about the petting. Yet it worries me. I wish you would advise me, dear Miss Brunot.

SERIOUS.

I don't blame you at all, for thinking you are up against a serious problem. You are too young to settle down, as you call it. You are too young, I think, to have what is termed a "steady." These are not the days in which our mothers and grandmothers lived. There are so many things to see and do. Girls have such a different place in the world than they held a few years back. A girl can go most anywhere now, and can enter into almost any kind of work, or profession. There are often interesting men to meet whom you, Serious, will never meet at all, if you become settled at seventeen.

TRY TO CONVERSE MORE

Why don't you try to converse more. Why don't you read the news and go out with your eyes wide open. And save plenty to say when you see your boy friend. You know, Serious, a man can't kiss you if you are talking. Conversationalists are needed these days. When I was a little girl and read the Elsie books, I recall a certain fascination for a society woman who visited the Dinsmores, and who held the conversation exactly where she wished it to be held. I ran to the dictionary and looked up the meaning of that nice long word, CONVERSATIONALIST. And then and there I decided to be one. Whether I have been a success, my friends would have to decide that.

Driving in automobiles, listening in on the radio, playing bridge. All these keep us away from talking, and if we aren't careful, nice interesting little tidbits of persiflage will become a lost art. Let us work against this, Serious.

A clever girl can talk a man out of a desire for an overdose of love-making. A wise girl can prolong courtship indefinitely, if she but knows how to direct conversation. So set about, Serious, to overcome your lack of words. Say what you are thinking. Say even what you are not thinking. At least, talk. It is woman's prerogative, you know. And when a girl doesn't talk, well, what can a poor fellow do?

There comes the day when PETTING is in line. But when you are not sure that what you are experiencing is LOVE, then you must manage to make the THREE TIMES A WEEK gala evenings in something else than necking.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Recalls Lee Chow's Threat

Despite Katherine's assurance that there was not the danger she had feared in Dicky's condition, and notwithstanding my preference of her opinion to that of many physicians, I found myself waiting breathlessly for the verdict of the young surgeon, a stranger to us, who, in the absence of our regular physician, had been the first one Ronald could find when Lillian had directed him to summon one.

I could tell nothing from the physician's face, or from Katherine's. Both were locked and guarded. But Dicky, who had rallied sufficiently to take a patent interest in the proceedings, seemed suddenly tense and worried, as the young surgeon ran exploratory fingers down his arm, first pressing gently, then prodding more vigorously.

"Well," Dicky demanded before the surgeon had finished, "what are you looking for—the bullet? You won't find it. The fellow who did this job had a rifle. He plugged me from the woods."

"I thought so," the surgeon said quietly, but I scarcely heard him so preoccupied was I, so startled by what Dicky had just revealed.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH

He had been shot from ambush! My imagination had not exaggerated the jeopardy in which his life had been since he drove out of the farmyard. Worse, this meant that he would continue to be in danger. The hidden assassin who had failed at this time would not give up his deadly purpose because his shot had not reached a vital spot in Dicky's body. He simply would take care to aim more accurately the next time.

The surgeon was speaking, and I felt that I must miss no word of what he was saying. Resolutely I shut all speculation out of my mind for a few minutes and listened carefully.

"Have you any idea who did it?"

The young surgeon was asking only the natural question, but I found myself gripping the back of the nearest chair so hard that my fingers tingled, as I waited for the reply.

"Not the remotest notion in the world," Dicky said nonchantly. "I suppose some bootlegger took me for a rival, and decided to rub me out. Case of mistaken identity—that's what I make of it."

As if drawn by some influence outside my own volition I found that my eyes had left Dicky's face at his last words and were looking squarely at Hugh Grantland's. What I saw in his eyes frightened me. The expression in them was so solemn, so mournful that is awed me.

The next instant his face was impassive again, a mask that no one could read. But I had seen something else in his eyes more frightening than solemnity or mournfulness.

HUGH ANSWERS

Either my eyes and my brain were playing me false, or there had been an answer to the surgeon's question in those eyes—an answer which had behind it either knowledge or conjecture so strong as to be equal to authentic information.

My brain felt as if it were hurtling wildly through space, but I pulled myself together long enough to jot down one face upon my memory tablet. Hugh knew, or strongly suspected, whose was the hand that had shot Dicky, or the brain which had instigated that cowardly attack.

That established, the next link in the chain was easy to find. My intuition concerning Lee Chow had not been the product of an overheated imagination but had had foundation in fact. The high-born Chinese friend of Hugh Grantland, whether because of some queer Oriental viewpoint unintelligible to Occidental minds, or because his brain had been warped to madness by the poisoned needle secreted in the sealed envelope in Manson's lock box had decided that Dicky must be put out of the way in order that I might be free to "belong to Lee Chow boss man," as the humble henchman of the high born Chinese had once unforgettably said.

FORGES MORE LINKS

I forged further links in the chain. Knowledge of this diabolic plan of Lee Chow's, whether sanely or insanely conceived, had been behind Hugh Grantland's earnest conversations with my father, and with my father's subsequent watchfulness over me and the children.

I did not need assurance that this watchful guarding care would now be extended to Dicky. The solemn, horror-stricken look in Hugh's eyes as he looked at my wounded husband, and the brooding anxiety in the face of my father who had just come into the library told me that Dicky would be their first thought until the menace to him was removed.

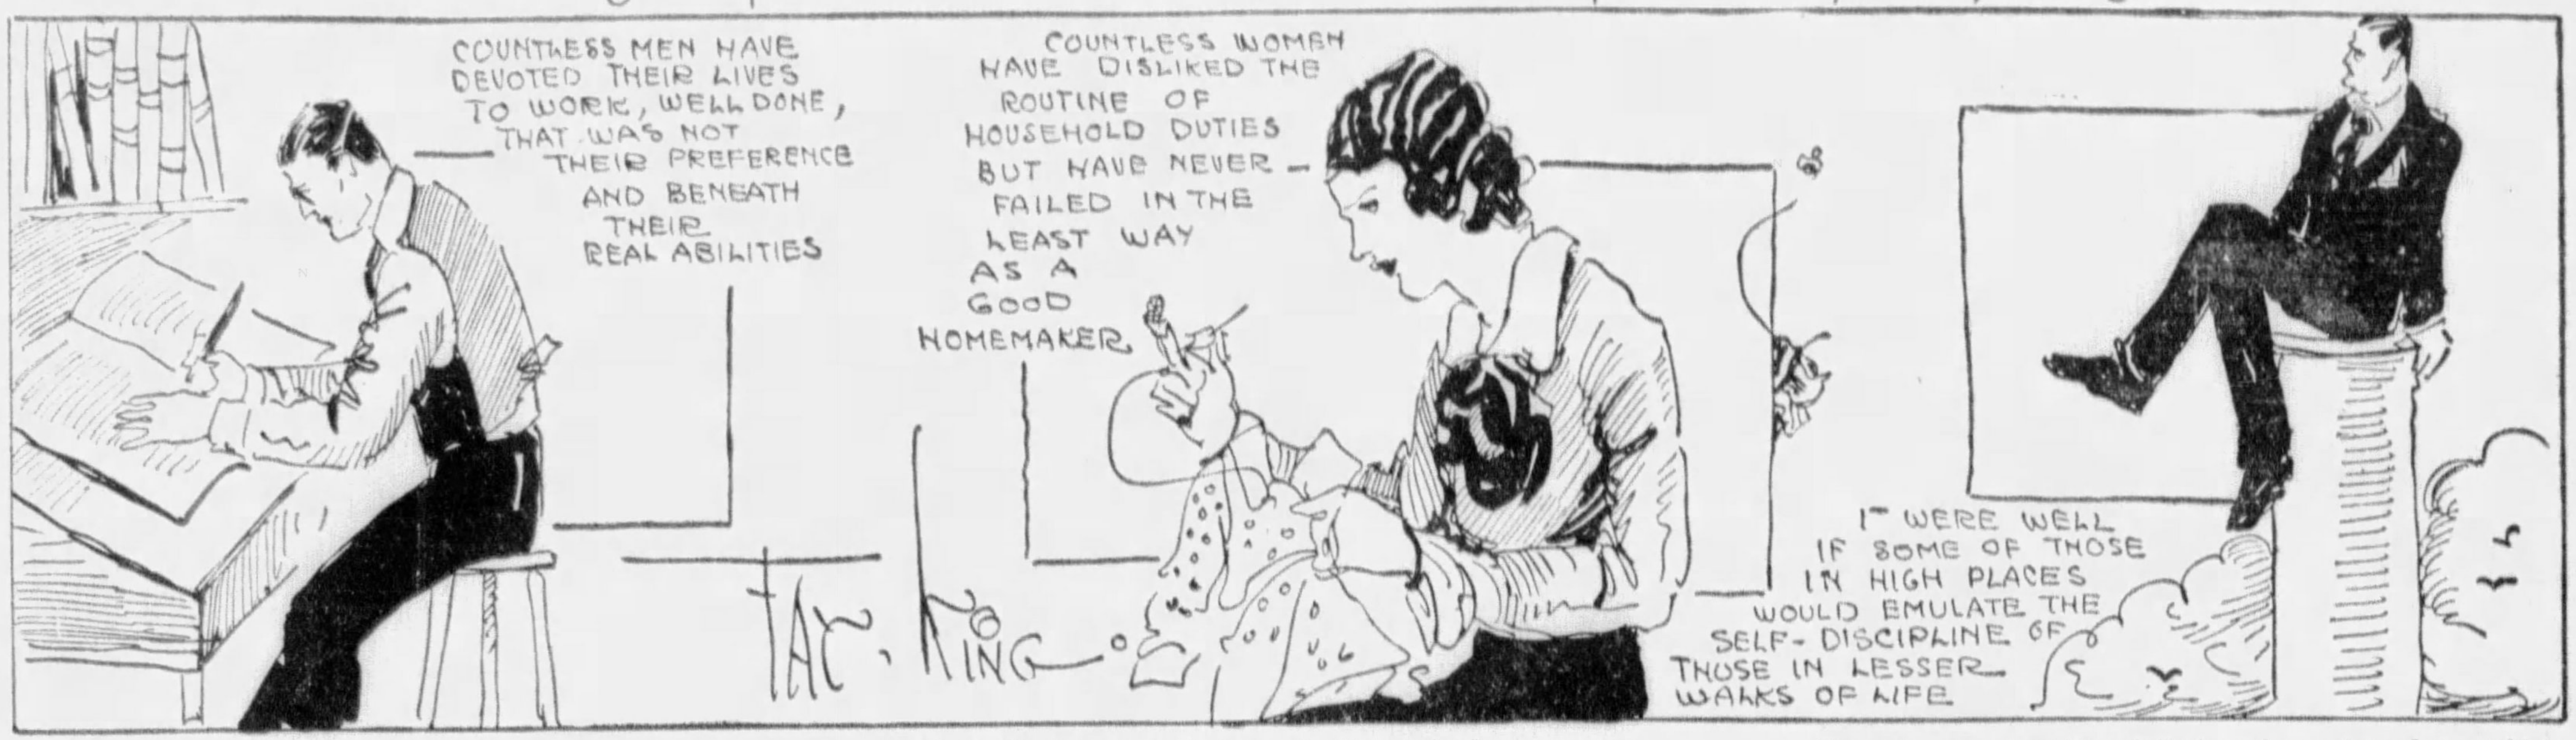
Doing Unpleasant Tasks is Good Discipline, Says Fay King



COUNTLESS MEN HAVE DEVOTED THEIR LIVES TO WORK, WELL DONE, THAT WAS NOT THEIR PREFERENCE AND BENEATH THEIR REAL ABILITIES
COUNTLESS WOMEN HAVE DISLIKED THE ROUTINE OF HOUSEHOLD DUTIES BUT HAVE NEVER FAILED IN THE LEAST WAY AS A GOOD HOMEMAKER
IT WERE WELL IF SOME OF THOSE IN HIGH PLACES WOULD EMULATE THE SELF-DISCIPLINE OF THOSE IN LESSER WALKS OF LIFE
FAY KING

By FAY KING

There is no finer success in life than to do well the work one does not like to do.

Anyone can concentrate with enthusiasm upon work he likes. But what marvelous self-discipline it is to give one's best attention and best effort to work that may be distasteful in many ways.

So much in this world is faithfully and faultlessly accomplished by persons whose preferences and abilities were in some other directions more to their liking.

Yet how well they have filled the lesser places life allotted to them.

They are more worthy of that praise and applause which so often rewards those who are merely doing well what they enjoy doing.

It is a noble character that cheerfully adjusts itself to unpleasant duties.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Anal Fissure Easily Cured

Recently I wrote about hemorrhoids and mentioned the frequent appearance of this annoying condition. Today, I want to tell you about anal fissure, which is often confused with hemorrhoids.

Dr. Copeland

To explain the difference between the two conditions it is necessary to go into detail about these ailments. A hemorrhoid, or pile, is a small swelling located either within or outside the exit of the large intestine. The swelling is covered with mucous membrane, or with skin, depending upon its location.

A fissure is an actual break in the lining of the anal canal. This can be traced to a tear from some hard and sharp object. It may result from the passage of fruit seeds, splinters of bone, or other indigestible fragments consumed in the average diet. It is especially common among sufferers from constipation.

Like a hemorrhoid, the chief symptom of this affliction is pain, or a sense of heaviness and discomfort. This is greatly increased by response to nature's call. The pain is most severe and distressing for an hour or two afterward. It may be so severe as to require the administration of an opiate.

Blood may be present. This may be of a bright red color, or mixed with a slight amount of mucus and a suggestion of pus.

Bear in mind that early recognition of this disorder assures prompt and permanent cure. When it is treated in its early stages, relief can be obtained by careful application of pure carbolic acid. This is applied directly to the fissure, but can be done only by the doctor. The treatment is repeated after an interval of one week. Soothing ointments applied to the laceration are extremely beneficial.

Do not overlook the fact that once the fissure has become chronic in nature, with a considerable amount of damage to the anal canal, relief can only be obtained by an operation. In this operation, the involved area is excised. It is a simple procedure and need not cause alarm of anxiety.

A complete and permanent cure of a fissure cannot be brought about by the application of home remedies or patent medicines. In order to effect a cure, it is essential that the physician inspect the diseased tissues and personally apply the necessary treatment. Of course, diet and personal hygiene are important preventive measures for this annoying and uncomfortable affliction.

Answers to Health Queries

A. B. Q.—What treatment do you advise for sinus trouble?

A.—First of all try to locate the exact source of infection. Overcome any underlying catarrhal condition. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

I. C. T. Q.—What can be done for hyperacidity? What is the cause of the trouble in most cases?

A.—Careful diet and regular elimination should do much to counteract this disturbance. Improper diet and poor elimination are apt to be at the source of the trouble. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and restate your question.

Warm milk in which a little washing soda has been dissolved will remove stains from brown leather. Work from the outside of each stain toward the center.

The most obstinate tea stains can be washed out after equal parts of glycerine and yolk of egg have been applied and allowed to dry. Use clear, cold water.

When a cake sticks to the tin, dip the bottom and sides of the tin into hot water and the cake will be loosened.

EXPERT LAUDS CALIFORNIA WINES

By R. W. JIMERSON

One of America's foremost authorities on wine and viticulture, writing recently in praise of California wines, made this significant statement:

"The American wine drinker, no matter how exacting or fastidious he may be, will find types of California wine that will delight his taste and warm his heart."

Only a few months have elapsed since repeal of prohibition has again made it possible to purchase and consume this truly temperance beverage.

Yet within those few months foreign interests seeking to dominate the American market with foreign wines, again have sent up a barrage of misleading propaganda similar to that against which the native wine industry was forced to contend in the pre-prohibition era.

PRIZE WINNERS

The fine, sound wines of California, which before prohibition won grand prizes in international competitions both her and abroad, again are being attacked either with deliberate intent to mislead the public, or as has happened in several instances, their character is being minimized by well-meaning "experts" who have not taken the trouble to investigate and therefore are not qualified to speak.

The statement quoted in the second paragraph is from Horatio F. Stoll's valuable brochure, "Wine Wise." It constitutes a carefully considered declaration of just what the discriminating purchaser may expect of California wine. Whether the buyer seeks dry wine, sweet wines, or the sparkling varieties, there is a California product which will give him not only better wine for his money, but more wine.

The wines of California ask nothing more of the American people and need nothing more, than a fair trial. From California's 185,000 acres devoted to the careful cultivation of wine grapes, and from her 700 wineries, there are types and vintages to suit every taste, every need, and every purse.

QUALITIES REQUIRED

There is no infallible criterion by which one may inspect the label on a bottle and then say:

"This is a good wine, that is not."

Certain essential qualities are demanded of all wines. They must be clear and colorful. Their age must be sufficient to insure a beverage that is smooth and wholesome. Good wine must have a clean, fragrant smell. Its texture must be velvety, and its taste must be alive and vigorous. But no label can accomplish this. No import stamp is a guaranty to YOU that YOU will be pleased by the contents of a certain bottle. You must find out for yourself the types and vintages that you prefer.

Wine is a matter of individual choice; and from the vintages and types of the reputable California wineries, there are wines that will please every palate, delight every olfactory nerve, and bring joy to every eye.

The requirements of good wine as they have come to be understood during 2,000 years of patient experimentation, are quite simple. Grape varieties must be developed to produce the various types desired. For each type of wine, the vine must be cultivated in soil best adapted to bring out the special merits of that grape, and under climatic conditions which will ripen the grape so as to bring out the required amounts of sugar and acid to accomplish nature's process of fermentation.

Finally, the human element in wine-making must be such that every step is painstakingly, even lovingly, accomplished. Each step in fermentation, making, blending and aging, must be under the supervision of experts schooled in the traditions of their ancient art.

There is not one of these qualifications which the California wine industry has overlooked. Good wine has been made in California since 1770, when the Padres, behind the abode walls of their lonely outposts, pressed the heady juice from the Mission

ANCIENT STOCKS

The history of modern viticulture in California dates back almost to first days of California's statehood. Experienced grape growers and wine makers from France, Italy and Switzerland were among the early settlers. When the native varieties of grapes proved insufficient, they imported cuttings from the finest stock of the old country, and these vines, crossed and grafted patiently throughout the decades, have finally given California viticulturists an almost endless variety from which to choose.

Today the wine makers of California provide types that match those of the European winelands. In the coastal counties, particularly Napa, Sonoma, Santa Clara, and Alameda, they are producing dry wines that are winning new acclaim from connoisseurs. In the hot, irrigated vineyard belts in San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys and in San Bernardino County, they have perfected types of port, sherry, angelica, muscatel and tokay.

And throughout the wine-producing counties, in cool, still cellars, expert vintners are making sparkling wines fit to rank with Europe's best.

DORRANCE TAX ORDER DELAYED

International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., April 19. — Vice Ordinary Malcolm G. Buchanan today delayed signing an order fixing at $12,247,333 the inheritance tax assessed by New Jersey on the $115,119,200 estate of the late Dr. John T. Dorrance, Campbell soup magnate. The delay was caused when counsel for the executors raised the question of whether the $15,598,528 tax paid to the state of Pennsylvania should be deducted from the corpus of the estate.

The vice ordinary held last February that Dorrance, who died in 1930, was a legal resident of New Jersey and that New Jersey was entitled to the tax even though the executors admitted he was a resident of Pennsylvania and paid the levy there.

If the claim of the executors is upheld, a substantial change will be made in the tax. However, interest charges allowed by law will amount to between three and four million dollars.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENT NARROW

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—The stock market was a highly indecisive affair today and unimportant price changes generally seemed to indicate that most traders and investors were in a waiting mood.

Little attention apparently was paid to grains which were still a bit easy after recovering from an early decline. Silver and rubber improved, but cotton was inclined to follow the cereals. Foreign currencies exhibited renewed strength against the dollar. Bonds maintained their firm position.

Utility shares drew a following. The gold mining group steadied after yesterday's reversal. Silver issues, however, were somewhat lower. The motors and rails were virtually motionless. Some of the alcohols drooped.

A more than seasonal gain in freight car loadings was helpful to sentiment. For the week ended April 14, loadings showed an increase of 20,950 over the previous week, and 80,655 over the corresponding 1933 period. The seasonal gain should have been about 5,000 cars. The fact that most of the increase was in miscellaneous merchandise shipments was seen as evidence that the forward pace of trade and industry was still vigorous.

The financial sector was pleased by the vote of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to report the amended stock regulation bill. The measure, in its present form, sets up an independent board of five members to administer the law and leaves the question of margins up to this board.

Market commentators generally held the view that no substantial movement in equities could be expected pending the final disposal of current legislative proposals. Public participation was said to be still at a minimum and foreign interest in American securities was lukewarm.

Silver protagonists received little encouragement from Washington where it was authoritatively reported that the President had no new plan for the metal in mind and expects to stand on the London conference program whereby each nation would agree to buy silver up to 25 per cent of its gold reserve. It was also made known that the Chief Executive had already expressed his views to congressional leaders and that he does not plan to send any message to Congress on the subject.

The strength of foreign gold currencies held the attention of banking and brokerage circles. Dutch guilders, Belgian belgas and French francs sold at a premium over the dollar for the first time since the revaluation of the latter currency in terms of gold. At London the weakness of the American unit was believed to be based on the uncertainties of the Washington monetary program and the possibility that the price of gold may again be raised in order to support sagging commodities. New York bankers, however, did not believe a change in the gold rate was imminent.

TRADE OUTLOOK CHEERFUL

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—The maintenance of steady consumer demand thus far this year, said the weekly Dun & Bradstreet trade review today, has had an increasingly stabilizing effect on all basic trades, "and merchants generally are taking the most cheerful attitude regarding the future that has been in evidence in three or four years."

With spring temperatures yet to appear, it now seems certain that the peak of the season's buying will not be reached until the latter part of May, with much of it to be carried over into June.

Retail sales in nearly all lines are reported at the best for any spring season in three years, with gains averaging from 20 to 40 per cent over the totals of last April.

The wholesale markets became more active this week, with orders for summer goods taking precedence over the fill-in requirements of spring merchandise, and fall needs beginning to press for attention.

LOCAL STOCKS IN NARROW RANGE

Narrow, irregular price changes continued on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today as the New York market displayed a firmer tone with volume showing an inclination to exceed recent average. While the market remains in the indefinite trend noticeable for several days, the street seems to be of the opinion that the groundwork is being set for further positive improvement in the general price level. This feeling is due to the action of the market in the face of recent disturbances, such as the wide open break in the grains.

Dealings on the local board were in light volume. Pittsburgh Plate Glass pointed upward on a few odd lot trades and a few of the other heavy industrials registered small fractional improvement. Fuels continued dull and narrow. Lone Star was down the smallest fraction on its initial trade at 6½. Brewings were quiet.

COTTON PRICES RULE LOWER

NEW YORK, April 20.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 9 to 12 points decline in response to lower Liverpool cables and under renewed liquidation. May, 11.48; July, 11.59; October, 11.72; December, 11.83; January, 11.89; March, 11.98.

There was sufficient demand from the trade and scattering sources to absorb some early selling and business tapered off after the call with the price movement narrow. At the end of the first half hour, July was selling around 11.60 and the general list showed net losses of 8 to 10 points.

The market stiffened up later in the morning on a little more buying by commission houses on covering which may have been prompted by the firmness of sterling exchange.

July sold up from 11.58 to 11.67 or within 3 points of yesterday's closing quotations, but the buying tapered off somewhat after the close of Liverpool and prices sagged off a few points from the top. At midday July was ruling around 11.62 with active months showing net declines of 6 to 8 points.

LIVERPOOL, April 20.—Cotton, 8,000 bales, including 7,400 American. Spot good business done; prices six points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 6.78; good middling 6.48; strict middling 6.33; middling 6.18; strict low middling 6.03; low middling 5.78; strict good ordinary 5.58; good ordinary 5.28. Futures closed quiet and steady. May 5.81; July 5.82; October 5.76; December 5.74; January 5.74; March 5.76.

'Meddling In Business Scored

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

IF A COMPANY running buses in a city discharged one or more drivers because of carelessness or inefficiency, and if a political body had power to compel their reinstatement, who should be held responsible for all destruction and damage-awards if these incapable drivers caused a terrific accident, with loss of life?

SHOULD OUTSIDERS, whether labor leaders or politicians or bureaucrats, be empowered to dictate to employers just what men must be employed or retained in employment?

If such outsiders were to exercise this authority, would it be unfair to hold them financially and legally responsible for untoward consequences?

How could the people expect the President of the United States to administrate national affairs successfully if he were deprived of the right to select his cabinet officers and the latter were deprived of the right to pick their own forces?

"RIDICULOUS IDEA! you ejaculate.

The management discharged certain employes, declaring they were rendering unsatisfactory service. One of the bewildering multiplicity of political alphabetical bodies, a local labor board, ordered the management to put the men back to work, alleging that they were discharged because of union activities. The management refused.

Now the National Labor Board upholds the local labor board's command.

THE MANAGEMENT announces that it cannot run its business, its buses, unless it retains the right to select dependable, efficient, trustworthy employes.

EVERY CITIZEN should be keenly interested in the outcome of this clear-cut issue.

HOW WOULD General Johnson like to have outsiders tell him whom he could or could not engage to carry on NRA acticities?

Or, if the General were in command of an army, how would he deal with mutinous men in his ranks?

Is it justice to hold an executive responsible for all the acts of all his employes if the right to pick his employes is taken away from him and handed over to others over whom he has no control whatsoever?

Has not the American principle always been that authority must be commensurate with responsibility?

HOW FAR ARE American citizens prepared to go in allowing politicians, bureaucrats and the like—most of them never elected by the public—to strip employers, executives, managers, of rights heretofore regarded as essential to the proper discharge of responsibilities?

More briefly, how far do we want dictation to be carried, dictation without responsibility for consequences?

Is it the will of Americans, including ambitious young men who hope to rise in the world, that there should be raised up in this supposedly-democratic nation a colossal political, bureaucratic structure clothed with powers approaching those exercised by Stalin in Russia, Mussolini in Italy, Hitler in Germany?

OR, IS THERE arising throughout the land a feeling that revolutionary experiments enough have already been unleashed and that the time has come for Washington to devote chief consideration to co-operating in every honorable way to restore prosperity, to restore employment?

IT IS FOR the public to choose.

MEANWHILE, IT is infinitely important that the public should be fully informed as to what is going on, so that they may be able to reach an informed decision.

BONDS MISUSE NO GREENBACK ARGUMENT

By LEWIS HANEY

NEW YORK, April 20.—From up in Michigan again comes a request for discussion of the differences between greenbacks and bonds. Something seems to have happened in that state to arouse especial interest in currancy inflation.

1—The first question put is:

"Isn't it true that currency is printed for bonds at present? That is, that the purchasing bank is required to put only 5 per cent in cash and then has currency printed for the face value of the bonds?"

No. This is not true, and the implied statement is grossly misleading.

The truth is that any national bank may buy certain classes of government bonds (which have the "circulation privilege"), and may then issue its own promissory notes (bank notes) in amount to exceed the face value of its investment in such bonds or the paid-in capital stock of the bank. The bank has to put the bonds with the United States Treasury, and in addition it has to deposit a 5 per cent fund in lawful money as a redemption fund.

Certain low-yield government bonds must be bought, and then be deposited. An additional 5 per cent in lawful money must be maintained. The total amount of bank notes is limited.

The bank notes are not legal tender.

REDEEMED ON DEMAND

2. Second question:

"You say greenbacks would have to be redeemed on demand. But both bonds and notes are now reedeemable only in currency. Is there any difference?"

What I said was that if greenbacks are to be any good, they must be redeemable on demand. The proposal now is to make them irredeemable, and thus they would come to be no good except for taxes.

As to government bonds, there is this difference: The amount that can be issued depends upon the willingness of investors to buy them. The bonds pay interest. They are held by investors and do not circulate.

There would be no such limits on greenbacaks.

I fully grant that we may well ask how good government bonds are, now that they are not payable in gold, since the government repudiated its promise in that respect.

I also grant that government bonds are being used to inflate the currency.

VALUE DECLINES

But these conditions are bad. They constitute no argument for greenbacks.

3—Third question:

"Is currency not issued against bonds; so would there be any more inflation in greenbacks without bonds?"

Yes; there would be. Bank notes are not merely issued against all bonds. There are many limitations (see answer to question 1).

Even if this were not true, the fact remains that the government has to sell its bonds to some one. No one is supposed to have to buy its bonds unless he wants to. But what could you do about greenbacks?

4—Fourth question:

Because they always steadily depreciate in value.

The government took our gold away from us because we were hoarding it to escape paper money. Intelligent people are now buying tax exempt bonds and stocks to get rid of depreciating currency.

Motor Trade Working Close to Normal

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

THE AUTOMOBILE industry is working at about 80 per cent of its normal rate for this time of year, Charles E. Wilson, vice president of General Motors Corporation, declared yesterday before a joint meeting of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and the Society of Automotive Engineers.

The average production for the first quarter during the 10 years from 1924 to 1933, inclusive, was 925,087 pleasure cars, trucks, taxicabs and buses. In the first quarter of this year production was 751,937 units. Computed exactly, this was 81½ per cent of the average for the period.

Production for the 10-year period gives a fairly good cross section of normal for the automobile trade since it included the record years of 1928 and 1929 as well as the worst of the depression.

* * *

Industry's Workers Equal Peak Level

ONE OF THE MOST surprising statements made by Mr. Wilson was the declaration that the automobile industry at present is employing as many men as in its peak period in 1929, although production still is far below the output at that time.

He stated that his own company, General Motors, employed 10,000 more workers in March than at the peak in 1929.

As a result of this, Mr. Wilson said that there has been a sudden transformation in conditions at Detroit. A year ago Detroit had one of the most serious labor problems of the country. Today the city is practically back at normal business activity so far as retail conditions are concerned. The unemployment that still exists is confined largely to the capital goods industries, such as building.

* * *

Trend to Low Prices Continues

THE TREND TOWARD cars in the lower priced field is continuing, according to Mr. Wilson. In 1927 57 per cent of the cars sold for less than $825 and were in the lower priced field. Since that time the trend to lower priced cars has been marked.

In 1933 87½ per cent of the cars sold were in the corresponding lower priced field. Registrations for March of this year indicate that 92 per cent of the cars sold were in the lower priced field. This indicates, in Mr. Wilson's opinion, that there is no reversal of this trend at present.

KAHN, FORTUNE NEAR, TO STAY WITH BAND

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Roger Wolfe Kahn, who is soon to be given a great fortune left him by his father, Otto Kahn, said today that he intends to continue his musical career. He asserted:

"I would rather be the composer of a good musical show or the leader of my own band than head of the largest bank in Wall street."

Roger is the youngest of Otto Kahn's four children. His brother, Gilbert, will continue the banking tradition of the family with Kuhn, Loeb & Co., one of the largest private banks in the country.

But Roger is going to stick to music. He said:

"I've been on my own and have made my own living since I was 15 years old.

"At that time father loaned me the money to start my first band. I made good and repaid the loan. And I have done rather well ever since. In fact the greatest handicap I have had to overcome has been being a rich man's son.

"People would not take me seriously in my desire to make my own way in life and thought I was being fantastic until I showed them. And then they wanted me to work for nothing. Thought my bands were just a hobby and that money did not matter. But as a band leader I am just as interested in making it pay as though I was running a bank."

FOUR ACQUITTED IN GARDEN SUIT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(INS.)—A directed verdict of acquittal for four of six defendants named by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Washington socialite, in a suit for $25,000 alleged damage to her ornate "sunken garden," was ordered yesterday by Justice James M. Proctor in District Supreme Court.

Mrs. Harriman had charged that her garden's beauty and future usefulness had been practically destroyed when dirt from an excavation for the home of Ray T. Baker, former director of the mint, was dumped upon the garden.

The four defendants ordered acquitted were Mrs. Delphine Dodge Baker, wife of Ray Baker, and the contracting firms of William P. Lipscomb, Inc., J. H. Small & Sons, and Logan & Pingree.

Baker still remains as a defendant, as does the estate of Joseph P. Maher, a contractor, whose trucks allegedly were used in dumping the dirt.

TROLLEY DEATH LIST GROWS

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 20.—Although there were fewer accidents, more people were killed on street railways in Pennsylvania in 1933 than in 1932, the Public Service Commission reported today.

The total of 2,564 accidents during the year was 14 per cent less than in 1932 but the 91 deaths resulting from these mishaps was three more than in 1932, or nearly four per cent. Injuries totaled 3,149, a decrease of 757, or 19 per cent.

Two of those killed and 1,718 of the injured were passengers. Twenty-three employes were injured and none killed.

Stork Pays Visit To Sea Serpent Pair

STATE RELIEF BOARD SEEKS U. S. FUNDS

HARRISBURG, April 20.—(AP.)—With $9,739,285 allocated for April work relief and for food and clothing for the last half of the month, the state Emergency Relief Board is discussing efforts to obtain federal funds for May.

April payments were made at a special meeting yesterday, and a financial statement issued after the session showed the board has a balance of $421,650. This month's allocations were made possible by the federal grant of $10,059,931 on April 7. Their completion at the regular meeting was prevented because the board had insufficient money.

WORK RELIEF NEEDS

The bulk of the federal money was taken by work relief, to which $6,770,000 was assigned, with $2,969,285 designated for food and clothing.

The board ordered Eric H. Biddle, executive director, to investigate protests against the amount and method of distributing relief in seven northeastern counties.

Frank McCarthy, of Wilkes-Barre, charged laxity and political discrimination in Luzerne county, while Anthony Ramuglia, of Allentown, called relief schedules inadequate and asked payments in cash instead of orders for food and clothing. Ramuglia acted as spokesman for units of the Pennsylvania Unemployment League in Luzerne, Columbia, Northampton, Northumberland, Monroe and Lehigh counties.

NORMA TALMADGE AND GEORGIE JESSEL . . . THEY'LL WED

Lists Marital Plans While Caressing Champagne

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Norma Talmadge, silent film star, has made George Jessel ecstatic by admitting their intent to wed "soon"—but, she wouldn't say where and she wouldn't say when.

With a quick tan obtained while getting her Mexican divorce from Joseph Schenck, film producer, Norma, dressed in slinky black satin, caressed a goblet of champagne in her hotel suite late yesterday as she talked of the future plans of Mr. and Mrs. George Jessel.

Wagging her finger, heavy under a 22-caret diamond ring, Norma said no one need worry that she and George will ever keep their contemplated wedding a secret. In fact, Miss Talmadge is not trying to be coy in declining to announce the date and place, she's merely trying to make up her mind. She explained:

"For some reason, I can't even explain it to myself, I feel I want to be married in Rome. But, maybe it will be in Florida and maybe it will be in Connecticut. I really don't know."

THEN AND NOW

It was suggested that Norma and George be married right there and then. But, Norma declared she had no dress suitable for the occasion, adding:

'I want to have a few of my close friends with me this time—last time I was married it was by a Justice of the Peace."

But any moment is the moment for the wedding with Jessel. He sat on the arm of Norma's chair looking as love-sick as a star-struck movie fan. It was plain he didn't like it when Norma joked:

The comedian affectionately replied:

"Now, dear, you mustn't say things like that."

GOOD TEAM WORK

But Norma kept right on. The couple broke into pretty good team work when a lingerie salesman called and was swiftly ejected by George. Norma pouted and said:

"But I wanted to see him—he has some wonderful things."

George gallantly replied:

"It isn't what he had—it's who wears them."

One rumor that Norma wants spiked is that this divorce has made any difference to her feeling for her former husband. She declared:

'What kind of a woman would I be if, after being married to a man for 10 years without ever a cross word or unpleasant moment, I turned against him because I had found romance? Why, even he and my husband are friends."

STUDENT HUNT ENDS IN DEATH

International News Service.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 20.—(INS.)—The body of a young man found in a meadow, where it had been deposited by the receding flood waters of Connecticut River, was identified yesterday at state police barracks as that of Clarence L. Marks, Jr., 20, Dartmouth College undergraduate who mysteriously disappeared last December 10 from Hanover, N. H.

Identification was made by the parents of the student, who came here from Philadelphia, and a brother-in-law.

Death was caused by drowning. The body was returned to Philadelphia for burial.

Young Marks dropped from sight, leaving in his typewriter an essay stating that a young man should divorce himself from family and friends and rub shoulders with working men in order to gain the proper perspective on life.

Injured Near Home By Hit-Run Driver

Mifflin Township police are seeking a driver, who, traveling at high speed, yesterday struck Thomas McMillen, 45, of Kenmore Manor, knocking him to the side of the street near his home, and sped off. Another motorist took McMillen to the Homestead Hospital, where he is suffering from knee and head injuries.

'Trixie' Replaced By 'Mae West' As Dog's Name

BOULDER, Col., April 20.—(AP.)—When Junior whistles for his canine pal now he doesn't expect "Sport," or "Trixie" or "Laddie" to respond.

According to the city clerk's records, Junior has a new set of heroes and heroines, if the names he selects for his dog pets is reliable indication.

The clerk's records show fewer "pooches" and "Sports" this year, and in their place such names for airdales, bulldogs and what-nots, as "Mae West," "Walter Winchell," "Sheik," etc.

AIR BROOKVILLE LIGHT PROTEST

Complaints of J. B. Stewart and others of Brookville, charging unreasonable rates are charged for electric service in Brookville by the Solar Electric Company, were heard yesterday by Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker. It is further alleged that the financial statements and annual reports of the company do not reflect correctly its net income.

A ruling has been made by the Commission allowing complainants to show the incorporate relationships of the Solar Company, the Pensylvania Electric Company and the Associated Gas and Electric Company and the Associated Gas and Electric Company. Testimony will be presented later.

STUNT FLYING UNDER BAN

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, April 20.—War on stunt flying, parachute jumping and aerial barnstorming was declared by the state today following the spring conference of airplane and landing field operators at which the new state aeronautics code was outlined preliminary to rigid enforcement of its provisions.

Particular emphasis was laid during the meeting on the various phases of stunting and the 75 operators, including representatives from Illinois, Michigan and New York, were told that stunt flying was to be abolished.

Arrangements were made to name a committee to work with the division of aeronautics of the Department of Revenue to assist in enforcing the provisions of the code, which was drafted last fall to protect fliers and aerial passengers.

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Birkofer Boosts Hopes ◆ Terry Still Seeks Hurler
Helps Dispel Slab Doubt | Old Fans Mourn Hickman
First Series Encouraging | Tech, Holy Cross Dicker

The first instance in which a Pittsburgh pitcher went the route and carried his club to victory without having to call on a slabmate for help was all the more gratifying and encouraging because the hurler to do the trick was one of the younger members of the staff in the person of Ralph Birkofer. The main uncertainty about the mound corps has centered around the youthful hurlers. If they were to wobble at the start there might be some concern as to how they would perform in the future. But happily, it's the other way around. The slips to date have been charged against the veterans. There is less cause to worry about the future of the latter. It may be assumed pretty safely that French, Lucas and even Meine will be O. K. in due time, and the indications that the younger part of the staff will not be found wanting brightens the general outlook.

Ralph Birkofer

The way Art Veltman performed behind the bat in handling a young pitcher was another pleasing development, and the evidence of offensive power contained in a 19-hit swatting spree that extended all through the regular order rounded things out in a fashion to make the first series of the season highly satisfactory. In taking two out of three games from the Cardinals, the Pirates made the best showing in the league to date, as measured by the caliber of the opposition. Though the Giants and Cubs each won three straight meanwhile, it is not to be overlooked that both were playing hopeless second-division outfits, whereas the Bucs were up against a recognized pennant contender.

HEYDLER'S NEW UMP BUSY SPORTS FIGURE

Local baseball fans will see one of the busiest figures in sports when they get a look at Bill Stewart, the new member of the National League staff of umpires. Like Ernie Quigley, Stewart is an all-around official, and he goes a little further than Quigley in that his activities take in hockey. He is the only big league hockey arbiter among the major league baseball umpires, and he is the only United States citizen among the big hockey league officials. Though he never played hockey except in an informal way on Jamaica Pond in Boston, he has coached in that sport and refereed in the National and Canadian-American leagues at the same time.

Stewart was at once a minor league baseball player, a school and college coach in various sports, and an official in as many different games as could be fitted into his crowded schedule. At school he was a sprinter, jumper and shot-putter. He coached Massachusetts Tech and Milton Academy in hockey at the same time. At nights he refereed. Working in two leagues, he has handled as many as 84 ice games in a season. Last winter he had 63 games to his credit.

GIANTS STILL AFTER ANOTHER PITCHER

The increased demand for pitching strength with which to combat the livelier ball in use in the National League is attested by the fact that even the Giants, with their famous Big Four promising to click as well as ever, are leaving nothing undone to augment their already impressive staff. Bill Terry still is casting about for another big league hurler and hopes to get him from a National League club with which he has been dickering for the last two weeks.

Watson Clark

Terry's activities in that direction indicate he doubts the reported recovery of Watson Clark. The Giant manager declares, however, that he has not given up on the ailing left-hander. He says Clark will be given every chance in the world to get back into form, and that if he fails he will be placed on the voluntarily retired list and sent home for the summer to rest up for another trial next spring. Under no conditions, Terry says, will Clark be sold, traded or released.

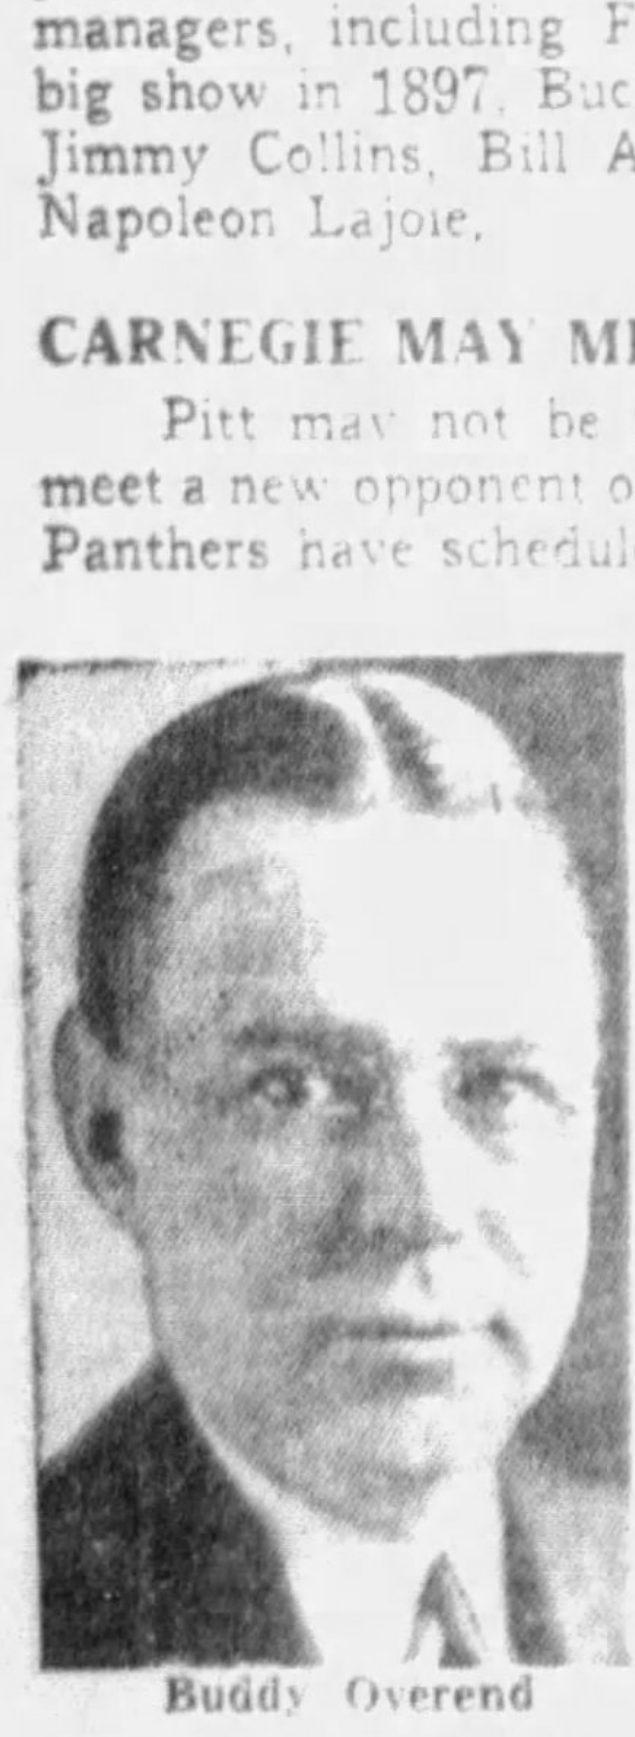
DEATH OF HICKMAN SHOCK TO OLD FANS

The sudden death of Charles T. Hickman, Sheriff of Monongalia County, W. Va., and three times Mayor of Morgantown, was a shock to his many friends in this district and to veteran baseball fans who had known him as one of the most colorful and popular figures in the major leagues and in regional independent and minor league ranks three decades ago and more. There were no pitchers in those days who did not fear Charley Hickman. He was famed all around the big loops for his batting ability, which caused him to be converted, like Babe Ruth, George Sisler, Bill Terry and others, from a pitcher into a regular player in the outfield and at first base. He also played a stretch at shortstop while with the New York Giants.

Hickman reached his peak as a slugger while with Cleveland in 1902, when he made an average of .363, remarkable hitting in the days of a dead ball and trick pitching, and equivalent to a mark of .400 or better in the era of the rabbit ball. He hit above .300 in two other seasons, .313 for the Giants in 1900, and .330 for Cleveland in 1903, and consistently ranked among the most dangerous batsmen of his time. Hickman played on eight major league clubs, and served under many managers, including Frank Selee, who brought him into the big show in 1897, Buck Ewing, George Davis, George Smith, Jimmy Collins, Bill Armour, Jake Stahl, Fielder Jones and Napoleon Lajoie.

CARNEGIE MAY MEET HOLY CROSS ON GRID

Pitt may not be the only local college football team to meet a new opponent of the front rank in the East in 1935. The Panthers have scheduled a game with Fordham University in New York for that season, and now there is a strong prospect that Carnegie Tech will send its 1935 eleven to Worcester, Mass., for a tussle with Holy Cross College. Overtures made by Holy Cross for a game in Worcester were received with such favor at Carnegie that Graduate Manager Buddy Overend is understood to have entered into negotiations with the officials of the Massachusetts school, and there is a good chance that an agreement will be reached soon, clinching a meeting of the teams in the season after next.



Buddy Overend

New England has long been eager to see the Tartans in action on the gridiron, and there is no doubt that the game, if arranged, as present signs promise, will prove one of the most popular features and best drawing cards of the Holy Cross team's home season. It will also mean another hard contest for the Carnegie Tech gridders, as Holy Cross, now coached by Dr. Edward Anderson and using the Notre Dame system, consistently turns out strong teams, meeting annually such powerful opponents as Harvard, Brown, Detroit, Boston College and others. Duquesne played the Crusaders in Worcester in 1931 and was defeated, 12 to 0.

What's Softball?—Here Are the Rules—Study Up on 'Em

HOW TO LAY OUT FIELD FOR PLAY

In connection with its staging of the Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament this summer, the winner of the major class in which will be sent to the National tournament in Chicago, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today begins publishing the official rules of the game to acquaint players with them in advance of the opening of entries for the competition.

These rules were adopted by the Joint Rules Committee at a meeting in Chicago in January. Players are urged to clip and preserve the series.

RULE 1—The Game

1—The name of this game shall be softball, which includes games formerly known as kittenball, diamond-ball, playground baseball, mushball, recreation ball, indoor-outdoor, lightning baseball and kindred names.

2—In all situations not covered by these rules, the rules of baseball shall apply.

RULE 2—The Playing Field

1—The game shall be played on two standard-sized diamonds, namely, with 45-foot or 60-foot baselines. Where the distance between bases is 45 feet, a ball 14 inches in circumference shall be used. Where the distance between bases is 60 feet, a ball 12 inches in circumference shall be used.

2—The pitching distance for both diamonds shall be 37 feet. This distance shall be measured from the center of home plate to the back edge of the pitcher's plate.

(Note—It is suggested that girls' games be played on a 45-foot diamond with the 14-inch ball.)

3—Laying out a diamond. (See diagram.)

(a) Choose the location of home plate. If your diamond is to have 45-foot baselines, obtain a cord exactly 90 feet long. Mark the cord, either with a pin of a smaller cord, 37 feet from either end, and another point 63 feet from the same end. Having decided on the direction of second base from the home plate, place one end of your line on the spot to be made home plate, in the exact center.

With this end pegged firmly in the ground, proceed toward second base. Having traveled 37 feet, as indicated by the first mark, designate the spot, which will be the rear line of the pitcher's slab. Continue straight ahead until you reach the 63-foot mark. Then place the second peg carefully in the ground at that point. This will be the location of second base.

Now, with the original end of the cord fastened at home plate, fasten the other end on the peg representing second base. Then take your 90-foot line in the center and move as far as possible to the right. When you have reached the limit of the cord, mark this point, as it will be the location of first base. Repeat the same procedure to the left to secure the location of third base.

(b) If your diamond is to have 60-foot baselines, use a cord 120 feet long, and mark your points 37 feet and 84 feet from the end. Then follow the same procedure. The distance from the center of home plate to the center of second base is 84 feet, which is also the distance from first base to third base.

(c) Lines drawn from the home plate along the outside edges of first and third bases shall consti-

BOWLING KING HERE TONIGHT

Andy Varipapa, of New York City, one of the world's most accomplished tenpin bowlers, will give an exhibition of his skill at the Keystone Athletic Club and at the Roxian alleys, McKees Rocks, tonight.

Varipapa has rolled 25 perfect games; has averaged 278 3-5 for five games, 253 for 30 games and 229 for 56 games, and is credited with 23 straight strikes. Andy compiled these averages in match competition in which cash as well as glory was at stake, and in which such stars as Joe Falcaro supplied the opposition.

Varipapa will oppose Val Meyer in the exhibition at the Keystone Club at 8 o'clock. He will hurry to the Roxian alley to meet Fred Schmied, of perfect game fame, James Shimer and Ralph Dillinger after concluding the Keystone engagement.

Strikes and Spares

A team made up of the cream of the bowling talent in Sharon and Farrell [illegible] duckpin [illegible] will oppose Doc Emery's star team in a special match at the Center Alleys tomorrow night.

The Ralers scored a sweep at the expense of New Deal, and the Carsons, Colonials and Jolts turned in two-out-of-three victories as competition was resumed in the Squirrel Hill Duckpin League.

Councilman John J. Kane will be toastmaster at the annual banquet of the Pressmen Duckpin League of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, to be held at the Elks [illegible] next Tuesday evening, with awarding of prizes, entertainment and other features. Joseph Hagan, business representative of the Pressmen's Union, also will attend.

Howard Kaercher beat out John Mulvaney for the individual championship of the Pressmen's League by a margin of seven pins. Both hit 160 and a fraction. Harold Hartman rolled high single game, 239, and Mulvaney, high three games, 616. The Gears had high one game score, 859, and high team score, 2,338. The Cylinders won the team championship. Six teams make up the circuit, which rolls on the Aldine Alleys.

Riskulus Favored In Texas Derby

ARLINGTON DOWNS, Tex., April 20.—(AP.)—The $10,000 added Texas Derby will be run tomorrow with 12 thoroughbreds expected to go in the post before a crowd of 30,000.

Riskulus is the 8-to-5 favorite for the mile and a furlong fixture. This ace of the Norman W. Church stable will have to be at top form, however, to beat off the challenge of Indian Salute, Plight, Hickory Lad, Lynx Eye, Cursor, Somebody, Bender First, Black Peter, Money Getter, Mt. Hood and Martin Barton.

FRANK SMITH TO DIRECT NET TITLE PLAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Frank S. Smith, veteran star of Edgewood and recent addition to George Henderson's re-enforced Stanton Heights crew, again has been named by Pittsburgh Tennis Association President Bob Schmertz to serve as chairman of the annual Western Pennsylvania net championships, the 1934 edition of which will be staged on the Stanton lot from Saturday, June 16, to Sunday, June 24.

The coming conclave will mark Smith's fourth consecutive year at the helm of the district classic, the Edgewooder having moved in on resignation of Ed Seitz, Trafford leader, back in 1931.

The appointment of Smith was announced at yesterday's meeting of the P. T. A. executive committee at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton Club. The personnel of the general tournament committee and the various sub-groups has yet to be selected and the governing outfit hardly will be ready to function until well along in May. It is understood, however, that officials of the racquet body will bend every effort informally from now on to persuade new out-of-town entries to trek to Pittsburgh for the titular event. Special gestures will be made toward Cleveland and Philadelphia fields.

TO INCREASE SEATS

Smith, under whose supervision the West Penn affair has shaken off anaemia and attained robust health that is a marvel of local sportdom, as recently as the occasion of the yearly get-together of the P. T. A. last week, offered constructive recommendations for even further betterment of the tourney. Among these may be found the suggestion for the increase of seating capacity at the courts and the sale of weekly subscription tickets to permit an easier margin of financing.

Frank S. McClintock, University Club luminary, succeeds President-elect Schmertz as head of the important committee on Western Pennsylvania rankings. McClintock has been assigned to the exacting task of determining the ratings since the job was first attempted here in 1931. He will have with him Jack Beatty, Stantonian devotee, who likewise has served for the past three seasons, and J. Phillips Davis, retiring chief executive of the association. The committee begins its labors this week with the filing of records of Steel City entrants at the White Sulphur meet and will be on the hop constantly through college, league and tournament campaigns until the asbestos is lowered next September.

BURGWIN CHAIRMAN

Howard J. Burgwin, Pittsburgh Golf Club premier, moves into the writer's old post as chairman of the sanction and schedule committee, which incidentally has been reduced in size from five members to three, the remainder of the trio being J. M. Dixon, of Rockwood, and the present scribe. Hub Rinehart, giant Stanton Heightsman, continues as boss of the junior development contingent. His aides have not thus far been nominated.

The final makeup of the P. T. A. Inter-Club loop has been tabled for another week. An executive sesion, though, has been fixed for next Thursday and it is aimed to crystalize the alignment of the three sections at that time. Failure of several possible aspirants to give word of their competitive intentions has caused the delay.

Grotto to Award Fine Ring Prizes

Boxers who reach the finals in the Golden Gloves Amateur Boxing Championship Tournament, to be sponsored by Islam Grotto, May 6, 7 and 8 on the North Side, will find their rewards well worth the effort.

The eight champions will be presented fine boxers' robes, with their names, titles and the year on the backs. The runners-up will get warm-up jackets, unlettered. Besides, the champions will get large golden glove charms and the second placers smaller ones.

CINCINNATI, April 20.—The opening battle of the three-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds here this afternoon was called off on account of cold weather.

The engagement will be concluded with single games tomorrow afternoon and Sunday.

The Pirates will open their home season next Tuesday when they meet the St. Louis Cardinals in Pittsburgh. Monday is an open date on the Bucs' schedule.

The postponed game will be played oq as part of a doubleheader on Wednesday, June 6.

BUCS EASY VICTORS

A strong Cincinnati influence was at work in the interest of the Pirates yesterday as the Buccos smothered the Redbirds in the final game of the series at St. Louis. Southpaw Ralph Birkofer, the 200-pound recruit from this town, made the Frisch entry eat out of his hand while his mates were shellacking Bill Hallahan, Flint Rhem and Jim Mooney.

The Cardinal players harvested a bumper crop of Bronx cheers as they threw the ball all over the field. When they were not making misplays, the Pirates were carving out a total of 19 hits. Capt. Traynor and Fred Lindstrom led the savage cannonading with eight blows, five of which were for extra bases. Pie and Lindy each combed the foe for four safeties.

Hallahan and Birkofer offered the fans a fine duel through four innings, during which hits were at a premium. Came the sixth and with it a big drive against the Binghamton boy who had to take his leave before the Pirates had been flagged. The inning produced six counters.

The Buccos jumped on Rhem for seven runs and nine hits in the two succeeding rounds and they wound up by pasting Mooney for the final tally.

Chillysauce

A great ball team can look as bad as the Phillies or Reds on an off day. The Cardinals are heavy favorites for a first division role, but yesterday they were as loose as a sandlot nine. Five errors were charged, including battery misplays of the wild pitch and passed ball variety.

Traynor was smacked twice with wild throws on one continuous tour of the sacks. Jim Collins hit Pie a heavy blow in the ribs as he tried to force him at second. Pie set sail for the plate as the ball caromed into center field. George Davis made an effort to flag Pie at the barriers, but his throw also nicked Traynor in the back. Pie laughed it off. The gallant Pirate captain would like to laugh off his sore arm. He is suffering much pain, especially when he throws overhanded.

Cookie Lavagetto had another big day. The kid seems to be a hearcat in the clinches at the plate. Put the tallies on there and he will hammer them over. Cookie came up in the sixth with runners on third and second and two out and smacked a hot single to center to score both. He had two hits.

Larry French has Joe Medwick listed as one of the best hitters in the circuit. The powerful Hungarian has been a nightmare to French since he came into the league. French laid careful plans to stop Joe, Wednesday. He said he would pitch low and inside and requested Capt. Traynor to play a deep field. Larry had three and two on the recruit when he threw him a slow screw ball. Medwick plastered the rocket into the leftfield seats for his second homer of the season.

French was half amused and provoked as he discussed Medwick. Said the left-hander:

"Medwick was hitting me so well in Pittsburgh one day last summer, I decided to loosen him up. So I knocked his cap off with a pitch. He got up and smacked me down with a double. When he reached second he gave me a big laugh. Boy, was I mad?"

Pie Traynor looks fine at the plate at the outset of his thirteenth season as Pirate third sacker. It's too bad Pie doesn't have the full power of his right arm else he might be set for his greatest diamond exploits. Naturally he is smarter than ever and he has always been a smart performer.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE POLISH GENIUS—Jozef Ignacy Kraszewski, most versatile of Polish authors (1812-1887), began his literary career in 1831 and developed into the most prolific writer of modern times. His literary output, written in his own hand, comprises essays in literature, criticisms, memoirs, history, archeology, philosophy, in addition to an incredible number of large novels. At the same time he edited a magazine, in which almost all the articles were supplied by himself, publishing regularly six volumes a year. For a long time he also was his own printer, painter and engraver and served as correspondent for many French, German and Polish periodicals. This wonderful productivity did not seem to decrease with age. Altogether in about 50 years he wrote 500 heavy volumes, averaging about 10 volumes a year. This does not include his journalistic work. No modern, not even Dumas the Elder, can compare with Kraszewski in literary versatility and output.

KISKI SQUAD FAVORED TO KEEP TITLE

By TOM BIRKS

Twenty-four teams, embracing four sections, will set out this afternoon for the Interscholastic Golf League title, now adorning the trophy case at Kiski. The Saltsburgers, under the guidance of Dean Jim Marks, are favored to retain the crown.

The champions, playing in section IV, meet Latrobe at Latrobe today, other Section IV duels bringing together Greensburg and Jeannette at Greensburg and McKeesport and Norwin at Irwin.

LEAGUE INCREASED

Aspinwall takes on Sewickley at the Sewickley Y course; Shady Side meets Springdale at Valley Heights and University School plays Wilkinsburg at Edgewood in Section II and in Section III, Bellevue and Brentwood go to it at South Hills; Central Catholic faces Dormont at South Hills and Mt. Lebanon and Turtle Creek meet at Alcoma.

As competition gets under way, John Irwin, of the Taylor Allderdice High School, league president, and Capt. W. A. Palmer, of Shadyside Academy, the secretary, are elated at the number of teams lined up for the race.

TURTLE CREEK STRONG

Turtle Creek proved to be more than a little troublesome last year. Coach Wood's proteges have been practicing steadily for the grind. Foster Meyer, a boy who learned the rudiments of golf at the Highland Country Club, is captain at Kiski this season, and Foster naturally wants to repeat that double victory achieved by Jim Marks, Jr., last year.

Coach Pierce, of the Brentwood High School, has appointed Don Hurley to captain the South Hills team, and it is likely that Al McBride will give the Brentwood club a few pointers. Lawrence Ambrose, Pops Kocel, Gene Hill, Dan Churm and Russell Miller will make up the Brentwood squad.

There are some strong teams in Section IV. Greensburg, Jeannette and McKeesport players have been swinging clubs as caddies and are very proficient.

PARKS PLANS SET

The North and South County parks will open one week from tomorrow. This means that play will commence one week earlier than last season. Permits are $20 and $12, and may be purchased at the city office of the Department of Parks, room 505, County Office Building, Ross and Diamond streets. The $20 permit entitles the bearer to unlimited play at both parks, while the $12 permit is good except on Saturdays, Sundays or holidays.

Reservations for Saturdays, Sundays and holidays may be made by calling Atlantic 4900, line 369 or 373. Al McBride and Walter Loeffler, professionals at South and North parks, respectively, worked on the courses all winter and declare them to be in great shape.

The Schenley Park Public Links will be opened for play next Friday morning, according to Walter Phillips, the new pro. Leslie M. Johnson, director of public works, will be on hand for the opening.

WALKER CUP ACES GATHER

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—Nine leading amateur golfers of the nation, including the United States open and amateur champions, gathered in New York today preparatory to starting an ocean voyage which ultimately will lead to St. Andrews in Scotland for the international Walker Cup team matches with Great Britain on May 11 and 12. The team sails tomorrow at noon on the Caledonia.

Francis Ouimet, the team captain, came down from Boston; Chandler Egan, the 50-year-old marvel, arrived from the Pacific coast; Gus Moreland came up from Texas. They were joined by George T. Dunlap, Jr., and Johnny Goodman, amateur and open kings, respectively; Jack Westland, of Chicago; Johnny Fischer, of Cincinnati; Max Marston, of Philadelphia, and Lawson Little, of San Francisco.

The members of the team will be the dinner guests tonight of Herbert Jaques, president of the United States Golf Association. The affair will be closed to the players and U. S. G. A. officials. The only outsider expected to attend is Bobby Jones, five times a member of the team, who is in New York on a business trip.

Mrs. Hill and Baer Lose in Exhibition

KANSAS CITY, April 20.—(AP.)—Max Baer, serious about his golf, lost a best ball contest yesterday in which he was the partner of Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City's internationalist.

The heavyweight challenger, on an exhibition tour en route to New York for his fight with World Champion Primo Carnera, and Mrs. Hill yielded to the steady play of Joe Mathews, pro of the Mission Hills Country Club, and C. E. McBride, local sports writer.

FROM TEE TO GREEN

A smoker will be held at the Highland Country Club next Monday night. Featuring the entertainment will be a series of Bobby Jones pictures. These shorts always attract a large crowd of golfers.

Jack Benson, young South Hills star, apparently is headed for another big season. Last year Benson was troubled with a bad knee. A winter operation seems to have fixed that and rounds of 70 and 71 indicate that Jack will be a serious contender for amateur honors.

Manager Jack Hallam of the Highland Country Club shot an 80 yesterday afternoon. A 6 on 17 and a 5 on eighteen show the kind of golf Jack was shooting. Vince Eldred is expecting a challenge any day now.

FIVE PITT VARSITY SPORT TEAMS IN ACTION TOMORROW

TRACKERS FACE BIG TEST IN TEMPLE

By JESS CARVER

Five of Pitt's eight varsity sport teams are due for intensive action tomorrow, which, for this time of the year, is unusual, to say the least. Of the five, three will be facing rival varsity squads, the other two, the footballers and swimmers, having a practice game and a clinic, respectively, over which to worry.

The track team, inaugurating the 1934 dual meet campaign here, faces Temple University's powerful squad in the Pitt Stadium. The golf team, selected so recently that the boys hardly have had time to be properly introduced, engage Detroit University in a match at St. Clair, which will be the home course for the Pitts this spring and the netters, provided it doesn't rain between now and then, whenever that happens to be, will engage Grove City's Crimson volleyers at Grove City.

SWIM CLINIC SET

In Trees pool Coach Pat Corr's varsity swimmers will take part in Pat's second annual swimming clinic, along with various swimming leaders of the district, including the Misses Lenore Kight, Anna Mae and Johanna Gorman and Louise Clark, of the Carnegie Library Club, of Homestead.

Others billed to speak are Allen Riesdorph, swimming coach at Tech; the veteran Jack Scarry, of Homestead; Harry Blair, of the board of education; Ralph Shinon, John T. Taylor and Coach Corr.

The Pitt trackers, who have been under the lash all week, are on edge for their test against Temple. The fine weather, comparatively speaking, has worked wonders with the boys' condition. Following are a few of the more important tasks confronting the Panthers:

Bill Keller and Fred Kiger must beat Clyde Davis, of Temple, in the 440 and 880 and Davis has done the latter in 1:56 and the former in 0:49.3.

Fleming, Jacobson and Schlossburg, local sprint stars, have a tough baby to take in Wells, of the Owls, who can do the century in 9.9 and probably will.

MILERS STRONG

Ken Wagonhouser, Pitt's mile champion, will have no picnic in duelling with Federaff, who has a 4:21 mile to his credit and a [illegible]:45 two-mile, and if he has a bad day, there is Harlan Jackson, who does the mile in 4:24 and Stan Wudyka, who turns the two-mile in 9:32.

Coach Ben Ogden, of the Owls, who admits he has the most formidable squad of his six-year career as head coach at Temple, admits to the foregoing times, which is something.

A new university record may be established in the 880. Keller likes the distance, runs it well and is capable of doing 1:56; in fact, he has just such a race to his credit. He and Davis ought to have a swell afternoon.

Coach Jock Sutherland, who has been driving his footballers through about as strenuous a spring practice as any Pitt squad ever has gone through, considering the handicaps imposed by the inclement weather, plans to send his lads through a practice game. If they would put one of these spring practice tilts in the Stadium before the eyes of John Q Public, they'd only have to do it once to assure a pip of a turnout the second time.

OUTSIDER WINS ATTENTION IN DERBY DRILL

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 20.—Up steps one of those darkest of dark horse candidates for the Kentucky Derby to turn in the best workout over the full mile-and-a-quarter route witnessed this year.

He is War Pledge, a son of Crusader and Polly Pledge and a grandson of the mighty Man O' War. Under a strong pull, he sped the full Derby route in 2:09 4-5 at Lexington, a second or so faster than the brilliant distance works by Sir Thomas, one of the favorites.

War Pledge, owned by A. O. Bianchi and Harry B. Scott, started only twice at Latonia last summer, finishing tenth and fifth. He will be shipped to Louisville in a few days.

MAN O' WAR REPRESENTED

Three children and nine grandchildren of Man O' War, the "horse of a century," are among the nominees for the sixtieth Kentucky Derby, May 5. The children are Holystone, Fighting Mike and Identify, all long shots.

The grandchildren, however, include two or three of the first rank Derby candidates. They are Mati Hari, Black Buddy, Chasar, War Pledge, Jabot, Vicar, Billy M., Norman D. and Naval Cadet.

McNamara, Zach Steal Bike Lead

MONTREAL, April 20.—(AP.)—The veteran Reggie McNamara and his partner, Freddie Zach, upset the smooth course of the Montreal six-day bike race last night when they came from the ruck to take the lead. Three laps behind the pace setters in the early afternoon, McNamara and Zach put on a spurt which gave them a one-lap margin over Alfred LeTourner and Henri LePage.

Three more teams, including the favored Canadian combination of Torchy Peden and Jules Audy, were tied for third place, two laps behind the pace setters. The leaders had covered 1,633 miles and eight laps.

Star Racers Enter Indiaanpolis Grind

Alden Sampson, whose 16-cylinder car was driven to fourth place last May 30 by Chet Gardner, sent his entry today and Louis Meyer, the California Comet, winner of the last race here and the American driving champion in 1933, sent in his entry several days ago, as did Michael Boyle, of Chicago, whose car, piloted by Wild Bill Cummings, ran away with the race and the lap prize money for a time last year.

TITLE SWIMS TONIGHT

Two Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. senior and two junior swimming championships are down for decision in the pool of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement this evening. They are the senior 150-yard backstroke and 220-yard breaststroke events and the junior low board diving and 180-yard junior individual medley contests.

BOUTS AT CHARLEROI

The Charleroi police are staging an amateur boxing show in the Penny Building, Charleroi, tonight, beginning at 8:30. George Bittner meets Andy Todd in a feature bout and other star performers will appear.

MARATHON KING TRAINED ON SNOWSHOES

BOSTON, April 20.—(AP.)—Finns are supposed to know all about distance running, but Dave Komonen, 35-year-old mine carpenter, had to immigrate to Canada to learn how to win the famous Boston A. A. marathon.

This wiry runner, who has been living in Toronto and Sudbury, Ontario, for five years, believes snowshoeing gave him the stamina needed to lead yesterday's crack field of 193 over the 26 miles, 385 yards of hills and lane that stretch from a Hopkinton farm to the B. A. A.'s clubhouse in the Back Bay. He trained for the race on snowshoes, running 15 and 20 miles a day.

Komonen had only two real threats against his success, Johnny Kelley, young Medford, runner, who finished second, and Bill Steiner, cocky New York German, who placed third after leading the field for 16 miles.

Alex Burnside, of Toronto, finished fourth in 2:44.32, and another persistent Finn, Willie Koski, of New York, was fifth in 2:44.52. The others in the "first 10" were Gordon Norman, of Beverly; Bill McMahon, of Pawtucket, R. I.; Percy Wyer, Toronto; Dave Fagerland, New York, and Bill Molloy, of Medford.

Clarence Demar, 45-year-old veteran who has won the race seven times in 16 tries, was sixteenth.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Announcement of the impending wedding of Buck McTiernan brings to light a hidden chapter in the life of the former star middleweight boxer of Swissvale . . . His full name is John Wilfred McTiernan . . . His bride-to-be is Miss Patricia O'Brien, of 7803 Union street, Swissvale . . . Buck lives at 2411 Woodstock avenue, and now is the pride of the motorcycle division of the Swissvale police force . . . One of his jobs is to see that the children are safely escorted across the street at the school . . . The marriage on May 2 will mark the culmination of a romance begun when the pair were students at Swissvale High School, seven years ago . . . The wedding will be solemnized in St. Anslem's Church, Swissvale, with the Rev. Joseph Clougherty, uncle of the bride, officiating . . . Buck says Patricia is the only girl he ever had.

Jim Sheraden is the telegrapher who receives the reports in the KQV studio from which Jimmy Murray recreates the Pirates' games away from home . . . They got the telegrapher a noiseless typewriter on which to copy the press box flashes, but during the first few games he forgot himself and began to call out the plays . . . And the announcer is supposed to do that.

Dan Clark, manager of Anson Green, shows he has the best interests of his boxer at heart in agreeing to let the Homestead middleweight box Ben Jeby, former champion, at Motor Square Garden one week from tonight rather than allowing himself to be panicked into accepting a match immediately with Ted Yarosz . . . As matters stand now there is too great a chasm between Yarosz and Green to make such a match a sound one or even a selling one to the public without the aid of misleading ballyhoo, which is not possible here, where the fans are at least as intelligent as they are in any of the other fistic centers, and perhaps a bit more discerning in their choice of attractions . . . Yarosz is just a step removed from being the generally accepted champion of the world, while Green is taking his first steps as a main bouter . . . If Anson can beat Jeby he will be in a position to ask for and receive a match with Yarosz on his merits, and neither the promoter nor the authorities will be holding the bag in the event it does not come up to expectations then . . . Yarosz' manager, Ray Foutts, first blocked the match on the grounds that the public would be asked to take too much of a blind chance . . . If Green proves himself against Jeby, who recently gave Teddy a good fight here, it is certain Foutts will not hold to his objections, and the pairing of the two local men then will prove twice as attractive as now.

They've been yelling for a livelier ball in the National League . . . Now watch 'em yell to get it out of there.—HARRY KECK.

'EKKIE' READY FOR TEST

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP.)—Equipoise, C. V. Whitney's champion, which will start his attack on Sun Beau's money winning record tomorrow in the Philadelphia handicap, turned in another impressive workout at Havre De Grace, Md., yesterday.

The 6-year-old chestnut was brought on the track shortly after noon and with Sonny Workman in the saddle broke from the mile post. He dashed around the first turn, going the quarter of a mile in 24 flat. The three furlongs were clocked in 36 3-5 seconds and the half mile in 49 seconds flat.

The little champion flashed by the five-furlong pole in 1:02 and the six furlongs were timed in 1:14. He still was going very easy when Trainer Tom Healy, who was in the infield, began to wave him down.

KIPKE, LITTLE KNOCK CRITICS OF FOOTBALL

CLEVELAND, April 20.—(AP.)—Any critics inclined to cry "overemphasis" at college football are subject to a good hard tackle from Lou Little and Harry Kipke. Speaking before the Physical Educational Association last night, Little said:

"Concerning the evils of gate recipts, I think that bugaboo has been largely outgrown."

The Columbia coach, whose team captured the Rose Bowl game this year, was backed up by Kipke, whose Michigan squad took the Big Ten title last season.

There have been times, according to Kipke, when he reluctantly subscribed to the over-emphasis charge, but now football is remarkably clean, with few exceptions, he asserted. He added:

"I am not what is known in some circles as a rah-rah coach. I mean, I do not believe in preaching to football players that it is their duty to represent the college on the gridiron.

"If a boy loves the rugged contact and action of football, he should play. If not, he must emphatically should not."

Kipke told the delegates some critics of football insist that too many men and women sit in the stands. Yet their presence helps bring about a desire for better physical condition for themselves and results in a greater interest in the work to which they, the delegates, are devoting their lives.

Dempsey Reinstated By N. B. A. Prexy

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 20.—(AP.)—Edward C. Foster, president of the National Boxing Association, has ordered the reinstatement of Jack Dempsey, former world's champion, in all member states of the N. B. A. except Mississippi, the state which originally asked for the suspension of the one-time titleholder.

BOSTON RED SOX CAPTURE FIRST DUAL BILL OF SEASON

SOLTERS, LOCAL STAR, HERO FOR VICTORS

Associated Press.

The Boston Red Sox, picking Patriots' Day, a strictly Bostonian holiday, as their starting point, already have begun to pay dividends upon owner Tom Yawkey's big investment in them.

After dropping two tough decisions to Washington's Senators, the Sox made it all up yesterday by trimming the 1933 league champions in both halves of the holiday doubleheader, 5 to 4 and 7 to 3. Julius Solters, big outfielder from Pittsburgh, won the morning contest with a ninth inning home run after a pinch hit by Dave Harris had tied the count for Washington in the seventh.

34,000 SEE GAME

The afternoon drew 34,000 fans, the largest crowd since the rebuilding process began. They saw the Red Hose pound Ray Prim, Mark Filley and Ed Linke, for 13 hits, including a homer by Bill Cissell while Johnny Welch tossed in a five-hit hurling job to make the victory sure.

The terrific clouting continued right down the American League line with the single exception of the Cleveland-St. Louis duel, and the Indians won that when Joe Vosmik clouted a 400-foot line homer with one on in the eighth.

Chicago's White Sox added the Detroit Tigers to the list of clubs which have lost one game by pounding out a 9-to-8 victory, scoring their last two runs in the ninth. The New York Yankees outswatted the Athletics in a home run duel, 10 to 4, as four baggers by Bill Dickey and Tony Lazzeri proved more effective than a pair by Bob Johnson.

GIANTS VICTORS

The World Champion Giants played the National League theme song for the day when they turned four hits, one a homer by Bill Terry, off Fidgety Phil Collins, into a 2-to-0 victory over the Phillies. Bud Parmelee and Dolf Luque pitched five-hit ball.

Brooklyn and Boston provided one of the early season oddities in a 1-1, seven-inning tie. A thick fog, which rolled in to obscure the outfield, forced the umpires to call the game. Walter Beck, of the Dodgers, allowed only three hits. Pat Malone's five-hit hurling, plus some timely hitting against Paul Derringer, gave the Cubs their third straight triumph over Cincinnati by a 4-to-1 count.

The Pittsburgh Pirates refused to follow the rest of the league and piled up 19 assorted hits to trim the Cardinals, 14 to 4.

Between Rounds

Star bouts will make up an amateur boxing show to be held in the South Side Market House tonight to raise funds for athletic equipment for the Brashear Settlement. The card: Dick Biehers vs. Tony Mendecino, Jack Lauder vs. Adie Stein, Walter Klonsky vs. Carl Kleiber, Russ Treno vs. Fritz Lentz, Alex Klonsky vs. Joe Vizzinnie, Chester Warren vs. Johnny Varda, Jackie Walls vs. Andy Tortorice, Johnny Leonard vs. George Meyer, and Emil Perlick vs. Dan Pielan.

Bouts between William Johnson and Andy Tortorice, Charley Beverly and Bobby Baird, and Frankie Vavra and Mike Curry have been added to the amateur card at McKeesport Monday night.

Sammy Slaughter and Bud Taylor have parted company and the Negro middleweight now is managed by C. M. Jones, of Clinton, Ia.

Anson Green and Lloyd Clements are training together for their bouts next week, the former with Ben Jeby at Motor Square Garden Friday night and the latter with K. O. Christner at Clarksburg, W. Va., on Thursday.

The Spring Hill A. C. will offer an amateur boxing show in the Workingmen's Beneficial Union Hall, Spring Hill, next Thursday night. Leading local boxers will compete.

Pearce, Missing Pitcher, Is Found

SHELBYVILLE, Ky., April 20.—(INS.)—Frank Pearce, Philadelphia National League pitcher, is visiting friends in Alexandria, Va., his brother, Jack Pearce, said here today.

Jack said he talked to his brother by telephone last night. Frank told him, he said, that he simply slipped away for a brief visit, not thinking that his absence would cause so much concern. The pitcher said he would leave at once to rejoin his team, according to Jack.

The Philly moundsman who vanished mysteriosly from his hotel in the Quaker City three days ago, complained that he had not been feeling well, and his brothers, Jack and Howard, said they felt sure he had been the victim of amnesia.

NEW YORK, April 20.—(INS.)—Informed by the International News Service today that Frank Pearce, the young pitcher who has been missing for several days, had been located at Alexandria, Va., Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Philadelphia National League Club, said he would welcome him back with open arms.

LOCKHART DEFEATED

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 20.—With Wilmer Allison having defaulted because of a wrenched back yesterday, Frank Shields and Loester Stoefen probably will meet in the final of the Mason and Dixon tennis tournament here tomorrow. Charles Lockhart, of Pittsburgh, to whom Allison defaulted, later bowed to Marcel Rainville, of Canada, 60-, 7-5.

OPEN BETTING LEGALIZED IN NEW YORK

By BILL CORUM
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, April 20.—With a stroke of the pen yesterday, Gov. Herbert H. Lehman made horse racing in New York state honest. It now remains to be seen if the people who run horse racing in New York state can keep it that way.

Under the provisions of the Crawford-Breitenbach bill, now a law, we will have what is called an open betting ring when the Metropolitan racing season opens at the Jamaica track tomorrow afternoon.

An open betting ring means cash betting. It means that you can walk up to any bookmaker in the ring, hand him the money you wish to bet on the horse your fancy (or tout) dictates, get a ticket, and if the horse wins, come back immediately after the race and collect.

This system of wagering has so many advantages over the one it displaces, the so-called oral system, that I would not even attempt to discuss them all in a single column. But its basic advantage is that it gives the player something more nearly approaching an even break.

So long as there is gambling of any nature, from a two-bit crap game to the "big board" in Wall street, the house will always have the better of the player. The point is not to allow this advantage to become too great. Open betting is a step in that direction, because it will make competition, and competition is also the life of trading in your good money for a good thing.

My friends, the bookmakers, will tell you, with tears in their eyes, that we have not been having a syndicate book on the races at the New York tracks these past few years.

A syndicate book means the same price on a horse in all books, which also means that the bookmaker can give the player exactly what he chooses to give him—and no more.

Perhaps we haven't been having an out-and-out syndicate book, but it was close enough for all practical purposes. Thus they may call it what they wish, but the indisputable fact remains that for the last 10 years around the New York tracks the customer has always been wrong.

LOCAL SOCCER TEAM OFF FOR TITLE GAME

The Pittsburghers will be the guests of President Elmer Schroeder, of Philadelphia, prior to the game.

There is an important meeting of the Keystone League this evening at Rosie's Store, Bridgeville. All managers should be on hand.

Wash-Jeff Denies Break With Pitt

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 20.—(AP.)—Spiking reports that Pitt and Washington and Jefferson might sever athletic relations, Dr. Ralph Hutchison, W. & J. president, said today the football teams of the schools will meet in 1935.

His announcement was made after questionnaires had been returned from 80 alumni, which favored continuance of relations by more than 2 to 1 President Hutchison said:

"As long as the relations with Pitt are as mutually satisfactory as they are now, the football rivalry will be continued indefinitely."

QUEEN HELEN NOT READY TO PLAY

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody has not wielded a racket for weeks and has no plans for resuming tennis competition this summer.

There is no chance that she will be a member of the United States 1934 Wightman Cup team, said the former No. 1 woman tennis player of the world, who defaulted to Helen Jacobs in the national championship last summer because of a back injury.

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XLIX.

It was nearly 11 when he arrived. He looked gray. His eyes were sunk. He stood in the hall, holding her hand and talking absently.

"Were you very disappointed, Pippin? I'm awfully sorry. Do you want to go anywhere now?"

"I have and I think I've won. It was a hard day. We started operating at 7:30 and didn't quit until 1. Then at 6 tonight it begins again. Poor fellow has a crushed hip and two broken arms. I thought he was gone. He fell 50 feet. But I think he's going to pull through. I hope his life is valuable to someone. It was a tough fight to keep him alive, I was sure he was passing out. I didn't dare leave him."

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. Pippin goes on hikes with Gregg McClintock, senior at college. She then returns to college and has Vivian Drake as a room mate. Vivian's love affair with Sherry wanes. Vivian disappears and sends a suicide note. Kevin returns. Edward's family and Pippin disapprove of his choice of a bride. Kevin kisses Pippin while on skiing party.

Now Go On

He said gently: "Do they ever thank you for saving them?"

"Not often. Especially when they don't pay for it. But that doesn't matter. A woman did come in with a bunch of violets the other day. We took care of her at the County. She was a grand person, and she made a neat speech when she presented the flowers. Didn't your father tell you? It's so unusual—but then you know only one of the 10 lepers came back to thank the Lord. We shouldn't expect a higher percentage than His; human nature hasn't changed."

Notices Her Gown

He looked down at her and smiled, noticing for the first time that she wore an evening gown and it suited her well. She looked young with her hair clear from her forehead and tied back like a child's—yet warm and provoking.

He said irrelevantly: "Was it a dress like this when Edward made you so unhappy?"

She glanced up, startled, repeating: "Edward made me unhappy?"

"Yes, don't you remember? You wrote me a letter. You didn't see what there could be wrong in a clean, strong back like yours."

"Very much. I was thinking of the letter you wrote."

She said, coloring: "Kevin, you haven't kept those letters, have you?"

"Of course I have."

"Well, I'd certainly turn crimson reading them now. I know that."

"Why?" Then he smiled and his eyes had a teasing light. "You were in love with me then, Pippin. You wrote extravagant, delicious letters. I'd like to get one now. Where's my picture?"

He was laughing at her now. "Do you remember what you said about it?"

She drew a deep breath and kept her eyes down: "I remember. Sixteen is a silly age."

Talk of Play

"It's a wonderful age."

They went into the little room and sat on the davenport. He pulled her to his side, letting his hand rest on the back of her neck, just under the bunch of curls.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you—I meant to write you a letter, but I'm a poor correspondent . . . I'm sorry I didn't get down to see the play, but that was another mad day. I wish you'd give me the script. I'd like to read it."

She didn't want Kevin to read the play. She knew the plot was weak. There were many coincidences and they had achieved their effects by all manner of tricks. But the girls who took part were pretty; the costumes attractive and the lines snappy. She didn't want Kevin to laugh at her, so she began to tell amusing incidents about the rehearsals, about Bruce, about Dadee's love.

He grew very silent. She turned, wondering why he didn't respond. He was asleep.

She scrutinized him. He looked younger with his eyes closed and his face relaxed. He looked boyish with his black hair curving from his forehead. His mouth, released from the stern, compressed expression of his waking hours, was full and very sweet. She sat quiet, with his hand resting on her neck and her shoulders growing stiff. She didn't wish to disturb him, yet felt indignant and very much taken down. After all, she was telling a sparkling story; she was looking her very best. He didn't need to fall asleep right in her face.

Falls Asleep

Very gently she lifted his hand from her neck, moved to a chair, took a book and tried to read. But every now and then she was gazing at him. She was glad he was weak like other people and had to fall asleep! She wondered if he would awaken if she went over and very softly kissed him. She wouldn't do this, of course, but she wished she could. She read on and speculated on.

Suddenly the clock in the hall struck. It was 11:30. Kevin jumped to his feet and was instantly, amazingly awake. He looked at Pippin, rubbed his face and turned very red.

"That was a nice, polite thing to do! If I don't behave better, I won't rate any more of your Friday evenings, will I, Pippin?"

She gave a little smile and felt very happy. She went over to the phonograph and put on a record. She stood with her back to him. Her dress was long. It went down to the ground. It was high in the front and cut low in the back.

He thought she looked pale and appealing and that she had a luring figure.

She thought: "I wonder if he'll ask me to go out tomorrow night? I've kept it free."

She was busy with her own thoughts. The record wore down. Mechanically she changed it, bringing out a record without looking at it. It was a very old song, "Your Eyes Have Told Me So."

Appropriate Record

She stood listening to the words, which were full of dreams, and to the haunting melody.

"You never spoke of love to me and still somehow I know,
For love has made me wondrous wise, your eyes have told me so."

He came and stood at her side, starting the song anew and reaching about her to wind up the phonograph. She felt again that subtle wave of fire. She felt so defenseless and thought wildly: "Oh why—oh why don't you leave me alone?"

He leaned down and looked in her face: "What did you say, Pippin?"

"I didn't say a thing."

"Yes you did."

"All right, answer."

He turned her around and holding her at arms length, said: "Pippin, I think you're beautiful." Then he touched her face with his hands and let his fingers loiter over her hair and along her throat. He kissed her eyes and laid his lips with a long tenderness on her mouth.

Afterwards, still holding her, he said: "How did you happen to pick out that old number?"

"It was on top. Dadee, as I was telling you, is in love. He was probably listening to that and thinking of Christine."

Could Love No Other

He made her look at him. Holding her face in his two hands gently, he said: "It's an appropriate song, isn't it?"

Then he walked out to the hall and took his hat.

She said, shocked: "You're not going? Why, you just came!"

"It's 12 o'clock. I've got to be in the operating room at 7:30 tomorrow morning. It's a tough case. I've got to be all there."

Se said simply: "Oh," and walked to the door.

She went up to her room, pulled a little chair to the window and looked into a stormy sky where the stars flew about and great purple clouds wheeled down the mountains.

She thought: "He won't let himself love me. He doesn't want to get in deep. I don't count. Nothing counts. Why should I care? I DON'T care!"

But she felt his hands on her face and remembered the look in his eyes. She felt near to him; everything about him seemed beautiful. She loved him—he was the only man she would ever love—

POMPEY
CICERO

After a Painting by Cesare Maccari in the Palace of the Senate, Rome.

CICERO DENOUNCES CATALINE—POMPEY, CRASSUS, CAESAR FORM TRIUMVIRATE

After Sulla's death (78 B. C.) patrician generals Pompey and Crassus suppressed plebeian uprisings demanding extension of liberties. The Senate denying them the consulship, they supported the plebeians who elected both consuls (70 B. C.) Sent with supreme powers to the East, Pompey defeated Mithridates, conquered Syria, subdued Palestine, captured Jerusalem (63 B. C.)

In the same year the conspiracy of Senator Catiline was unveiled by Cicero, whose oratory led to the destruction of the conspirators. To regain its lost power, Senate implicated popular leaders in the conspiracy, most outstanding among them young Julius Caesar, nephew of Marius and son-in-law of Cinna.

To discredit them further, Pompey's land grants in the conquered territories to his veterans were not confirmed and to Caesar, victorious in Spain, a triumph denied. The humiliated generals joined against the Senate and with Crassus formed the First Triumvirate aiming to perpetuate their power by alternate consulship. (World History)

UNSUCCESSFUL INVASION OF CANADA—DEATH OF MONTGOMERY

George Washington, appointed by the Second Continental Congress, Philadelphia, as commander-in-chief of the American Revolutionary Army (June 15, 1775) was handicapped by great difficulties (short enlistments, lack of ammunitions, supplies). So he was restrained from the offensive, and besieging the British in Boston, spent the remainder of 1775 organizing his army.

To prevent a British attack from Canada upon Fort Ticonderoga, Gen. Richard Montgomery advanced in August, 1775, into Canada over Lake Champlain; a month later Col. Benedict Arnold, marching through Maine, headed toward Quebec. Successful at start, the American "invasion" failed, when suffering defeat before Quebec December 31. Montgomery fell and Arnold was severely wounded. (United States History)

X-RAYS—BOON TO SCIENCE, INDUSTRY

W. C. Roentgen discovered (1895), when cathode rays (electrons emitted from cathode in vacuum) struck a solid, there resulted invisible but penetrating rays, called X-rays, which affected photographic plates.

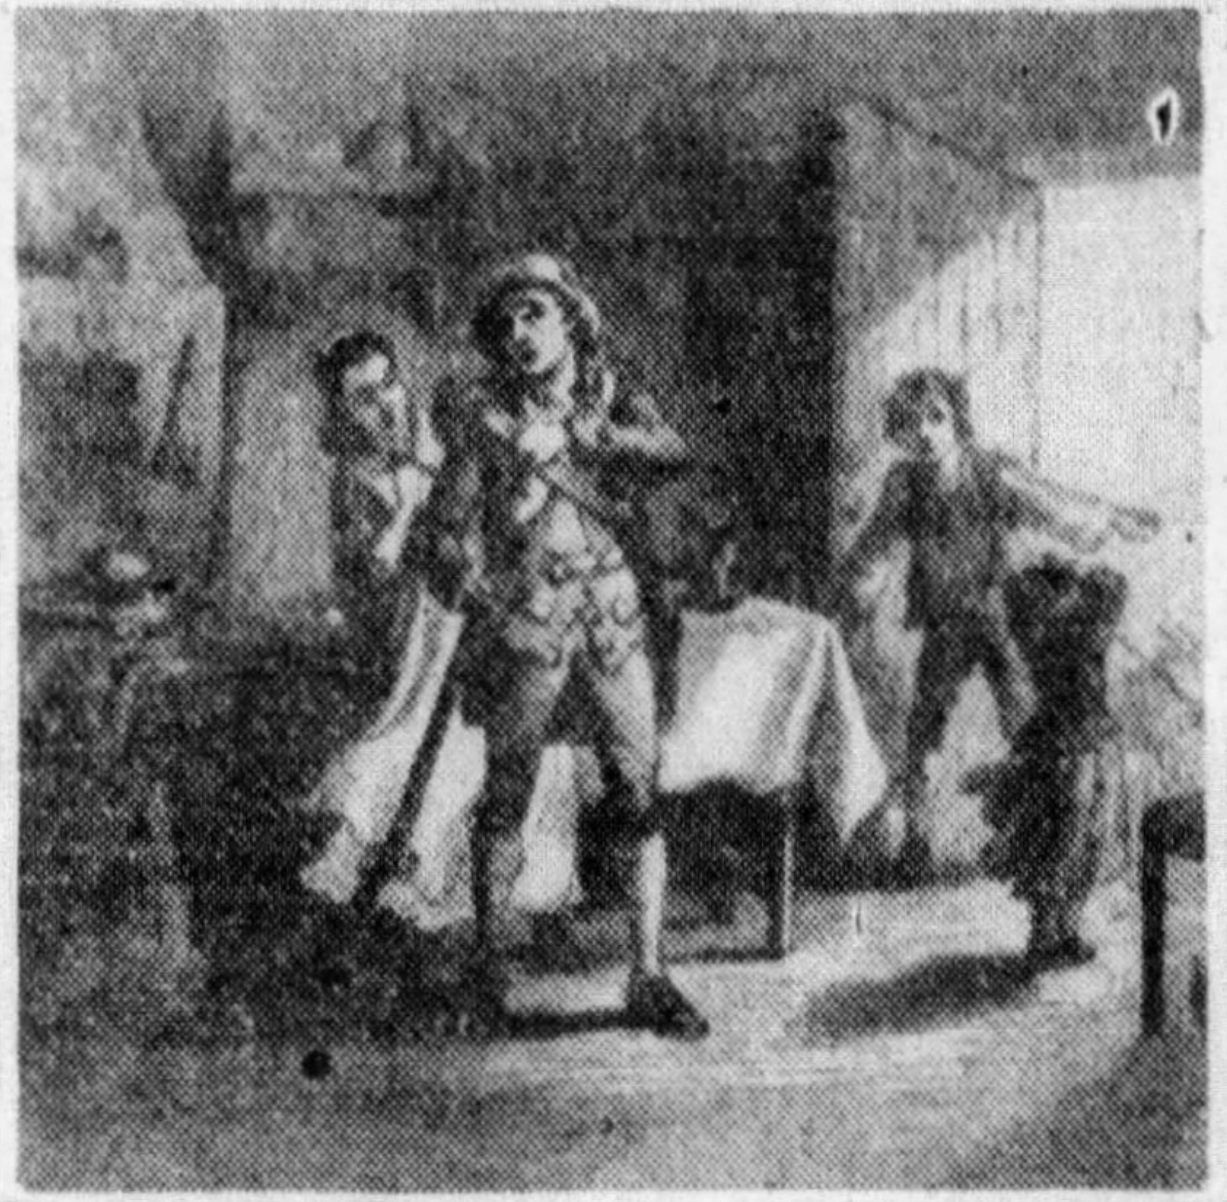
Powerful X-ray tubes (invented by W. D. Coolidge) have a filament heated by electric current as cathode (right), increasing the emitted electrons, hence X-rays. Reducing vacuum in tube results in "harder" X-rays (greater penetrating power) apparently identical with gamma rays given off by radium.

X-rays are used to find foreign bodies, tumors in body, flaws, cracks in castings, welds and to attempt to destroy malignant cells, cancer. X-rays—knocking out electrons from atoms—ionize gases.



MINUTE MAN ANSWERING BUGLE CALL

"Minute Men" were American patriots, who—at the approach of the Revolutionary War—pledged themselves to take the field on a minute's notice. When called, these men grabbed their treasured equipment and hurried away from family, home, to fight, suffer, and perhaps die, for the liberty of the country. Let us follow the noble example! Be ready to fight our country's enemies. Don't overlook the most dangerous ones: Ignorance and dishonesty.

Knowledge, sense of duty and responsibility toward country and fellowman are the right equipments for this fight. (Character Building)

FIRST STEPS IN AERONAUTICS

Man's desire to fly is as old as man himself. Lacking muscular energy, he succeeded by mental power. Right: The hot air balloon, invention of the Montgolfier Brothers, Joseph Michel and Jaques Etienne, French paper makers (1782). It was a silk bag, open at the bottom under which a fire was built. Hot air and combustion gases—lighter than atmosphere—filled, lifted the bag. In 1783 Francois Pilatre de Rosier, French scientist, made the first ascent in a similar balloon. He stood on a platform attached to the balloon and maintained a straw-fire inside the balloon's neck, carrying a bucket of water and a sponge for fire emergency.

After the discovery of hydrogen by Cavendish (1776), balloons were filled with that gas. Vincent Lunardi, an Italian, ascended from London in a hydrogen-filled balloon of 33 feet diameter (above). He vainly tried to direct the flight by a pair of oars. (Transportation)

CTENOPHORA—THE FOURTH ANIMAL PHYLUM

Ctenophora (comb bearing, called so from the many retractile tentacles or lobes), beautiful, almost transparent marine animals, comprise about 100 species. Above left: The Hormiphora, showing a tentacle in view and section and an adhesive cell at its end with which it captures its prey. Above right: The Mnemiopsis with lobes in place of tentacles.

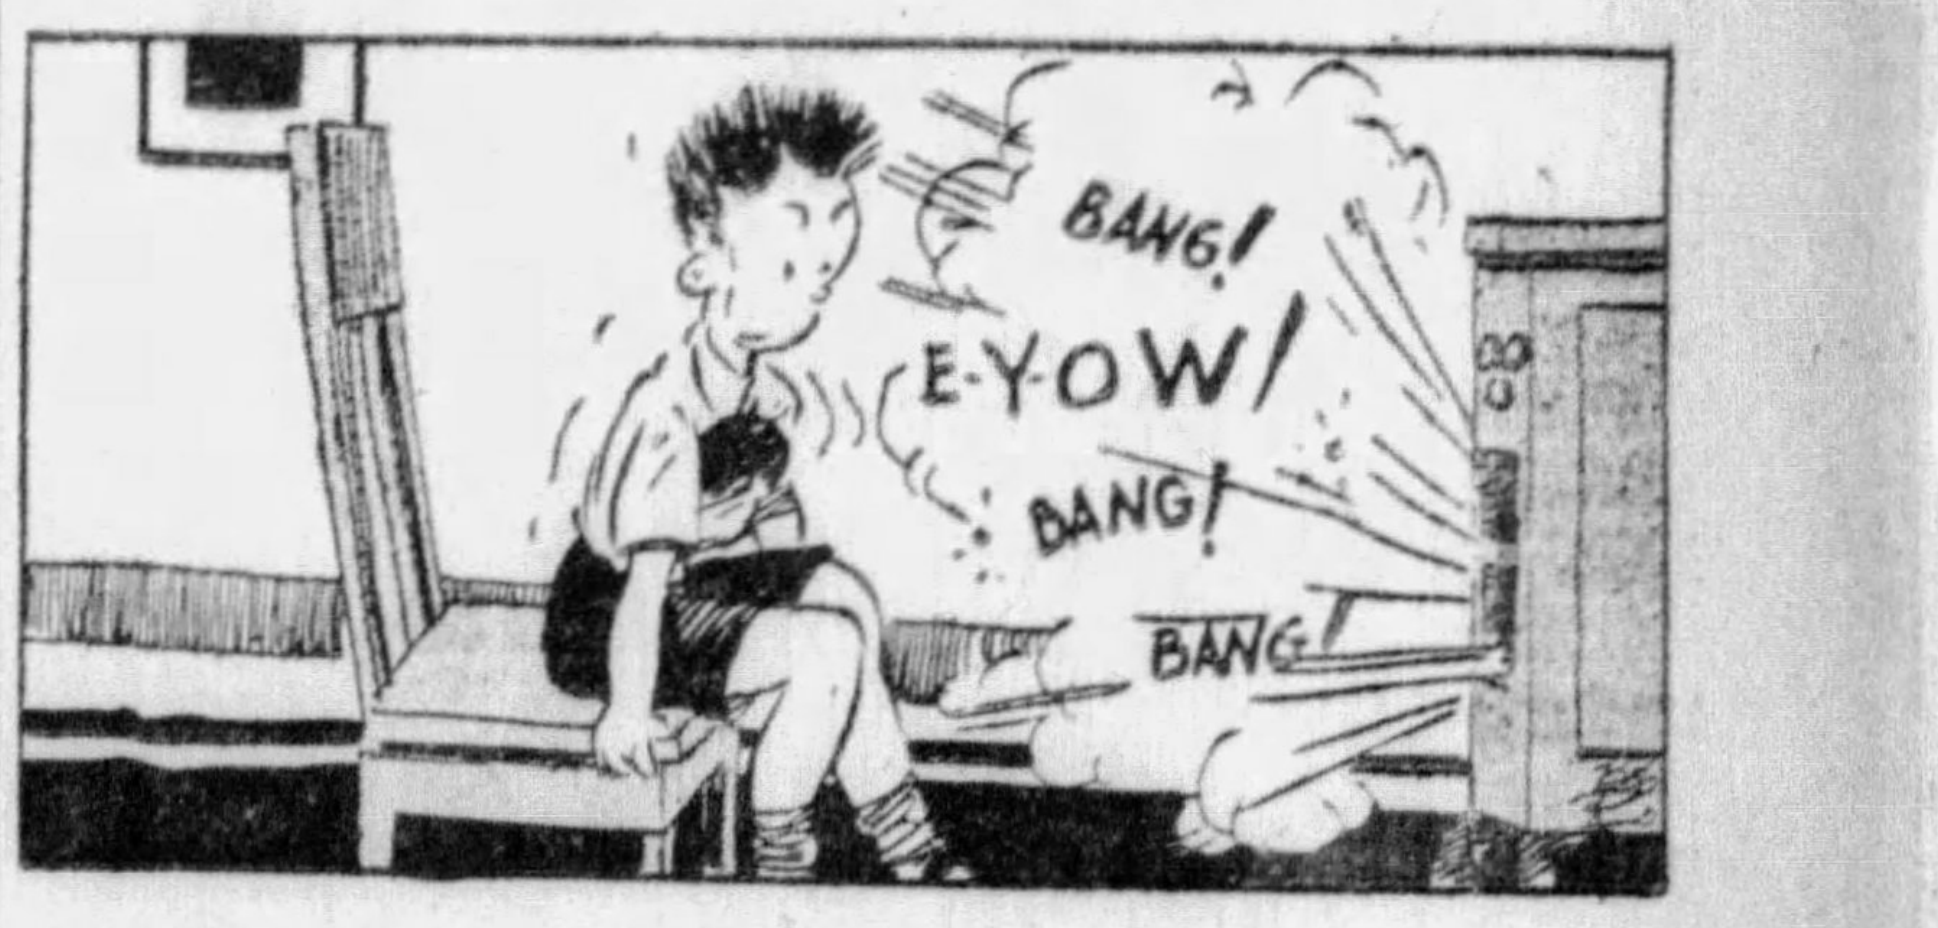
At twilight every evening our little home is apparently the torture chamber for all the fiendishness in the world. The little ones perch around the radio trap and listen to an index filing system of toupee-curling adventure.

It starts, bang, bang, bang. That's a twenty-gun salute for Grokkus, the master detective, who couldn't find mud in the Mississippi in the spring time. He is tracking Urkle, the leader of the damp cellar gang. Urkle has kidnaped the heroine by request. He has also absconded with the blueprints of the emerald mine. There he goes. Bang. A scream in the dark. Who is it? Well, anybody can scream in the dark with a little practice. The trapdoor is sprung and the hero plunges through to a tasty mixture of doom, avarice and revenge.

Bang, bang. Urkle is still shooting. The hero has fallen fifteen thousand cubic inches and he has bounced back. Grokkus shoots at him unintentionally and misses deliberately. Another bang followed by three more screams. So far as yelling and shooting are concerned the depression is over.

Where is the heroine? There she goes. She disappears so often you don't know whether she is kidnaped or whether the old folks are going for their second honeymoon. Bang. A scream. Boom, boom, it's the battleship Oregon coming round the bend.



BANG!
E-YOW!
BANG!
BANG!

Then a syrupy voice says, "Little children, don't forget to take your Obbozine every night. It makes bright eyes, white teeth and healthy bodies."

It also makes frightened babies, scrambled brains and half-wits. It seems to us that Obbozine could be plugged without starting and finishing a war in fifteen minutes.

The idea of radio entertainment seems to have been switched all around. If the actors want to scare somebody why not pick out human beings nearer their size?

The result is that the children are nervous. Try to sing a lullaby to your baby and he blows a police whistle. He won't take his Obbozine and he won't take his milk toast because he is afraid it will talk back to him.

That's why we oldtimers string with Diamond Dick, Nick Carter and the Liberty Boys of 1776. Plenty of shooting and misdemeanors. But nothing louder than the rustle of a page.

Transcontinental Highways Offer Opportunity for Wise Expenditure

THE Hearst papers have earnestly sought to impress upon the administration the importance of a comprehensive program of national road construction.

Particularly in these times, when vast public expenditure is accepted as a governmental policy by the people because they see the need of creating employment and believe it will stimulate recovery, conditions are especially favorable for the development of such a program and the pushing of it to completion.

The administration seems to be scanning the horizon in every direction for opportunities to spend. Its idea seems to be that money must be put in circulation whether the objects for which the expenditure is made are good or bad—useful or not.

Even so thick and thin an apologist for the administration as its multiple officeholder, Postmaster General Farley, in a recent speech said that "SOME OF THE PUBLIC WORKS that are being executed under the new dispensation are perhaps NOT URGENTLY NECESSARY."

* * *

IT IS COMMON knowledge that many so-called public work projects are scandalously overmanned, utterly foolish in conception, and without even a pretense of utility. They amount to no more than so much litter which some day will have to be carted away—scrapped like the war-time shipping, cantonments and temporary housing.

Just so much wastage!

The gravity of this becomes greater and plainer when we reflect that there are many useful objects to which the expenditure of public money could be devoted which are in fact being overlooked and neglected.

Many of our thoughtful citizens honestly entertain the direst forebodings as they see our mounting deficits and the unstemmed outflow of public money—money which the over-strained taxpayers of the nation must some day repay, if they can.

These fears deepen as they see the lightness of mind with which billions are being scattered without apparent pause to weigh the possible return or justification for such expenditure.

* * *

WHY SHOULD not the administration turn its attention and direct its expenditure into a channel in which EVERY DOLLAR OF OUTLAY WILL JUSTIFY ITSELF?

The modern paved roadways are so scientifically built that they may be regarded as permanent, with remarkably little care and upkeep they become so in fact.

Roads suitable to the best means of communication are the mark of a great people. They promote trade. They stimulate travel and intercourse. They knit the different parts of a nation into a compact unit.

Good roads mean the rapid mobilization of men and material in times of national danger. They add to the nation's security against every unseen contingency.

All considerations of prudence, every prompting of intelligent policy, every practical reason, justify a comprehensive program of road development. It should be on a national scale and should be undertaken without delay.

* * *

THREE trans-continental highways extending from the manufacturing states of the East through the food and grain producing states of the Middle West and onward to the Pacific Coast, are shown on the map.

The eastern terminus of the northernmost highway would be Boston, and it would pick up the great cities of Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, crossing the Dakotas and Montana, and ending in Spokane and Seattle in the Northwest.

Another highway would extend from Chicago to San Francisco by way of Omaha and Salt Lake City, with a spur through Denver linking the important Omaha route to the Southwest.

A third would serve the southern states, extending from Charleston on the Atlantic Seaboard, westward through Atlanta, Birmingham, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso on our southern frontier, and ending in the great Pacific metropolis of Los Angeles with its rapidly expanding commerce and population.

* * *

THE HIGHWAYS, shown on the map, from North to South should be at least two in number and are equally striking and important.

One should extend from the Canadian frontier, just south of Winnipeg, and traverse the grain-producing northwest and the oil-producing southwest, ending at Laredo on the Mexican border.

Another, and a shorter highway, would extend from Detroit through the progressing and populous cities of Louisville, Nashville, Birmingham, to the great Gulf port of New Orleans.

These roads would of course be supplemental to and connect with existing great roads such as the Lincoln highway out of New York City.

Here is a vast amount of useful work to be done. All of it would have permanent value. Every dollar expended on it would be justified.

* * *

THE ADMINISTRATION cannot afford to neglect the opportunities for wise and productive expenditure which these projects present, while it wastes the public resources on needless and unproductive projects, as so many are seen to be, which the government is now engaged upon.

No government or administration can spend by the billion, without some day being CALLED ON TO ACCOUNT! In that day, the utility and value of every government project will be scanned with searching eye!

Good roads would encounter that scrutiny without fear. They would justify themselves—to the last cent!

Demoralizing and Unfair

The Deceiving of Landlords in Relief Cases Should Be Stopped at Once

A statement issued by the Community Fund in connection with the critical situation that has arisen as a result of the exhaustion of the money with which rent has been paid for destitute families reveals a bad practice.

"In Allegheny County," it is stated, "the rent program which has been maintained, at first by the Allegheny County Emergency Association through the private family service agencies and now through the County Relief Board, has been financed entirely by allotments from the Community Fund. In this program the family, upon receipt of final notice of eviction, is requested to locate another house. Upon location of a house, the family is given the first month's rent in cash, and pays this amount to the landlord. No more rent is paid until final notice of eviction is again received, at which time the family must go in search of a new house. The one month's rent which is allowed may not be paid to the evicting landlord. The giving of the first month's rent in cash to the family is necessary in order that the prospective landlord may not identify the family as dependent upon relief and unable to pay any additional rent. This policy, it is recognized, in many cases virtually forces the family to deceive the prospective landlord.

"The Allegheny County Relief Board, and social workers from both public and private agencies, have opposed such a policy as demoralizing to the family and unfair to the landlord. That it has been followed for the last three years is due to two powerful factors—first, the imperative necessity of securing shelter for dependent families unable to pay rent; second, the constant inadequacy of funds for relief which rendered any other method impossible."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 20.—Thoughts while strolling: Always liked to see my first managing editor go on a rampage. He'd scream "Great Hat!" Trumpeteers for the beauty of Mrs. Harrison Williams should take a squint at Mrs. Fred Peabody. Loretta Young and Lucy Virgina Long look alike.

What litterateur suggests a badly stuffed owl? That old boarding house from which, although jobless, I used to come and go at the usual time so the landlady wouldn't know I'd been fired. New York is not likely in many generations to have another dilettante so picturesque as Otto H. Kahn.

Dramatic elocution is a snap when one is alone. How faint the poets have been about Radio City! Nobody ever mentions Ogden without Utah. Whatever became of Gilda Gray? Ray Perkins is always perking. I usually loiter before those avenue department store windows. Saks appeal.

One of my favorite people—Bessie Mack. The exquisite vitality of Hal Le Roy. Those rugs of the Turkish sellers must be antique. No one ever buys one. Christopher Morley was about to once. But feared the poor fellow would die of pneumonia. A shop exploiting only horror books.

So this is real summer! Hello sucker! Nobody ever looks difficult in a rumble seat. After you listen to all the announcers—Graham McNamee seems best. Anywhere they play Ravel's Bolero, I'm a customer. But no one has emphasized its barbaric rhythm as Earl Carroll in that revue.

* * *

While windows are up, a roaming piccolo player in Vanderbilt avenue is shrilling "The Whistler and His Dog," a tune that sends me marching around the house when it comes over the radio. There should be a guild of around-the-house marchers. Public parades reveal the pent-up strides that lurks in every man. One of the happiest friendships of a lifetime resulted from a rooming house discovery of a fellow-marcher to a street band. We collided in the hall. Marching is a biological triumph of inferiority. Lord Northcliffe was an indoors marcher.

* * *

And we wonder if small towns at intervals are still touched with a juvenile drum-major urge. It came to every generation years ago. We began on a section of broom-stick and each residential block was a twirling flurry by day and a medley of bruised shins and cracked heads by night. One of our boys—Cheedie Friend as I recall—became the drum major with a show boat band, coming to town every spring, in a mountainous black fur hat with chin strap and a nickel-plated baton with a knob glittering rhinestones. To this day I think he achieved more of life's superb grandeur than all the rest together.

* * *

In a venerable linen house down-town—the sort as stuffy as a concierge's loge and with those basket carriers on wire and counter tills—the other day I saw the last of bookkeeping high desks with a superannuated employe in black skull cap perched atop the high stool. When he came over to the owner, addressing him by first name, he might have stepped from a page of Dickens. About him was a dignity never seen behind the modernistic desk of a $100,000 a year executive with battery of phones and rows of push buttons.

* * *

Hamish McLaurin sends me a short story from India which begins: "If boundless benevolence be the basis of beatitude—" But I got no further. Somehow I slipped slambang off the settee with a skush.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

'Blended' Emotions

Love is not a "straight" emotion, it's a blend of the heart, the mind and the senses. A man may lose his heart, every spring—but until he loses the other two, he is safe from committing matrimony.

* * *

When a husband and wife live in perfect harmony and the home has the restful atmosphere of an entente cordiale, you may be sure that neither one of them is trying to "remodel" the other.

* * *

One faint breath of jealousy from a woman's lips will put out the lovelight in a man's heart more suddenly and effectively than a fire-extinguisher. It merely confirms his secret suspicion that such a combination Adonis-Casanova-and-Solomon shouldn't be wasting ALL his charms on one girl.

* * *

This is the time of the year, when a popular bachelor doesn't know whether he pities or envies the pal married last June, and has only ONE woman to dodge, flatter and explain things to.

* * *

At this season, a girl should remind herself that when a man slops over with romance, it may mean only that its SPRING; but when he stops discussing the color of her eyes and begins talking bungalows, salaries and garden gadgets, the chances are that it may be LOVE.

* * *

A dominating personality may be all right in a man—but, in a woman, it is usually about 5 per cent personality, 5 per cent brains—and 90 per cent a determination to grab all the limelight and run other people's lives.

* * *

A girl feels that she may be able to struggle along, somehow, through the coming summer season without the proper clothes, if only she can afford a few of the snappy IMproper ones for the beach and the ballroom.

* * *

Sometimes, a woman prefers an admirer to a lover; but the hardest thing on earth to make a man believe, is that you want his FRIENDSHIP, but not his kisses.

* * *

Many a man is going to be married in June, who doesn't know it, yet—because the girl hasn't told him.

'If You Want to Get Ahead—'

The usual Success Book gives me a severe pain in the neck.

In the first place, the brand of Success it advocates is all eyewash. A lot of money. Two tuxedos. Maybe a steam yacht. Well, what of it? Is that I ask you an admirable goal for guys who once fought Indians and dug a nation out of a wilderness on their own spit and sweat?

And in the second place, even if you happen to think that is an admirable goal, it's a cinch you'll never arrive there by following the usual Success Directions. They are not only ga-ga, but they're also daggoned lies. Written largely by Fat Softies whose idea of Being On the Fighting Line is to sit on an overstuffed davenport and be fed caviar by a peroxide blonde. And about as useful to the Average Struggling Worker as a set of lace ear-muffs.

Which is all the more appalling in view of the fact that most of us are Feeling Sunk, and would give our eye teeth to find something, somewhere, which would put a little bustling hope back into our empty hearts, and some practical punch into our listless fists.

AND, BIGOLLY, I'VE FOUND IT!

In a slim little book called "IF YOU WANT TO GET AHEAD," by Ray W. Sherman; Little, Brown & Co., Publishers.

Here, at last, is a success book that isn't a philosophy for swine—typographical lard. It's a book about Getting Ahead—but NOT Getting Ahead to Two Tuxedos and a Private Yacht. It's a book about GETTING AHEAD WITH YOURSELF. Do that, stranger, and you won't have to worry about dividends!

And, thank heavens, it's as plain as a bowl of mush. No Big Business tricks. No mumbo jumbo Psychological Technique. Common talk to common people about the things that mean life—AND MAY MEAN HEALTH AND HAPPINESS—for us all. Simple sense, which the slowest soul can use.

BUT IT'S THE SORT OF SIMPLE SENSE ON WHICH AMERICA WAS FOUNDED.

IT'S THE SORT OF SIMPLE SENSE THAT CREATED AMERICAN STANDARDS OF DECENCY AND FAIR PLAY.

IT'S THE SORT OF SIMPLE SENSE THAT MAY YET SAVE A WORLD GONE MAD WITH GREED—A NATION THAT, FOR THE LAST 30 YEARS, HAS LIVED IN A PIPE DREAM, FOLLOWING THE WILL-O'-THE-WISP OF SUCCESS OVER THE NIGHTMARE MARSHES OF DISILLUSION.

And so, if you're muddled and miserable, feeling you're a flop, here's medicine for what ails you. Go to your nearest book store. Get that little book. Read things like this:

"Get over the idea that success is due to a mysterious quality that some men have and others have not. SUCCESS IS MADE UP OF SIMPLE THINGS—the simple things that most men don't do."

"IT ISN'T WHAT YOU KNOW BUT WHAT YOU DO THAT COUNTS."

"MOST MEN ARE A LOT BETTER MEN THAN THEY THINK THEY ARE. Once they get under way, they are surprised to find how good they really are. LUCK IS NOT A FACTOR."

Why aren't YOU getting ahead with yourself, getting ahead in life? Is it because "the system's rotten"—because you've "never had the breaks?" Or does the answer, maybe, lie in your own laziness, your own cowardice, silliness and conceit?

Read that book. Then take a vote on yourself.

Army Short 50,000 Men; U. S. Defense Endangered

By James T. Williams, Jr.

THANKS to the initiative of a veteran of the Great War, now in Congress, hearings have been started before the House Committee on Military Affairs on a national defense measure of real urgency.

This is the bill introduced by Congressman Thompson, of Texas, to recruit the Regular Army up to peace time strength authorized by the national defense act of 1920. This would mean an increase of fifty thousand in the enlisted strength and 2,000 in the commissioned strength of the skeletonized defense that we now call the Regular Army.

Due to the neglect of Congress, the Regular Army since the Great War ended has been reduced far below the danger level in both strength and equipment. Enactment of the Thompson bill at this time would serve two useful purposes: it would, as the chief of staff, Gen. MacArthur declares, "Correct a very glaring and critical weakness in our land defense establishment." It would also reduce unemployment not only directly but indirectly and at a cost far below that of several expensive relief agencies.

Would Mean Orders For Equipment

ADDING two thousand officers and fifty thousand enlisted men to the Regular Army would mean immediate orders for equipment and supplies to many industries that have been compelled to lay off thousands of men because of lack of orders.

This money would be expended on something needed by the whole country—a stronger national defense. It would not be squandered on useless work the only excuse for which was that men needed work of any kind in order to support themselves and their dependents.

As Congressman Thompson has pointed out in urging that the House Committee on Military Affairs give his bill a hearing:

"The question will immediately arise as to the effect on the budget of appropriating for the modest increase provided by my bill.

"The increase can be handled very readily by diverting the necessary funds and less than fifty thousand individuals from any of the emergency relief organizations now maintained at federal expense relief organizations now maintained at federal expense. The aggregate cost would be less and the benefits to the individuals and to the nation would be grater and more lasting."

Reserve Officers May Be Called

TO AVOID another war time "hump" in the commissioned personnel, caused by commissioning several thousand officers all at once, Congressman Thompson has wisely provided in his bill that the Secretary of War may call to active duty with the colors over a period of five years reserve officers of appropriate grades.

In the selection of these officers consideration would be given to their present financial condition. Preference would be given to those reserve officers in each grade who were really in need of employment.

Although this progressive defense proposal originated in the House and is sponsored by a veteran of the Great War its provisions have met the whole hearted approval of the high command of the Army and veterans' organizations are also rallying to the support of the measure.

What its fate will be at the hands of the House Committee on Military Affairs is a question. Not one single constructive piece of legislation stands to the credit of this committee since the Democatic Congress came into power.

Meantime, under the chairmanship of Congressman Vinson, of Georgia, the House Committee on Naval Affairs has achieved a remarkable record. More constructive legislation for the upbuilding of the Navy has been enacted into law since the Democratic Congress came into power than was enacted by all the preceding Republican Congresses that have come and gone since the Armistice.
